Dodd Pleads Case

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd testified today he had "kind of an aversion" to testimonial dinners and had hoped he could get out of the hole financially some other way.

The Connecticut Democrat, testifying in his own defense at a Senate ethics committee investigation, said he had been unable to get out of debt since his first unsuccessful Senate race in 1956.

He said he didn't think he had "ever solicited anybody" or asked anybody "to buy a ticket to a testimonial dinner," but he testified he had talked to friends "about my financial situation."

"They all knew about it," he said.

"Did you tell them you had personal debts you needed to pay off from these testimonials?" asked chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., referring to a series of fund-raising events for Dodd between 1961 and 1965.

"If so, you ought to say so," Stennis said.

"I'm sure I did," Dodd replied.

Dodd, charged with using campaign contributions for personal expenses, said that every facet of his life and virtually every cent he has spent for the last 11 years have been "intertwined with politics."

"I got into the hole in 1956 and I was never able to get out," Dodd told Stennis. "It was a cumulative thing."

The senator said he often used one loan to repay another. "All of these were what I would call a revolving thing," he said.

"I wish you could have a better recollection," Stennis said.

Dodd: "I had no help from the state Democratic organization in any of my campaigns. The organization was unfriendly to me then and is now. I had to row my own boat. I think that's where my difficulty lies. I had to go it along as best I could."

Dodd first ran for the Senate in 1956 and was defeated, but he was elected two years later and re-electedin 1964.

The committee's investigation centers principally on charges that Dodd used campaign funds for personal expenses, including the payment of loans.

Dodd took the witness chair and offered to answer any questions members of the committee had, without any preliminary statement or any questioning by his own counsel, John F. Sonnett.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., opened the questioning. He turned immediately to $83,788.31 that Dodd had already acknowledged, in a stipulation with the committee, that he had used from a testimonial account to make repayment on loans.

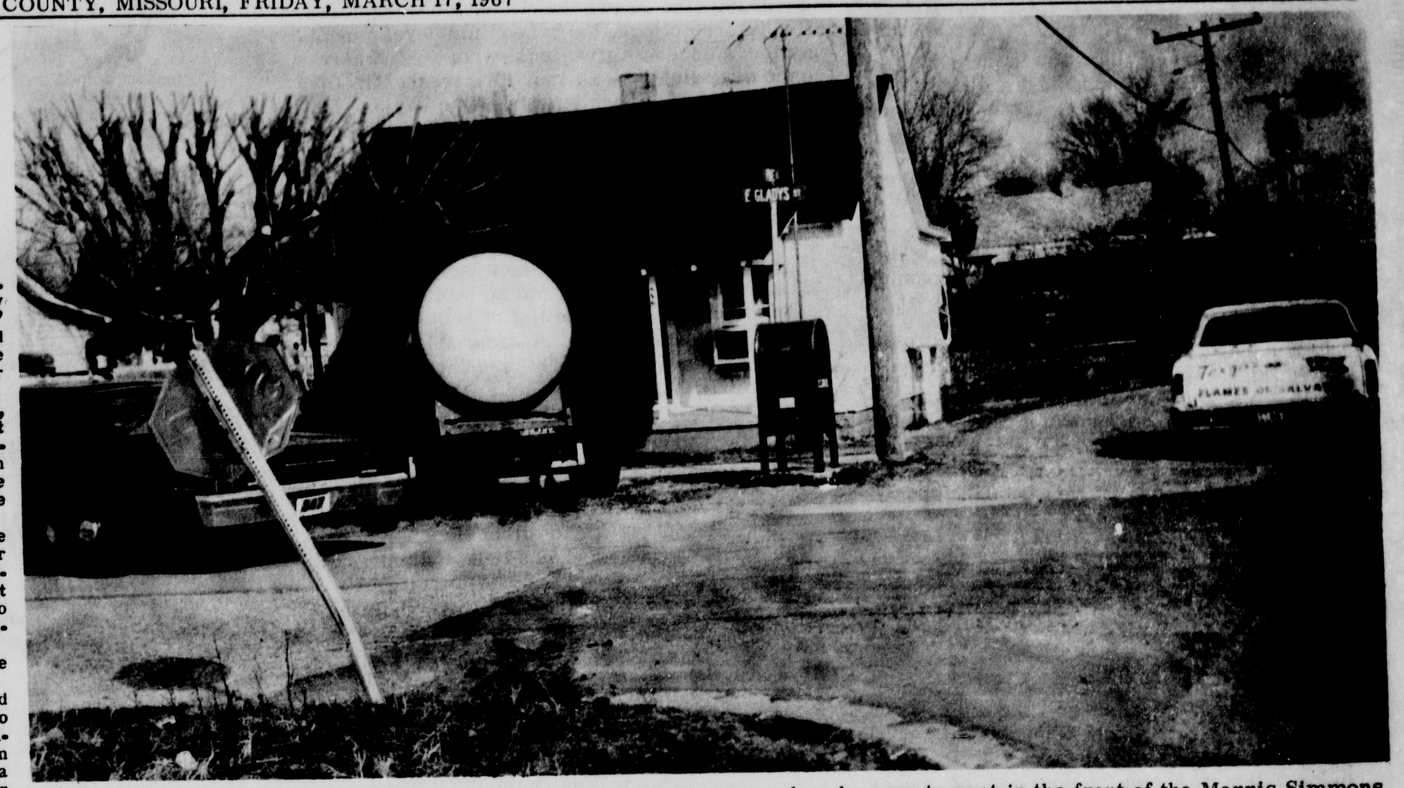
After a huddle Thursday, the bipartisan committee decided to bring in another witness, Edward F. Sullivan, manager of Dodd's Hartford, Conn., office. Sullivan has been described as the man in charge of paying the bills in Dodd's 1964 re-election campaign.

Sonnett said Sullivan is aged, arthritic, and -- as of Thursday -- snow-bound. He added he didn't know when Sullivan could get here.

Also still up in the air was a committee decision on whether to accept in evidence a stack of affidavits swearing that ticket-buyers to testimonials for Dodd intended that Dodd use the money as he saw fit.



THE PIN connecting a 1,000-gallon liquid fertilizer tank to the National Gas Co. station wagon, at right, came loose this morning. The 2,000-pound rig bent the stop sign in the foreground and came to rest in the front of the Morris Simmons residence, 846 East Gladys. Tom Hefner, driver of the station wagon, said the tank was empty.

Johnson Delays Cabinet Merger

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson, confronted by labor opposition, told Congress today he is delaying his proposal to merge the departments of Commerce and Labor.

In a special message to Congress, Johnson said he remains convinced the departments should be merged but "further active development of my proposal is necessary before it can be submitted to Congress."

Labor leaders have reacted coolly to the merger proposal since Johnson made it in his State of the Union message Jan. 10. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz confirmed March 15 that top union leaders had registered opposition in a White House session last week.

Johnson said he is asking the President's Advisory Committee on Labor - Management Policy "to consider the proposal in all of its aspects, and particularly to develop means to assure that a free flow of communications will be maintained between the government and the business and labor communities, both through the new department and other governmental channels."

That language in effect served notice that while the proposal is delayed it is not dead. Wirtz had taken the same general line.

Johnson has planned through the consolidation to create a general department of economic affairs, taking in a variety of

Eagles to Organize Lodge

An Eagles lodge will be formed when State Secretary S. P. Krokovich, Kansas City of the order comes to the Rustic Rock April 2 to take applications for new members. Refreshments will be served.

The Eagles have a ladies auxiliary.

The Eagles are an international organization of one million members with 1,700 units in the United States and the Philippine islands. They have contributed more than $1 million to hospitals and universities and to the cancer fund as well as for research to the Max Baer fund for coronary diseases.

The Eagles sponsor a home for the aged in Bradenton, Fla., and the Bar H ranch for boys in Nevada, Mo.

Students to Seek Mile of Pennies

The high school student council will sponsor a Mile of Pennies drive tomorrow for the Easter Seal campaign.

Council members will have stations set up from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. downtown. They will be front of J. C. Penney's, Woolworth's, and Harris Pharmacy and in front of the Ben Franklin store in Mid-towner Village.

Every penny will help the council reach its goal.

Easter lillies will be given to those who contribute.

Mrs. Buford Baber, chairman of the Scott County drive, reports total contributions in Scott County in the Seal campaign are $1,100. The goal is $3,000 and the campaign ends March 26.

Stations will be set up March 24, in the same locations.

Member of the executive committee of the council who planned the drive are Sally Faulkner, Sharon Harber, Danny Lopp, Robert Matthews, Judy Murchison, and Darla Scoles. Mrs. Baber and Mrs. H. H. Coats, sponsor of the council, assisted them.

Money collected in the campaign will provide treatment and rehabilitation services for crippled children and adults.

Seventy per cent of the money collected in the County will be used in the County. It will provide crippled children with an opportunity to attend summer camps, and it also will help students who intend to study the treatment or teaching of the handicapped, obtain scholarships.

2,000 Expected At Scout Show

About 2,000 persons are expected to attend the second annual Boy Scout exposition sponsored by the Okeechobee district Saturday at the armory.

Scouting activities from camping and cooking to life saving and space exhibits will be on display.

Special features will be presented from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m.

Preliminary pine wood and space derbies will be held at 3 p.m.

Life saving, swimming and canoeing demonstrations will be presented at 3:30 p.m. Skits and stunts will be staged at 4 p.m.

The final runoff of the pine wood racers and the space derby will be presented between 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

About 40 units will have booths.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 39 states will go on Daylight Saving Time this year, an Associated Press survey showed today.

Among others the score stands this way as of now:

One state, Hawaii, has decided to stay on standard time. Michigan appears certain to follow suit. Five others still are uncertain. Four more have not made up their minds definitely, but probably will switch to Daylight Saving Time.

A law enacted by Congress directs all states except those which exempt themselves — to observe Daylight Saving Time from 2 a.m. the last Sunday in April until 2 a.m. the last Sunday in October.

Any state may exempt itself by adopting a state law to that effect.

So, in the big majority of states, clocks will be put ahead one hour April 30 and remain that way until Oct. 29.

Hawaii's Legislature approved a bill this week to keep the state on standard time.

Alabama — Legislation now is before lawmakers, but the state probably will go on daylight time this summer, at least.

Missouri — Bills pending to keep the state on standard time, but they have little chance of passage.

Arkansas -- There's a remote chance that a bill to bar daylight time may get through after the Legislature returns March 27 from a recess. But chances are slim.

Idaho — the Legislature defeated a measure to keep the state on standard time. But a similar bill was introduced this week. It is being held in a committee with no indication of any effort to bring it to a vote.

Tennessee — A bill to keep the state on standard time has been introduced. But there has been no action thus far.

Georgia — House voted to remain on standard time. Senate disagreed. A conference committee has recommended that Georgia remain on standard time this year and switch to daylight time next year only if three of the five states contiguous to Georgia decide to accept daylight time.

Florida — Legislature may consider time legislation when sessions open April 4.

Indiana — Only the western half of the state has been changing to daylight time. Officials are trying for federal approval of the same arrangement this year, although the federal law required a whole state to use daylight time if it doesn't elect to stay on standard time.

Texas — A bill to exempt the state from daylight time has been cleared for debate by the Senate. The House has sent legislation to a subcommittee.

Michigan — the House and Senate approved a bill exempting Michigan from daylight time. The governor said he would sign it.

St. Patrick's Day Fun Brings out Irish in All

By EDWARD J. DENNEHY

— An Irish toast

Thousands of Irish, near-Irish and non-Irish march along to the skirl of bagpipes today in communities across the land to honor St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland.

Aside from the celebrations, it is a day of good humor, a day when jokes and wit have the flavor of green corn. In Ireland, the day has a quiet religious tone. In America, it's a time of jollity.

Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley had city fountains spiked with green dye. Watching the water in the civic center pool turn to an emerald hue, he said, "That's the way it ought to be all year long."

Patrick J. Dillon, city councilman in Niagara Falls, N.Y., tried unsuccessfully last year to have the Niagara River above the falls tinted with green dye. Dillon did better this year. The American and Horseshoe Falls will be bathed in green light St. Patrick's night. Green plastic covers will be placed over spotlights that illuminate the falls from the Canadian side.

Baltimore held the annual parade Sunday. Don Davern, a member of Dail Eireann, the Irish Parliament, was one of the onlookers. Asked why he thought so many Americans wore green on "the day," Davern smiled and said, "everyone wants to be Irish."

Davern must be right. The faculty at Pfeiffer College, a Methodist-affiliated school in Misenheimer, N.C., decided that -- just for today -- it's "McPfeiffer College." The college president, Dr. J. Lem Stokes, is "J. Patrick McStokes" and Dean Hoyt Bowen is "Bryan O'Bowen."

Speaker Says Missouri House Too Large

COLUMBIA (AP) - Speaker James E. Godfrey said today he thought the Missouri house is too large and the membership should be reduced.

He suggested 75 to 100 members would be better than the present 163.

Hearnes Berates Federalism

ATLANTA, GA. (AP) - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says "creative federalism" is unfair when it makes state expenditures mandatory.

The Missouri governor spoke at a Founders' Day dinner of the West Point Alumi Association Thursday night.

He said the unfairness of "creative federalism" is apparent in two basic areas:

"First, we did not enter the programs with knowledge that we could incur penalties later through new legislation.

"Second, we enter some of these programs and find federal funds later reduced or withdrawn unless we accept later provisions."

He cited the highway beautification and the Medicaid programs as examples of the way the federal governments attempts to penalize states for not funding federal programs.

"I have taken a cautious attitude on implementation of Title 19 (Medicaid)," the governor said. "I do not believe I should commit my state to accepting mandatory requirements which may be changed even in this session of Congress.

Manslaughter Charged in West Plains Death

WEST PLAINS (AP) -- A manslaughter charged was filed today against William D. Wilson, West Plains, whose car smashed into a truck, killing a man Thursday, after he was arrested for investigation in a slaying case.

Wilson, reported absent without leave from the Navy at Key West, Fla., was injured in the accident and was reported in critical condition at the Army Hospital at Ft. Leonard Wood.

John Henson, Springfield, a passenger in the truck, was killed. Jerry Leon Mooneyham, 26, Springfield, the driver, was reported in critical condition.

The chain of events began Wednesday night when Henry E. Gastineau, 57, a Frisco Railroad employe, was shot and killed at his home, 10 miles southeast of here. His wife was beaten and is reported in serious condition.

Sheriff Brack Pace said Wilson was stopped by the Highway Patrol on U.S. 63, north of here. During the questioning, Wilson was asked to show how to start the car, which had an intricate starting system. He started the car and sped away, the sheriff said.

Officers said they were awaiting tests on a .22 caliber rifle found in the trunk of Wilson's car, and blood on his trousers.

Mustang Speeds Off Curve, Driver Injured

He was driving a 1966 Mustang, when he speeded around a curve on highway 60, three miles east of Charleston. The vehicle ran off the road, went down an embankment and overturned.

He suffered face and head cuts, and other injuries. He is in a serious condition.

Two trucks collided yesterday at 1:35 a.m. on a highway nine miles west of Hayti. Both drivers escaped injury.

A 1965 Mack truck was driven by Sanford Wedgeworth, 50, Augusta, Ark. The driver told the highway patrol that a pillow had fallen from the sleeping compartment to the floor. When he picked it up from the floorboard, the vehicle veered into the wrong lane, and struck a 1964 White semi-trailer, driven by Charles O'Rear, 38, Van Buren, the highway patrol reported.

Thursday at 1 a.m. on highway J in Perry county, a 1956 Chevrolet, driven by Guy McClearn, 45, St. Louis, went out of control and down an embankment. He was not injured.

T. A. WILSON, executive vice president of the Boeing Company and former Sikeston resident, was one of five receiving the Missouri honor award for distinguished service in engineering from the University of Missouri at a banquet in Columbia today. A bronze medal and citation was presented by Dr. Joseph C. Hogan, dean of the college of engineering.

Clark Arraigned For Murder

JACKSON (AP) - Phillip O. Clark, 22, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., was bound over to circuit court Thursday on murder charges in connection with the slaying last October of his wife's grandmother.

Clark is accused of the murder of 71-year-old Mrs. Zola Clifton, who was killed in her basement apartment in Cape Girardeau Oct. 1, 1966.

Memphis State Chorale Coming

The Memphis State university chorale, directed by Dr. Walter Wade, associate professor of music will tour Arkansas, Missouri and Kentucky Monday through Thursday.

The group will appear at Sikeston high school at 2:30 p.m. Monday.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Despite the current interest in shopping centers with abundant parking and modern facilities, downtown stores in small cities have much to offer.

Shopping is convenient and easy most of the time in downtown Sikeston. It is a place where many stop to and from work and to buy their immediate needs.

Normally parking isn't too difficult thanks to foresight in providing numerous and convenient parking spaces. These parking areas have been provided both by business establishments and the city.

The trend of stores to move out to shopping centers does invite the serious attention of those who remain in downtown business section as well as their customers. They should make certain that the area remains attractive. There is no reason to panic or throw in the sponge.

Downtown Sikeston is not a blighted area now and with planning it never need be. Stores have modernized. Many wear attractive new fronts. Many interiors are functional, inviting and modern.

It isn't a shopping Utopia. More could be done but that is not the major point.

The important thing for everyone to remember is that with sound planning now the district can be more attractive in the next quarter of a century than it otherwise would be.

To keep the downtown region inviting money spent now on engineering studies to determine how to make the area attractive and functional will become an excellent investment in the future.

With cooperation of the merchants and their customers plans made for the future can be realized and downtown will continue to be thriving and lively.

Many of the nation's largest cities and some of the smaller ones are now trying to provide malls in their downtown shopping districts. These give shoppers eye relief from brick and mortar by providing spots of green where trees and shrubs abound. They also provide regions where shoppers can rest and relax.

Sikeston has no reason to be concerned about provision of malls.

It has American Legion park and Malone park, two grassy, leafy areas, which, while often taken for granted, are much used and as much appreciated by residents.

With care, foresight and cash downtown Sikeston can be as attractive in 2000 as it was in 1925 or in 1967. The potential is there.

Development is too good an opportunity to pass up.

As a genius of journalism, Henry R. Luce was the most influential man in the field of communication of this century.

His wealth, impressive as it is from an investment of $86,000 does not fully measure the dimension of his accomplishments.

From its inception every article in "Time" has been a not too thinly disguised editorial.

This lack of objectivity in a news magazine has raised many eyebrows and caused some criticism.

This has been true despite the fact that magazines usually make no pretense of objectivity.

Every article is written from a point of view and intended to produce the same viewpoint or the opposite, causing debate and creating controversy. Why not? This builds readership and circulation and creates interest in public problems.

Something more can be said for lack of objectivity. If an article causes the reader to think, to investigate more thoroughly, to read more in search of the truth it has served a constructive purpose.

It is much more difficult to justify a well established trait of the American people upon which "Time" and other magazines have prospered. This is the tendency of a majority of Americans to prefer being told what to think than to think for themselves. The fault cannot properly be placed on the shoulders of "Time", other magazines, newspaper columnists and editorial writers and radio and television commentators. The people are to blame.

The influence of Luce extends far beyond the printed pages of "Time" and other magazines. It exists in the modern broad treatment of news in all media and the exploitation of the full possibilities of pictures. Perhaps more than any man, Luce can be credited with producing revolution in this country.

Newspapers as well as every other form of communication have been influenced by the Luce touch.

There was a time when it wasn't news in Washington unless the story came from the White House or a cabinet member temporarily caught in the news spotlight; in a state capitol unless it came from the governor or the attorney general; in a court house unless the sheriff or circuit clerk was the source and in a city hall unless the mayor or chief of police had spoken.

Due to the influence of "Time" the broader dimensions of news are no longer neglected. Metropolitan newsrooms, once occupied by generalists, are now populated by specialists.

The whole emphasis of news has been changed. There is as much or more effort put on backgrounding the news, the whys, the wherefores, the future outlook, the reason for developments as there once was given to the who, what, where - once over lightly - a superficial treatment of the hot, spot news developments of the day.

News no longer is here today and gone tomorrow. It has a continuing connotation. It is living history.

Consider the index of "Time" - art, books, cinema, education, law, letters, listings, medicine, milestones, modern living, music, nation, people, press, religion, show business, sport, theater, U.S. business, world, world business.

This is not a complete list of subjects closely covered by news media. Two notable omissions are "politics" and "labor" and there are many others. But the mere recitation of the list is a far cry from the news grist of another day with its heavy emphasis on fires, natural disasters, murder and crime.

There is no man more responsible than Luce for encouraging the earnest probing of the depths for news in today's broad dimensions.

The public's response has been fantastic. No old time reporter would ever believe it.

Luce was a man of vision who saw the possibilities. He not only made a fortune from it but changed America and the communications field in the process.

It was my privilege to sit in on a newspaper district meet while on the west coast and I heard many interesting talks. One retailer who is a leading west coast advertiser said "The sale takes place in the home, only the transaction takes place in the store."

He used this statement to point out the need for more and complete newspaper advertising. He contended that if a store's newspaper advertising was to have selling effectiveness it had to be strong in selling points.

Newspaper advertising presents the greatest opportunity to do a selling job in the home, he said, for the paper arrives and actually awaits the customer's convenience. It stays around until every member of the family has had a chance to get the advertising message.

He emphasized the fact that every newspaper advertisement should contain the full story about the merchandise. It should be told in believable manner and with facts to back up the claims.

Then he added with a challenge "Newspaper advertising is not on trial, it is a proven tool of merchandising. Only the advertising writers are on trial."

NOTHING FUNNY ABOUT MONEY

Rep. Durward G. Hall (R-Mo.) says he gets an occasional chuckle out of comic strips, but he's not laughing at a federal grant of $8,789 for a study of the comics.

"The biggest belly laugh will not be found in the comic books, but rather in the sheer stupidity of throwing tax dollars away on projects like this," Hall said.

Announced by the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities, the grant was awarded to the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Hal Boyle

EDITOR's NOTE — Arm in arm with a leprechaun, Hal Boyle headed for the St. Patrick's Day parade early this morning, leaving behind in his typewriter a fresh sprig of shamrock and the following message, which may have a similar ring to some:

NEW YORK (AP) — What is it to be Irish?

On 364 days of the year being Irish isn't visibly different from being Scotch, French, Italian, Jewish, Serbian, Dutch, or -- yes -- even English.

But on this one day of the year — holy St. Patrick's Day — the Irishman becomes an Irishman.

And on this day you have to be Irish to know what it is to be Irish.

The outer signs, of course, can be seen by all. The Irishman overnight grows a foot taller and stalks the earth a giant. All traffic lights turn green before him, and if they don't he sees red.

But this air of majesty is only token evidence of interior change. The men of other races who envy the Irishman his bearing of St. Patrick's Day would envy him far more if they could look inside the Irishman's soul.

What is it to be Irish?

How can you put the wonder of it into words? If a psychiatrist stretched himself out on his own warm couch after his last customer had gone home, and he dreamed of the man he himself would most like to be — well, he might be perfect, but he'd still be only half an Irishman on St. Patrick's Day.

What is it to be Irish?

Oh, on this day it is music. Not just the cornet in the parading high school band, but the deep, deep music of living, the low, sad rhythms of eternity.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to live the whole history of his race between a dawn and a dawn — the long wrongs, the bird-swift joys, the endless hurt of his ancestors since the morning of time in a forgotten forest, the knock at his heart that is part of his religion.

What is to to be Irish?

It isn't only the realization that he is descended from kings. It is the realization that he is a king himself, an empire on two feet striding in power, a strolling continent of awe.

What is to to be Irish?

Why, on St. Patrick's Day, to be Irish is to know more glory, adventure, magic, victory, exultation, gratitude and gladness than any ordinary man can experience in a lifetime.

What is to be Irish?

It is to walk in complete mystic understanding with God for 24 wonderful hours.

DEDICATED TO OUR FUTURE

At Houlton, Maine, this month, in the forestland of his state, Governor John H. Reed will be principal speaker when the Eastern Woodlands of Standard Packaging Corporation is certified as one of Maine's more than 700 Tree Farms.

With the dedication of this substantial area of timberland, Maine's privately-owned tax-paying Tree Farms, operated for the continuous and economic production of timber under a scientific forestry, watershed and wildlife management program, will pass the two million acre mark. As a mark of its significance, Governor Reed is proclaiming Maine Tree Farm Week, and the Eastern Woodlands' dedication will become a major event in this year's observance of the Silver Anniversary of the Tree Farm system in the United States.

Its importance to all Americans, however, lies not in dedications or ceremonies. Rather it is an example of American industry conserving the nation's resources for future generations and, at the same time, providing private forest parks and wilderness recreation at no cost to taxpayers. Eastern Woodlands alone has devoted 100 miles of prime lake frontage for public campsites and for low cost lease to outdoor enthusiasts. With other Maine Tree Farm land, this provides opportunities for true wilderness adventure in areas convenient to the great population centers of the Eastern seaboard.

In the 25 years of the Tree Farm movement, 30,000 landowners have dedicated more than 6 million acres of tax-paying forest lands - an area equal to all the New England states plus Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and West Virginia - to the present and future needs both of the economy and the public. It demonstrates the ability of private industry to serve the best interests of the people while it is producing the timber, pulp, paper and other wood products essential to our society.

It is fitting that Maine, birthplace of the legendary Paul Bunyan and a producer of forest products for 350 years, should play an important role in this anniversary.

Two garment - district executives were consoling each other with news of how bad their respective businesses had been all year, when the subject of their two sons came up. The first executive shook his head sadly from side to side, exclaiming, "What a no-good son I've got. You really wouldn't believe it. I don't believe it myself. A twenty-thousand-dollar-a-year salary I give him, but you think he pays any attention to the business? He does not. He stays out all night, doesn't come to work until its time for lunch, and then fools around with the models in their dressing room the rest of the day."

"You think that's bad?" the second executive asked. "You should have my son. He's so much worse, you couldn't believe it. He also gets a twenty-thousand-dollar-a-year salary, stays out all night, comes to work at noon, and spends the rest of the day fooling around with the models in their dressing room."

"So what makes him worse?" asked the first executive.

JUDICIAL REFORM

"Of all people in our society, the judge must remain the most incorruptible, because he is the final protector of our rights to life, liberty and property under the law," declared California Supreme Court Justice Louis H. Burke. But, says a report from the American Assembly of Columbia University, "The administration of justice in the United States is in trouble."

Casting light on that trouble, the July, 1966, issue of The Reader's Digest states that ". . .in state after state there is growing alarm over judges who are sick or senile, corrupt, guilty of unconscionable gold-bricking, habitually intoxicated or otherwise unfit to serve on the bench." By far, an overwhelming majority of judges do not fit this category. The fact that a small number do, however, is disturbing.

Two states have pioneered judicial reform. The most recent is California where a Commission on Judicial Qualifications is empowered to investigate complaints from anyone about courts and recommend action to the Supreme Court which can disbar a judge. The system, which has already removed 30 judges from California courts, has been adopted by some Texas courts and is currently being considered by other states. Its application to federal courts is also being studied by Congress, since federal judgeships are lifetime appointments. There is no room for incompetency in our judicial process.

FEDERAL SUBSIDY FOR STUDENT POLITICS

There has been a great deal of agitated public discussion following the disclosure that the National Student Association (NSA) has been receiving large amounts of money from the Central Intelligence Agency over the past decade. This discussion has concentrated on the CIA as the "villain of the piece," with the constant implication that the money was paid to NSA so that its student members would help the CIA in spying.

All this talk has distracted attention from the record of what NSA has actually done on college campuses. Whatever NSA may have done for the CIA, obviously the large subsidy of CIA funds gave NSA an opportunity to do much more on campus than would otherwise have been possible.

For more than fifteen years the National Student Association has been one of the principal organizers of farleft activity on campus. Its national conventions, claiming to speak for millions of students only dimly aware of NSA's existence, have taken positions such as support for Fidel Castro's educational policy in Cuba, sympathy for Japanese students whose rioting forced the President of the United States to cancel a visit to Japan, and a call for abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

NSA leaders have mounted well-organized and well-financed campaigns to keep their place on the campus in the face of challenge by constructive student groups. They have maintained a full-time national office and staff. It is now clear that CIA money helped make this possible. Intelligence work is CIA's proper mission. But it should keep out of student politics. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Strike Cut U.S. Fire Power, Aid, Soldiers' Troop Support in Vietnam

Washington, D.C.: -- The cold logic of hot war logistics appears to have made little impression on some 1,300 strikers who crippled key West Coast shipyards for 129 days.

They're back at work. But their spokesmen say they'll hit the bricks again as soon as the law permits -- about May 1.

They plan to picket again -- and apparently have some sympathetic support inside the U.S. Senate -- though Defense Secretary Robert McNamara has sworn that U.S. forces in Southeast Asia would have had heavier fire power and American troops would have had heavier support if not for the four-month stoppage called by a faction of the Electrical Workers Brotherhood.

Apparently at least one insouciant spokesman for the electricians could not care less. He predicted the men would go right out again, though McNamara also said, referring to ships which were already in the paralyzed yards:

"Without their schedule maintenance, overhaul and repair work, many of these ships may become inoperative, thereby disrupting and damaging the combat operations in Southeast Asia."

Obviously he is saying that the strike hurt our men and strategy right on the firing line. McNamara says this so strongly that he does not even use Defense Dept. Sanskrit-type jargonese. For example:

It can be reported that of the scores of ships affected by the walkout which began Nov. 4 when the electricians walked out, though other metal trades unions members did not, were 26 Destroyer Escorts. They are of the new 1052 Class.

The "lead" fighting ship was caught by the pickets about 40 per cent completed. It's in the Todd Shipyards' Seattle yard. In the construction of the "lead ship," the original design and engineering plans for the entire class are checked out, and any operational and maintenance engineering changes are then incorporated in the construction of the remaining ships in the class.

From now on we're peering under the brass curtain. The U.S. needs that "lead ship" because it needs those 26 D.E.s outfitted with improved anti-submarine capabilities with "advanced" gadgetry to "give us better defense, particularly against nuclear submarines, which make them the backbone of our surface anti-submarine capability."

The U.S. needs them because the Chinese and the Albanians just happen to have submarine fleets -- small flotillas, but We stalk them now with old line destroyers. And just to play "fail safe," the U.S. also keeps an eye on the big Soviet underwater armadas.

To do this the Pentagon has diverted destroyers needed in Vietnamese waters. Therefore, the 26 new D. E. 1052 Class craft were under urgent order in the West Coast shipyards. They were intended to reliever the older destroyers. And what of these?

"These destroyer escort vessels are not scheduled for Southeast Asia," said McNamara, "but for other areas where the need for this specific capability is more urgent. However, their deployment will enable the Navy to send an equivalent number of destroyers equipped with heavy guns to Southeast Asia.

"These destroyers are required for offshore shelling and troop support in Vietnam."

Yet the strikers were adamant until March 10 when the court ordered them back to work for 80 days under the Taft-Hartley law. They rejected a series of offers on pay and negotiating patterns.

They spurned the Federal Mediation Service. They shrugged off the White House.

Yet when the matter was called to the attention of a U.S. Senator, Ralph Yarborough, D-Texas, who might have helped, he wrote on February 27, 1967, to the effect that there was no impact on the war and supply lines; and that the shipyard owners had refused to negotiate (which is untrue); that this was a strike merely for higher wages. Not true.

This was a strike to break the entire bargaining pattern which has kept peace in the vital industry. Furthermore, Sen. Yarborough says that his own investigation shows there has been undue alarm over the entire matter.

The Texas Senator is important here because he is chairman of the vital Labor Subcommittee of the Senate's Committee on Labor and Public Welfare. All labor legislation must pass through his hands sooner or later.

And it is later than he thinks. At the end of the 80-day cooling off period the electricians may go out again. If so, the President will go up the Hill for an emergency law.

He may get it in the form of compulsory arbitration, as was done on the railroads not so long ago.

Then there will be an uproar over the president. This, after all, is the home front. The fighting is so far away.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DODD AND AMBASSADOR TO FRANCE

On March 1, 1966, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., had received a cash contribution from Irving Ferman, Washington representative of International Latex Corporation, and that Dodd in return was pushing A. N. Spanel, board chairman of International Latex, as Ambassador to France.

On March 11, 1967, Sen. Dodd, in stipulations before the Senate Ethics Committee, admitted that he had received a cash contribution of $8,000 from Mr. Ferman.

WASHINGTON -- Behind the President's long trip half-way across the Pacific to Guam and back is his desire to make sure that U.S. military leaders are putting enough emphasis on the civilian and political rebuilding of South Vietnam.

From a military viewpoint the war is going well. There have been Viet Cong desertions sometimes as high as 400 a day. It's only natural, however, that the military should concentrate on military problems. Yet solution of the civilian problems, the President feels, may be the final factor in ending the war.

This means the reconstruction of villages, building of schools, improving the water supply, distribution of food and, most important of all, the formation of a solid civilian government.

In 1966 South Vietnam made amazing strides in electing a constituent assembly and making a start toward nationwide elections for a new President. Working behind the scenes, Johnson has pushed this hard. He has vivid memories of Buddhists burning themselves in the streets last year and knew that without equality of rule there never could be stability in South Vietnam.

It was at the Honolulu conference that Johnson laid down the law to Premier Ky for equality of government. The forthcoming meeting on Guam will make sure that progress toward full civilian government continues.

SHAKE - UP IN VIETNAM

The President will take with him to Guam Lt. Gen. Bruce Palmer who did such a good job in the Dominican Republic. And since the end of the term of Gen. William Westmoreland is long overdue and he needs a rest, it's possible Palmer may later replace him. Westmoreland is given credit for the current victories and will occupy a high place in the Pentagon.

Also accompanying the President will be Rober Komar, the brains behind school construction, food distribution, etc. Komar has been a member of the White House staff but will now transfer to Saigon.

Also accompanying the President to Guam will be Dacid Lilienthal, for a long time head of the Tennessee Valley authority and former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Lilienthal is an old new dealer whom Johnson knew back in the days when he was a young congressman from Texas pushing dams and irrigation in the southwest.

The President has long cherished the idea of developing the Mekong River into another TVA project for an irrigation, power and navigation system which would enrich not merely South Vietnam but Cambodia, Laos, Thailand and North Vietnam. The idea was given him originally by Arthur "Tex" Goldschmidt, who worked with Harold Ickes and David Lilienthal in the old dam-building days of the new deal. Lilienthal will go to the Far East to push the Mekong River plan personally.

"Guam is a long way to go," the President remarked at a recent staff conference, "and the newspapermen will grumble. But I think it will be worthwhile."

RIVERS'S DRINKING

Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., the statuesque chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, was about to board a subway train between the capital and the house office building when a friend jokingly remarked:

"If he keeps on writing about me," Rivers grumbled, "he is going to drive me into another binge."

Almost everyone on Capitol Hill likes Rivers personally, and there is a sort of protective sympathy on the part of some members of the armed services committee to play down his periodic bouts with alcohol. The fact remains, however, that if the congressman from South Carolina were in the state department or the Pentagon, he would be fired immediately as a security risk. No alcoholic can be kept on the payroll in a sensitive job without risking an investigation by congress.

Entirely aside from Rivers's activities in getting special airplanes for himself to fly to South Carolina for weekends and aside from the favors given him by automobile dealers and his favors for government contractors, Rivers remains an undisputable security risk.

Nevertheless, as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, he has access to the highest secrets of government involving the defense of the United States. He also sits as a member of the CIA watchdog committee where he passes on espionage secrets seen by only a handful of American citizens.

Mrs. Jerry Earl Anderson

Miss Susan Lee Rigdon Weds Jerry E. Anderson

CAPE GIRARDEAU- Miss Susan Lee Rigdon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Vincent Rigdon, 1068 Dorothy, became the bride of Jerry Earl Anderson March 4 in ceremonies conducted at Centenary Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. J. Ray Trotter.

The bridegroom is of Minneapolis, Minn., and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Anderson, also of that city.

Altar arrangements were of pink snapdragons and roses with white pompons offset by palms and four brass candelabra holding lighted tapers. The wedding scene was also enhanced by a prieu die, white carpeting along the aisle where the bride entered and lighted hurricane lamps entwined with greenery and white pompons along the aisle. Mrs. Jack Palsgrove was organist for the candlelight service and Mrs. Carroll C. Williams was vocalist.

Her full, chapel-length veil was secured to a matching crown and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and one long-stemmed pink rose which she gave to her mother as she passed at her pew.

Attendants to the bride were Miss Jill Helm of Olney, Ill., maid of honor, Mrs. Robert L. Wehrman of St. Louis, matron of honor, Mrs. Norman A. Robert, and Miss Lori Manson of Minneapolis, junior bridesmaid and niece of the bridegroom.

James W. Anderson of Rochester, Minn., attended his brother, the groom, as best man. Other of the groom's attendants were L. C. Monson of Minneapolis, his brother-in-law Karl Guter of St. Louis and David Rigdon, brother of the bride. Ushers were another brother of the bride, John Rigdon, David Monson of Minneapolis, a nephew of the groom, Robert Gulmi of St. Louis and T. Scott Laird of St. Louis.

In the church social hall, the newlyweds, their parents and members of the bridal party received guests at a reception where the bride's table was covered in white satin and draped with green tulle marked by green velvet bows. Fern entwined with pink sweetheart roses encircled the four-tiered wedding cake and extended outward to the punch bowl and coffee service. Guests were served by Miss Nancy Kowa of New York City, Miss Pamela Love of St. Louis, Miss Susan Jacob and Mrs. Kurre Allen.

Small bags of rice were distributed by Sonwa Anderson, niece of the groom, and Gale Netherton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Netherton.

The new Mrs. Anderson was graduated from Central high school in 1963 and from St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in 1966. She is employed at St. Louis Children's Hospital in St. Louis where she and her husband plan to make their home. Anderson is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and is a third year medical student at St. Louis University where his professional fraternity is Phi Chi.

Hannibal Mayor Gets Unusual Request

HANNIBAL (AP) - The mayor of Hannibal has received an unusual request from a 14-year-old German girl who says she would like to live in the United States.

In the letter the girl asked Mayor Harry Musgrove to find her mother a "nice" husband. She described her mother as 46 years old, with a good heart, character and health. The girl is Ortrun Glatzel.

Musgrove said he would check around and added "It's the first time I ever got a request like that."

Miss Glatzel didn't say why she picked the mayor of Hannibal as her personal cupid.

Mosquito Warfare To Cost $50 Million

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. AP-- The pesky mosquito, sometimes a carrier of diseases, but more often just a plain irritant, will cost the American taxpayer at least $50 million this year.

Dr. Harry D. Pratt, of the National Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga., said tha $50 million will be spent on research, eradication and control of the mosquito.

He said that federal, state and local governments soon would be spending a total of $100 million annually for expanded programs.

Wyoming Runs Into UCLA; SIU Wins

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hardly anyone expected Wyoming to qualify for the NCAA post season championship tournament when the college basketball season opened last December.

However, the surprising Cowboys from Laramie did and tonight they have the chance to do what no other team has done, beat UCLA and its Player of the Year, Lew Alcindor.

The Cowboys, with the poorest record of any team in the NCAA tourney, 15-12, but with a seven-game winning streak, go against the team with the best, 26-0, in the semifinals of the Far West Regional at Corvallis, Ore.

The NCAA, with eight games at four regional sites, moves into the national spotlight following the triumphs of Southern Illinois and Marquette in the semifinals of the NIT Thursday night.

A capacity turnout of 18,499 at New York's Madison Square Garden saw Southern Illinois come from 11 points back to beat Rutgers 79-70 after Marquette had whipped Marshall 83-78.

Southern Illinois, now 23-2 with an 18-game winning streak, battles Marquette, 21-8, in the nationally televised final game Saturday afternoon.

Winston-Salem State from North Carolina surprised Kentucky Wesleyan 82-73 and Southwest Missouri routed Illinois State 93-76 in the semifinals of the NCAA small college tournament at Evansville, Ind. Winston-Salem, 30-1, and Southwest Missouri, 23-4, play tonight for the championship.

Oklahoma Baptist edged Southwestern Louisiana 66-65, St. Benedict's beat St. Mary's, Tex., 88-73, Morris Harvey downed Tennessee Wesleyan 75-58 and Central Washington squeaked by Eastern New Mexico 60-58.

St. Benedict's, 25-2, meets Morris Harvey, 28-3, and Oklahoma Baptist, 24-6, battles Central Washington, 26-3, in the NAIA semifinals tonight.

Nine of the Top Ten teams in the final Associated Press poll of the season play in the NCAA regionals tonight. Western Kentucky is the only team missing. The sixth-ranked Hilltoppers were upset in overtime by Dayton in the NCAA first round last Saturday.

The unranked Dayton Flyers, 22-5, go against eighth ranked Tennessee, 21-5, in the Mideast regional at Evanston, Ill., where Virginia Tech, 19-6, and Indiana, 17-7, also tangle.

Second-ranked Louisville, 23-3, faces Southern Methodist, 19-5, and third-ranked Kansas, 22-3, battles seventh-ranked Houston, 24-3, in the Midwest regional at Lawrence, Kan.

Fourth-ranked North Carolina, 24-4, and fifth-ranked Princeton, 24-2, meet in the East regional at College Park, Md., after ninth-ranked Boston College, 20-2, encounters St. John's of New York, 23-3.

University of Pacific, 23-3, risks its 20-game winning streak against the 10th ranked and defending national champions, Texas Western, 21-5 at Corvallies, before top-ranked UCLA takes the floor against Wyoming.

Walt Frazier, with 26 points, sparked the comeback of Southern Illinois against Rutgers in the NIT after the Salukis had trailed at 32-21. Bob Lloyd and Jim Valvano, Rutgers' stars, were held to four points each in the second half. Valvano finished with 24, Lloyd 20.

George Thompson threw in 28 points to lead Marquette over Marshall. The Warriors pulled away with a 10-2 burst in the second half after Marshall had rallied to within one point at 57-56. George Stone led the Thundering Herd from West Virginia with 25 points.

Eugene Smiley, with 27, and Earl Monroe, with 24, combined for 51 points to pace the Winston-Salem Rams in their upset of Kentucky Wesleyan. Danny Bolden's 27 led Southwest Missouri over Illinois State.

Allen Yields Holdout Crown

By HAL BOCK

And then there was one.

Allen, who was spending spring training selling cars in Philadelphia while holding out for $100,000, probably reached $75,000. He made $40,000 last year when he hit .317, drove in 110 runs and belted 40 home runs.

"I'm happy with the contract and happy that I'll be with the team in a few days," Allen said. "I like playing ball too well to enjoy sitting out while the rest of the players are working out in Florida."

Two weeks ago, Allen said he was ready to spend the season selling autos if the Phillies did not meet his price. Both sides compromised to reach Thursday's agreement.

Marichal is still at home in the Dominican Republic, thinking in terms of six figures while the Giants are standing by their $90,000 offer.

In other exhibitions, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 3-2, Detroit dropped Cincinnati 6-3, Atlanta topped the New York Yankees 6-4 in 16 innings, Cleveland whipped San Francisco 6-2, the Chicago Cubs downed California 7-1, the Chicago White Sox defeated Houston 11-3 Pittsburgh blanked Baltimore 6-0 and Kansas City beat Minnesota 5-2.

The Mets took a five-run lead into the final inning against the Red Sox and came out of it five runs behind.

"That's the wildest thing I've ever been in," said Wes Westrum, who is only starting his second season of managing the Mets.

Cassius Keeps Quiet On Draft Decision

NEW YORK (AP)—Cassius Clay isn't telling whether he'll go into the Army or jail, but it's become apparent that the heavyweight champion plans to put on a dazzling show in what "could be my last fight."

The undefeated, 25-year-old new Texan risks his title for the seventh time within a year and the ninth time in all Wednesday night when he faces 34-year-old Zora Folley at Madison Square Garden.

After confining most of his boxing activity earlier this week to nimble footwork, Clay opened up in the final two rounds of a four-round boxing drill Thursday with sparmate James Ellis.

The champ had a standing room crowd of more than 300 cheering enthusiastically as he punched away at close quarters with his 6-foot-1, 195-pound buddy and sparmate. Ellis has about the same physical measurements as Folley.

"My main concern now is with Folley," said Clay when he was asked to comment on the word from Louisville that he had been ordered to report for Army induction April 11.

He said that information on any appeals would have to come from his attorneys, chiefly Hayden Covington.

When asked if he would go into the Army or to jail if all of his appeals from the draft are rejected, Clay said: "My decision is made. I won't tell you what it is. I have to answer to the government, not reporters. But I know what I have to do."

A reporter told Clay there were Muslims in the Army.

The champion, who has discarded the name of Cassius Clay for that of Muhammad Ali, is seeking exemption from the draft on the grounds that he is a Black Muslim minister.

The 34-year-old Korean War Army veteran boxed four brisk rounds with Wendell Newton in the Garden's Exposition Hall after Clay finished his workout.

Much slower than the fleet-footed, agile champion, Folley continued to concentrate on solid left hooks to the body and fast right-hand counter-punches to the head. Folley will be giving away age, height, weight and reach. He may decide to gamble on a knockout.

"I'm going to try," he said.

Sikes Bids For Win on Home Links

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Dan Sikes has his hometown rooting for him in the Jacksonville Open, but the 36-year-old lawyer says he thinks it's harder to win in golf at home than it is on the road.

"Even Arnold Palmer says the same thing," Jacksonville's only native son on the pro tour said Thursday after grabbing a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $100,000 tournament here.

"I was really nervous," added Sikes after his five-under-par 67 on the wind-raked Deerwood Club course. "It's hard not to let your mind stray when you see somebody you know all the way around the course.

"And I think you try too hard at home and get all tightened up because you want to win so badly in front of your friends," Sikes said. "I know I'd rather win the Jacksonville Open than any other tournament except the real big ones like the Masters."

Victory in the Jacksonville tournament would end a two-year drought for the Florida Law School graduate who last won the 1965 Cleveland Open.

Colbert, who attended Kansas State on a football scholarship before turning to golf, has had little success since joining the tour a year ago. The 26-year-old father of three girls had a hot putting round to make his biggest surge as a pro, sinking birdie putts of 20, 20, 12 and 10 feet.

Brewer, edged by a stroke by Doug Sanders a year ago for the Jacksonville title, said he was playing well "and putting pretty good." The Dallas, Tex., veteran—who will be 35 on Sunday in the tournament showdown—was helped by a 35-foot approach shot which dropped for a birdie on the 16th hole.

Julius Boros, who won the Citrus Open last Sunday, shot a 77, a stroke back of Don January, who won a new car with a hole-in-one on the 156-yard eighth hole.

Kirksville Favored To Keep Indoor Title

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)-Kirksville State is favored to win its ninth straight Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association indoor track and field title Saturday night.

The Bulldogs won the meet last year with 57 points. This year, Coach Kenneth Gardner has 10 returning lettermen who scored 36 points in 1966.

Pirates Rated Prime Contender

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Take the National League batting champ, Matty Alou, as the leadoff man. Put Maury Wills in the No. 2 spot. Then follow with proven hitters like Robert Clemente, Willie Stargell and Donn Clendennon. Add the whiz short-second combo of Gene Alley and Bill Mazeroski, plus the catcher and pitcher.

No wonder the wise guys are lining up behind the Pittsburgh Pirates as the probable pennant winner in the National League.

The Pirates came close last year when they led through the dog days of August and early September. They still were in the race until the day before the season ended although loss of a final three-game series to San Francisco dropped them into third place.

The thin pitching line has been bolstered by the addition of Juan Pizarro from the Chicago White Sox and Dennis Ribant from the New York Mets.

"I like my chances better than I did last year at this time," said Manager Harry Walker. "The Phillies and Braves will be trouble. In fact, the whole league is tough.

"This has got to be one of the most exciting races in the history of the National League. You have to get the break to win. Each man has to come up to his potential and you can't have injuries to key men.

"My first year here we had to change the thinking of a lot of people. Last year we had to do much less. This year everybody is doing it my way because they know the way I think.

"Wills will help us with his glove at third base. We should have a real fine infield. I expect Maury to come in and talk to the pitcher at times. Maz and Alley never open up too much.

"I had Wills talking to the players about base stealing the other day. We'll do it again later. I don't expect everybody to start stealing bases but he will help get them in the right attitude. That was one of the reasons we got him."

Alley at shortstop and Mazeroski at second base were the key men last year when the Pirates broke the major league double play record with 215.

Clendenon, a 6-foot-3½-inch, 210-pound first baseman, rounds out the infield. He hit 28 homers, inocked in 98 runs and was one of five regulars who hit .299 or better last season. Alley also hit. 299, Maz batted. 262.

Alou platooned with Manny Mota in center field, and the two drove pitchers to drink. Alou led the league at .342 and Mota hit .332, second best, although Manny was not up at bat enough times to be an official contender.

Clemente was the Most Valuable Player in the league with his .317 average, 29 homers and 119 runs batted in. Stargell in left field hammered 33 homers, knocked in 102 runs and hit .315.

Catching was a Pirate problem last year because Jim Pagliaroni faded to .235. Down the stretch Jesse Gonder (.225) was the No. 1 receiver. Pagliaroni came to camp 16 pounds lighter and probably will recapture his starting job.

The pitching let the Pirates down last year. The hitters combined for a club average of .279, the best in the majors, but the pitchers gave up about four runs a game.

Frederick Brothers On All-MCAU Five

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Two brothers, Gail and Virgle Frederick of Drury landed first team berths on the all-Missouri College Athletic Union basketball squad picked by league coaches and announced Thursday.

Others on the team are Tom Sponcil of William Jewell, and Jay Moore and Gary Ulrich, both of Culver-Stockton.

Second team selections also included a set of brothers, Jerry and Gary Wells of Westminster, along with Mike Mattox of Graceland, Lawrence (Skip) Shear of Tarkio and Larry Holley of William Jewell.

Morehouse, Vanduser Gain Tourney Semifinals

VANDUSER--Morehouse and Vanduser advanced into a head-on meeting in tonight's semifinals of the Vanduser men's independent basketball tournament by nailing down triumphs in last night's concluding quarterfinal action.

High-scoring Morehouse breezed in by piling up a stunning 117-54 margin over Hahs Machine Works of Sikeston. The Vanduser five took the opposite route by narrowly escaping Morley's late comeback bid to squeeze out an 86-84 decision.

Following the semifinals opener between Gray Ridge and Matthews at 7 p.m., Morehouse and Vanduser will return to battle it out at 8:30 p.m. for the remaining berth in Saturday night's championship game.

Morehouse raced to a 30-21 lead in the first quarter of last night's opener and went on to increase its lead in each period as Hahs was unable to match the torrid pace. Don Savage bombed in 43 points to pace the victors, who also received 36 points from Dale Sexton and 20 by Ron Ford. Bill Dickens topped the Sikeston squad with 23.

The Vanduser-Morley contest seesawed back and forth until the hosts pulled away to a 63-52 lead at the end of the third quarter and appeared on the way to wrapping up a comfortable victory margin. However, Morley caught fire in the final frame and whittled the deficit to the final two-point difference with seconds to go. Vanduser then was able to hold the ball until the buzzer sounded and foil the Morley comeback bid.

Ken Wages scored 21 points to lead a Vanduser attack which included four other double figure scorers, but yielded game honors to Dennis Holland and Jim Abernathy who cashed in 22 each for Morley.

The totals:

Morehouse	30	29	31	27	117
Hahs Machine	21	15	6	12	54

Morehouse scoring-- Savage 43, Sexton 26, Ford 20, Landers 14, Bryant 10, Crumpecker 4.

Hahs Machine Works -- Dickens 23, Hahs 14, R. Guethle 6, T. Guethle 6, Harlan 5.

Vanduser	14	21	28	23	86

Vanduser scoring -- Wages 21, Owens 17, Taylor 17, Carter 15, Bell 12, Graviett 4.

Morley scoring -- Holland 22, Abernathy 22, Morgan 14, Farrare 8, Isaacs 8, Ferrenburg 6, May 4.

St. Benedict's and OBU Favored in NAIA Semis

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Top-seeded St. Benedict's of Kansas and Oklahoma Baptist's pressure-loving defending champions are favored to move into Saturday night's finals in a NAIA basketball tourney which has followed the form chart almost exactly.

St. Benedict's, 25-2 with 17 straight victories squares off at 7 p.m. CST, tonight against Morris Harvey of West Virginia, 28-3, a club it defeated 81-72 in the finals of the Quincy, Ill., tourney in December.

Oklahoma Baptist, 24-6 after a 66-65 cliff-hanger over tough Southwestern Louisiana, goes to the post at 9 against Central Washington, 70-68 upset winner over No. 2 seeded Eastern New Mexico. Central is 26-3.

Except for [illegible]'s loss, the semifinals would have matched the top four seeded teams. The Seeding committee watched all of its first eight seeded clubs reach Thursday night's quarterfinals. Veteran observers said this was unprecedented for the 30-year-old tourney.

St. Benedict's coach Ralph Nolan almost smiled over his team's excellenth 62 per cent shooting and excellent effort in an impressive 88-73 romp over St. Mary's of Texas. Darryl Jones led the Kansas team with 25 points and 17 rebounds.

"Well, at least we get to stay all week," Nolan said.

Moberly Draws Cameron Again

HUTCHINSON, Kan. AP - It will almost be a repeat of a year ago for Moberly, Mo., and Cameron of Oklahoma when they square off tonight in the semifinals of the National Junior College basketball tournament.

They met in the championship game in 1966, and Moberly won. Moberly came into the tournament this year ranked No. 1 and a favorite to repeat [illegible] honors.

Moberly gained its semifinal berth Thursday night by defeating Boise, Idaho, 70-50. High for Moberly was Bernie Copeland with 21 points. Tops for Boise was Keith Burke with 12.

Two Texas teams, Ranger and San Jacinto, meet in semifinal play also tonight.

Derby Hopeful Goes for Fifth Win in Row

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grand Premiere, who has moved into the top echelon of the Kentucky Derby prospects, goes after his fifth straight victory of the season Saturday in the $45,000-added Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds.

While better known 3-year-olds, such as Reflected Glory, Ruken and Tumble Wind, were building up reputations in rich races at Santa Anita and Hialeah Park, Mrs. Joe W. Brown kept her son of My Babu at the New Orleans Track, where he romped in all of his four starts. The last was in the LeComte Handicap on Feb. 25.

The 1⅛-mile Louisiana Derby, feature of the final program at the Fairgrounds, should furnish a real test for Grand Premiere. He showed he was sharp by sizzling one-half mile in 46 4-5 seconds Wednesday.

Conditions of the race call for Grand Premiere to carry 120 pounds, six less than Harvey Peltier's Diplomat Way. After showing little since winning the rich Arlington-Washington Futurity early last fall, Diplomat Way looked a little more like himself with a sprint victory last Saturday.

Legislature Calls for Tax Sharing Plan

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Both houses of the legislature asked Congress today to adopt some tax sharing plan with the states.

The proposal, endorsed by the National Governors' Conference and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, has been proposed in all states.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, an officer of the Council of State Governments, said similar proposals already have passed in Texas, Illinois, New York and Montana.

There was little debate in the House although some members suggested it was a futile gesture. The Senate debated the proposal almost two hours.

Sen. William B. Waters, D-Liberty, sponsoring the proposal, agreed the Senate was breaking a precedent in memorializing Congress.

But he said it is time to start telling Congress how the states feel about the government preempting practically all sources of revenue, then telling the states how they should spend federal grants.

Sen. Thomas G. Woolsey, R-Versailles, called it a step in the right direction.

"The trouble is," he said, "we now have professional legislators in Washington who don't come home to talk with their constituents."

He criticized what he called "goofy programs that strip the states of their powers."

Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, said the trouble is the legislature has neglected its responsibilities in too many fields —"we've stuck our heads in the sand and have become a bunch of sacred cow protectors."

The resolution passed the Senate 24-4.

Continuation of Food Stamp Program Urged

WASHINGTON AP -- Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., and the National Grange called Thursday for Congress to put the nation's food stamp program on a permanent basis.

Authority to appropriate funds for the program, started in 1964, expires June 30. It has been estimated that about two million persons in 857 areas will be taking part in the program by that date.

Mrs. Sullivan, one of the original backers of the plan, said a permanent program, limited only by the funds Congress appropriates each year, would not constitute a risk of overexpansion or excessive cost.

She told the House Agriculture Committee the program should go forward "not wither and die after so dramatically establishing its value to this nation. . ."

Eligible families exchange the amount of money they normally would spend for food for an allotment of food coupons worth more under the program. They then use the coupons--as they would cash -- to buy more and better food at local grocery stores.

Harry L. Graham, legislative representative of the grange, backed the program but said a problem exists for migratory persons who do not live long enough in one locality to qualify for the distribution of either surplus foods or food stamps.

Ward 2: Terry Hawkins and Dick Twitty, incumbents, have filed for this two-year term.

TV Stars Shun Short, Short Skirts

AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Short, short skirts on women of all ages, sizes and shapes may be commonplace all over America, but the only place one is likely to run into high style around the hemline on television is in the variety programs.

It isn't that performers like Lucille Ball and Eva Gabor are not fashion - conscious. They are, but they are even more conscious that fashion is fickle and that re- runs of comedy programs are very profitable.

In many current Lucy shows, the actress appears in smart two-piece suits—and invariably the skirt discreetly covers the knees. Miss Gabor who in her present role of an incredibly urban soul in "Green Acres" incredibly bucolic setting, probably has the most chic wardrobe in television, but rarely reveals a knee cap.

But Carol Burnett turned up Sunday night on the Smothers Brothers variety hour in a short sequin dinner dress. Peggy Cass occasionally wears miniskirts and white stockings on her panel show, "To Tell the Truth."

They are permitted to. There is little rerun value in variety and panel shows.

Comedy shows, particularly Lucille Ball's series, have long lives as reruns. Some of those early "I Love Lucy" shows have been repeated as often as 14 times in 15 years.

Safest shows, from the standpoint of showing age, are the period pieces. After all the cowboys and dance hall hostesses of the 1880s are no different in dress now than they were in Gary Cooper's heyday.

Laureen Bacall will participate in a documentary about her late husband, Humphrey Bogart, now in production by David Wolper for broadcast next season. She has no connection—nor will have— with ABC's "Bogart" special on April 23, a product of a pair of British documentarians. Because of her attitude toward the upcoming ABC show, Richard Burton, originally set to do the narration, has pulled out.

TOO MUCH IDLENESS, I have observed, fills up a man's time much more completely, and leaves him less his own master, than any sort of employment whatsoever.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer Reports

JEFFERSON CITY -- This week was largely spent in perfecting the Appropriation Bills which amount to $1,108,000,000. This money is for the general operation of the State of Missouri, plus recommended improvements and increases which the Governor and the Legislators feel are necessary for the progress of the State of Missouri in keeping with our sound principal requiring that we spend no more money than we take in in the State of Missouri. These bills will be finally passed by the House next week, in which I shall go into a little more detail concerning some of the appropriations.

House bill 19 was passed which gives the state some authority to issue injunctions to stop fraudulent business people. An example would be professional con - men, who come into an area for a few days to fix furnaces, pave driveways, side houses, etc., cheat the people and then are gone before any action can be taken by local authorities. This bill is recommended by both the Attorney General and the Governor.

House bill 31 was passed which will allow a judge to permit a person to use their chauffeurs license or operators license in lieu of bale, when arrested for a misdemeaner on our streets and highways. Of course, the judge will have the authority to decide if this will be acceptable in a specific case.

House bill 129 was passed which will create the new Department of Committee Affairs in the State of Missouri.

House bill 62 was passed which allows the Board of Education of the district to estimate average daily attendance for the ensuing year instead of the average daily attendance for the preceding year, in receiving their state aid.

House bills 140 and 141 were perfected which abolishes the law concerning marriage between white people, negroes and mongolians in the State of Missouri, which presently makes such marriages felonious in nature.

House bill 258 was perfected which would guarantee all teachers at least 30 minutes uninterupted for their lunch.

Cadillac has an entry in every price range.

Medium-price. 1965 Sedan de Ville

Low-price. 1964 Sedan de Ville

No matter what price car you are planning to buy, you owe it to yourself to consider Cadillac. First, there is the great new 1967 Cadillac. Noticeably more agile in its handling, smoother and quieter in its operation, more luxurious in its appointments . . . it is by far the finest Cadillac in history. However, if a new Cadillac is presently not feasible, your authorized dealer now has a wide selection of previously owned Cadillacs at just about any price you wish to pay. And that price will buy more luxury, distinction and motoring pleasure than a similarly priced car of lesser stature. For example, both the 1965 and 1964 models shown provide you with a big 340-horsepower V-8 engine . . . Turbo Hydra-Matic transmission . . . power brakes and steering . . . cornering lights...and many other conveniences. So when you think of your next car—think of Cadillac. New or previously owned, in whatever price range you choose, Cadillac is sure to reward you with unsurpassed motoring enjoyment.

St. Patrick's Day Tradition

Almost as traditional for St. Patrick's Day as "the wearin' of the green" is the servin' of corned beef.

Corned beef and cabbage . . . corned beef hash . . . thick corned beef sandwiches. . . whatever your preference, that flavorful meat is a timely choice. Corned beef is quite likely to be a feature item in food stores this week, too, though of course this needn't be the only time you serve it.

Made from fresh brisket of beef, this meat really has nothing to do with corn. The term "corned" comes form an old Norse world, "korn," meaning grain, as a grain of salt. "Corned" beef, of course, is salt-cured.

The salt-brine preserving takes about a month. During the whole process, in plants using the U.S. Department of Agriculture's meat inspection service, the meat is under controlled sanitary conditions. Your assurance of this wholesome preparation is the round inspection stamp marked on the wrapper or the meat itself by inspectors in USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Long, slow cooking is needed to develop the flavor properly. But it needs no special attention. Just simmer over low heat about an hour for each pound.

The secret to nice, juicy corned beef is to let the meat cool slightly in its cooking juices, advise USDA home economists. They also offer the following glaze to glamorize your corned beef and suggest two tasty recipes for taking care of leftovers.

GLAMORIZING GLAZE

1/2 t dry mustard
1/2 t flour
1/4 t salt
2 egg yolks, beaten
3/4 cup milk, scalded
2T lemon juice

Mix mustard, flour and salt in top of double boiler. Add beaten yolks and beat well. Add milk slowly. Cook until thick, then add lemon juice. Spread glaze generously over meat which is in an open roasting pan. Bake at 400 degrees F. until glaze is set (about 20 minutes.

CORNED BEEF SANDWICH TREAT

2 cups ground cooked corned beef
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
2 T milk
2 T salad dressing
1/4 cup chopped chives
2 t prepared horseradish
2 t prepared mustard
3 large English muffins, split and toasted
12 dill pickle slices

Soften cream cheese. Add milk and salad dressing and blend well. Combine cream cheese mixture, corned beef, chives, horseradish and mustard. Mix well. Spread approximately 1/3 cup sandwich filling on toasted side of each English muffin. Garnish each sandwich with 2 dill pickle slices. Broil slowly until heated through, about 10 minutes. 6 sandwiches.

GARDEN CRISP CORNED BEEF SALAD

2 cups julienne-style cooked corned beef
1 cup chopped fresh spinach
1/2 head lettuce, separated
1 small onion, thinly sliced
Italian or French dressing

Toss together corned beef, spinach, lettuce, onion and enough Italian or French dressing to moisten. 6 servings.

P-TA to Buy Equipment With Project Proceeds

The executive committee of the Southwest School Parent-Teacher Association met Monday night.

President Barbara Hitchcock called the meeting to order and Principal Jack Cothern gave the invocation. Both the secretary and the treasurer were absent so the minutes of February were read by Mrs. Shelby Scarbrough and Mrs. Hitchcock gave the financial report and read a thank you letter from the Brownies for a $25 campership given to them from the P-TA. The membership chairman was asked to be looking for a movie to be seen by Mrs. Watts' fifth grade room. The class won the membership contest.

Cothern reported that the third quarter ends Wednesday and report cards will go home April 5th. Tests will be given to the sixth grade Tuesday through Thursday. He also expressed his appreciation to the women who worked at the school election.

Mrs. Hitchcock was authorized to order the playground equipment for the school with money from proceeds of P-TA's fund raising projects.

The next executive meeting will be at 7 p.m. April 3 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Clayton, 1020 Ruth. There was no further business and the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Evelyn Barnett.

IF YOU HATE TO IRON...

You'll Love an ELECTRIC DRYER FOR PERMANENT PRESS CLOTHING!

Permanent Press needs a dryer. In fact, manufacturers emphasize that a dryer should be used for Permanent Press garments. Why? Because these new fabrics need accurately controlled drying, in gentle heat, to come out looking freshly-ironed without ironing.

Because an electric dryer is FLAMELESS, you're assured of accurately controlled, gentle heat. There are no "hot spots" to set wrinkles because uniform electric heat relaxes fibers — while gentle tumbling smoothes wrinkles. And, Permanent Press garments are kept in motion as they are cooled, retaining their flat seams and sharp creases. They look neat and smooth without ironing. An electric dryer is the perfect dryer for Permanent Press garments — and perfect for anything else you dry! Drying clothes electrically is economical, too. It costs an average family less than $2 a month. The dryer itself costs up to $40 LESS than a dryer that isn't FLAMELESS. And a FREE Wiring Allowance covers the cost of installation for most people.

Scott City Protests Cape Airport Runway

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A protest filed by the city council of Scott City over the alignment of the new runway at municipal airport is causing a delay in the awarding of a contract for the runway construction.

Scott City Mayor Nevan Fisher said that the protest, filed with both the federal aviation agency and the city of Cape Girardeau, was based on noise and safety factors.

However, he added today that the problem does not appear to be as serious as was first thought.

A meeting was held Tuesday between Cape Girardeau and Scott City officials and the FAA, and the Cape Girardeau City Council plans to meet with the Scott City Council Friday night in an attempt to resolve the problem.

The FAA has informed the city that until the matter is resolved, the formal offer of the federal matching grant will not be made.

This has the effect of holding up the awarding of a construction contract, bids for which were taken on Feb. 21.

Frederick said a bid can usually be held 30 days before action is required. Next Tuesday, when the council next plans to meet, will be the 28th day and Frederick said he would like to be able to award the contract then.

Scott City Mayor Fisher and City Attorney Thomas Arnold, met with three FAA officials from Kansas City and the Cape Girardeau representatives Tuesday morning.

The Scott City officials were told that the present alignment of the runway is the best one which could have been attained.

"We feel that neither the safety nor the noise factor is going to be justified," Frederick told the council today. "Nothing could be accomplished by moving the runway."

City officials said that the FAA concurs in the city's view that the alignment is the best one available.

It is true, they said, that a straight line extension of the runway would pass over the southwest edge of Scott City.

Frederick pointed out, swinging the axis of the runway in either direction would make the situation worse. A northerly swing would bring airplanes over the major part of the city and a southerly adjustment would line the runway with the school.

The approach pattern for the new runway, it was reported today, will not be over Scott City, but will be to the west of that community.

Choice of Right Cotton Variety Important Step

By Joe Scott
Extension Cotton Specialist

PORTAGEVILLE -- Knowing your farm, its soil types and disease problems will aid you in choosing a cotton variety that will permit maximum efficient production of high quality lint. The delta region has vast differences in soils and associated diseases. These differences may vary. Selecting the right variety is the first step toward profitable cotton production.

Until recently, yield has been the major consideration in selecting a cotton variety. Growers are now finding many other considerations, in addition to yield, necessary to securing the best price and efficiency in production. Staple length, earliness of crop, gin turnout, plant type, boll size, storm resistance, and plant height are important. Lint quality characteristics of a variety also affect price. Disease resistance helps insure production and quality potentials. Progress growers are now aware of the need for adapted disease resistant varieties with superior fiber properties necessary to fulfill both producer and industry needs.

Local experimental results can be used as a guide in selecting a variety or varieties that will fit your farm and industry needs. However, remember that the performance of any variety may be influenced annually by environmental conditions. Experimental results of at least three years duration should be considered necessary to estimate lint production and quality capabilities.

In Missouri special consideration should be given to use of early maturing, disease-resistant varieties to avoid production of fiber deteriorated by early frosts and diseases.

Varieties suggested for Missouri in 1967 are essentially the same as those recommended in 1966 with minor changes. Delapine 45A replaces DPL 45 and Auburn 56 will be deleted in 1968 as no seed is being grown in Missouri.

1967 VARIETY RECOMMENDATIONS ARE:

Sandy loam, loam and clay loam (including those infested with verticillium wilt) -- Deltapine 45A, Auburn M, Stoneville 213, Rex SL, Auburn 56, Deltapine Smooth Leaf.

Sandy Soils (especially those infested with fusarium wilt root-knot nematode disease) -- Auburn M and Auburn 56

Clay or "gumbo" Soils -- Rex Smoothleaf, and Deltapine 45 A.

Late plantings (all soils after May 15) -- Auburn M

McClintocks' Long Service PSC Record

JEFFERSON CITY -- E. L. McClintock, public service commissioner, will retire in April from PSC after serving as commissioner longer than any in the history of the agency. Marvin E. Jones, Dexter, attorney, has been appointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to fill the position.

Judge McClintock, called "dean" of the PSC, was born Dec. 13, 1889, at Farmington. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClintock. His father was an educator.

The Judge was appointed to the Commission by the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in 1945. He was reappointed in 1949, 1955 and 1961 and has served under five Missouri governors.

Prior to appointment Judge McClintock, lived at Cape Girardeau 35 years. He was an official court reporter there and has spent more than 50 years in the courts of the State. He was admitted to the Missouri Bar in 1925 and last year was named senior counselor by the Missouri Bar Association.

While living at Cape Girardeau, he served six years as chairman of the county Democratic committee and the tenth congressional Democratic committee. He was also a member of the state Democratic committee. He is a past president of the Cape Girardeau County Bar association and served six years as president of the Cape Girardeau board of education.

A former president of the Midwest Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, Judge McClintock is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

Judge McClintock has two children, a son, E. L. McClintock, Jr., Farmington attorney; and a daughter, Mrs. Harold G. Gallagher, Manhattan, Kan. He has eight grandchildren.

THE CASE OF SANFORD BOMSTEIN

There is an interesting story involving the friendship between Sen. Tom Dodd and Sanford Bomstein who loaned $5,000 to Dodd in 1958 and raised $42,804 for him at a D. C. reception in 1963, part of which was used to pay Bomstein back.

Bomstein is a former cigar-store owner in Bridgeport, Conn., who moved to Washington to conduct four swinging nightclubs and restaurants. He operates the "rocket room" on New York Avenue where the teenage swingers congregate. It is the most popular rock 'n' roll rendezvous in downtown Washington. Alongside it is "The Famous," a hillbilly restaurant. In addition, Bomstein operates the "Shelter Room" in Southeast Washington and once operated the "Crazy Horse" in Georgetown until the Georgetown Citizens Association determined to close up "The Georgetown Strip," at which time Bomstein moved out.

His record with the police is good.

Bomstein has also been president of the Food and Beverage Association of the District of Columbia and as such was active in appearing before Congressional committees on behalf of liquor dealers. He has wanted to keep the drinking age in the District of Columbia at 18 instead of 21, an age which brings teenagers flocking into the District of Columbia from adjacent Maryland and Virginia on weekends.

Bomstein is described by friends as a man who enjoyed basking in the shadow of an important personage, hence his money-loaning and money-raising for Dood. He appears to have done more for Dodd than Dodd did for him.

Shortly before Bomstein helped raise the $12,804 at the 1963 "D. C. Reception for Dodd," the senator from Connecticut was being pressed by internal revenue on a previous income tax payment. He owed the government $13,500 and internal revenue notified him that it had waited for payment as long as it could. If there was further delay, IRS agents threatened to open his books.

This was something Dodd obviously did not want. At this point he borrowed $7,500 from Lazarus Hayman, a Connecticut financier who operates the Gateway Finance Company. Dodd had secured an appointment for Sam Hayman, son of the financier, as assistant U.S. Attorney in Hartford. Since Dodd is a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee he had influence with the justice department and had no trouble getting the appointment.

After borrowing the $7,500 from Hayman, Dodd needed $6,000 more to fulfill the $13,500 debt to internal revenue. So he transferred $6,000 from the D. C. reception funds raised by Bomsiein to Dodd's personal account in the Riggs Bank and with it paid internal revenue $6,000.

Six months later, around February, 1964, when Dodd's accountant was preparing his income tax returns, he discovered the $6,000 taken from the "D. C. Reception" fund and warned Dodd that this would have to be treated either as income or a loan. If a loan, he advised Dodd that it would have to be repaid before the 1964 election campaign was over. He advised Dodd that it could be repaid from another campaign fund.

This latter advice is important because it shows that the money raised for Dodd was considered as campaign money, not as personal gifts, as the senator now alleges.

Senator Dodd waited six months, then in October, 1964, secured another loan from his friend Lazarus Hayman, which he paid to the Dodd for senate committee.

NAHA, Okinawa -- Staff Sergeant Willie Curtis, whose mother is Mrs. Bryant Rodgers of 300 Brooklyn St., Charleston, Mo., has received an Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service certificate of appreciation at Naha AB, Okinawa.

Sergeant Curtis, an aircraft loadmaster, was presented the award for his part in the rescue of the pilot of a crashed F-4C Phantom II aircraft in Southeast Asia.

The sergeant is assigned at Naha as a member of the Pacific Air Forces which provides air power to maintain the U.S. defense posture in the Pacific and conducts air operations in Southeast Asia.

The Charleston High School graduate is married to the former Mary F. Gordon, daughter of Mrs. Dora Gordon of 615 Lon Moore St., Charleston.

Sergeant Curtis' father is Will Curtis of Tunica, Miss.

BLYTHEVILLE AIR FORCE BASE, ARK. -- Colonel Roger L. Hicks, Jr., 42nd Air Division commander, has been nominated by President Lyndon Johnson to be promoted to the rank of Brigadier General. The nomination is now awaiting confirmation by the Senate.

Colonel Hicks received notification of the promotion March 7. Effective date of the promotion will be in the near future.

Fortune has it that Colonel Hicks celebrated his 45th birthday March 5, received notification March 7 and celebrated his 15th wedding anniversary March 8.

He enlisted in the U.S. Army Air Corps as an aviation cadet in October 1941 and received his wings and commission as a second lieutenant in 1942.

In World War II, Colonel Hicks served in North Africa, Sicily, and the Naples-Foggia area of Italy. During this period he completed 56 aerial missions.

After completing the National War College he was assigned to the Strategic Air Command in 1960 as vice commander, 3970th Combat Support Group, Torrejon Air Force, Spain.

In September 1963 Colonel Hicks was assigned to the 494th Bomb Wing as vice commander and commander of the 494th from January 1965 till August 1966.

He assumed command of the 42nd Air Division in August 1966. The 97th Bomb Wing, 454th Bomb Wing, Columbus AFB, Miss., and 2nd Bomb Wing, Barksdale AFB, La., are under his command.

THE PEACE OF THE UPPER ROOM

In the last week of Jesus' life there was a great flurry and commotion in the streets of Jerusalem. His enemies were in a hurry. Time was about to run out on them. They wanted to get him apprehended and crucified quickly. In contrast in the Upper Room where Jesus met with His disciples all was calm and full of peace. There was trust in God and His purposes even in the midst of conflict. This is a contrast that can be experienced in our own lives when we place our lives in God's care; tense activity can be replaced by calm purposefulness. Why not worship with us at TRINITY BAPTIST CHURCH, 110 E. Center Street, this Sunday, as as we commune with Christ begin to experience some of the peace of the Upper Room.

Sincerely

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

PALM SUNDAY

"And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way. And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord: Hosanna in the highest. And Jesus entered into Jerusalem . . ."

St. Mark 11, 8:11

Thus in a few short sentences St. Mark gives us a picture of the first Palm Sunday: Jesus triumphally entering into Jerusalem but knowing full well the trial that was ahead of him. He was led and followed by the faithful. How many would retain that faith in the week to come? Palm Sunday is not only a day of triumph but also a day of questioning and reevaluating. Is the power of our faith strong enough to withstand the shock of a personal betrayal, a personal Calvary? We see around us throughout the world many who have that power.

When Redemption Is Complete

The How of the Resurrection

By Commissioner Samuel Hepburn

WHEN THE Apostle Paul wrote, "Some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?" he was quite accurate in his prophesying. These questions have long intrigued mankind, Christian and non-Christian alike.

Indeed, many persons who have already accepted by faith the fact of a bodily resurrection cannot at all comprehend the how of the resurrection. At the same time, nonbelievers insist that belief in such an apparently unscientific phenomenon is impractical and foolish.

It is true that natural, scientific law provides indisputable proof of certain facts concerning the disposition of the body after death. The bank of common knowledge reveals, for instance, that the human body completely decays after death, returning to the dust from which it was formed.

Science also has shown that particles of the disintegrated body may even contribute to the formation of other beings. So the question naturally follows, "How can the billions of particles which now constitute the body, which is dissolved at death, be brought together again on the resurrection morning?"

There are facts available in the scientific world of knowledge which, coupled with the assurance that God's power is limitless, ought to convince the most stubborn skeptic of the possibility of a bodily resurrection as ordained by God.

Even the scientific fact often has the ring of incredibility. Science has shown, for example, that every human being loses something like a seventh part of the matter of his body and acquires a seventh of new matter every year as body cells die and are replaced.

Carried to its logical conclusion, this fact shows that every person comes into possession of an entirely different body every seven years. The childhood body is not that of youth; nor the body of young adulthood that of old age. Every particle changes, yet the person to whom the body belongs continues to be the same individual. What a mystery is involved in this proven scientific fact!

There are some unbelievers who claim that, since the human body disintegrates and is scattered at death, God would be extremely unjust to place punishment upon any body that might be resurrected, as it would be impossible to be sure that the resurrected body consisted of the same particles of which the rebellious body had been formed.

The fallacy of this line of reasoning is exposed by an incident recently reported in the press.

A man escaped from prison and succeeded for thirty years in hiding his true identity. During those years he established a home, married, raised a family and achieved a position of esteem in the community to which he had fled as a fugitive.

However, his criminal record still remained on the books; the state in which he had committed his crime still had a claim on him. He was eventually discovered and taken back into custody.

Now one could envision the man making a very scientific claim in court. He might disclaim any responsibility for the original crime and deny his escape from prison, reasoning that, since his body had undergone at least four complete cellular changes since the crime was committed, and since the hand which performed the deed no longer existed, his present hand being composed completely of a new matter, it would be unjust to punish his present body for the wrong done by his former body. Being a "new man," according to his reasoning, he should not have to suffer for the deeds of the "old man".

This plea, of course, would be laughed out of court, for while the man had indeed undergone several body changes, he was nonetheless the same person he had been thirty years before.

Every person living is an illustration of the same principle. Science informs this author that he has had approximately nine different bodies since he was dedicated by his parents under the Salvation Army flag, and he has undergone numerous physical changes; yet, his identity has remained.

Similarly, the body raised from the dead at the time of the resurrection, though differing in composition, will be the same body which lived and died in this earthly sphere.

This is a sure thing; the principle of identity which governs the body in this life will govern it at the resurrection. It is a principle which remains constant in the ever-flowing torrent of life.

It holds true in every area of nature where there is life.

From the acorn there springs the little slender shoot, then the sapling, then the monarch of the forest. But the mighty oak and the germinant shoot are one and the same vegetable existence, the same being.

The butterfly which unfolds its multicolored wings in the summer sun is the same creature that was but lately a chrysalis -- and before that a crawling worm and before that a tiny embryo in a specklike egg.

And yet, does there remain in the man, the oak, the butterfly a single one of the ponderable molecules which existed in the embryo, the germ, the egg? Science says no; yet it is the same man, the same vegetable, the same insect.

Paul discussed this impressive truth at great length and wrote about it in the fifteenth chapter of I Corinthians: "But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

". . . that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die: And that which thou sowest thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain:

"But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body.

"All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beats, another of fishes, and another of birds.

"There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

"So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: It is sown in dishonor: it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power: It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

"The beauty of faith is in its articulation—not in the poetry of words, but in action. There is nothing passive about faith. It is a personal force which demands to be translated into constructive action."

That is the creed of James H. Boren, of The Partners.

Jim Boren was born in a Methodist parsonage in Wheatland, Okla., and his life has been steeped in faith.

In college he thought he might follow his father's footsteps and become a minister, but decided he could do more good in the field of education. After a series of teaching assignments, Jim finally found the niche that gave him the greatest potential for faith in action in the Agency for International Development. It was with the Alliance for Progress program, a partnership of the people of the free American Republics, that Jim conceived and organized The Partners.

The Partners is a person to person program in which organizations, state and city institutions, even individuals, can work with people and groups in Central and South America for social, economic and cultural development through private initiative.

Paper Fashions Shown at Second Ladies Fair

PRIS BURNETT modeled a paper pop over beach top with matching bag and scarf at the paper doll parade fashion show, the second in a series of Ladies Fair programs, sponsored by area IGA stores. She wore a big pink bow on her left big toe.

ABOUT 1,250 WOMEN attended the paper doll parade fashion show and dessert, the second in a series of Ladies Fair programs, sponsored by area IGA stores.

PASTING CONSTRUCTION paper flowers on a plain white paper dress proved that the only limitation is the wearer's imagination. Models were Lillian Burnett, left, and Joyce Coy. The dresses were shown at the second in a series of Ladies Fair programs, sponsored by area IGA stores.

MEMBERS OF THE audience at the paper doll parade fashion show get a closer look at the paper dresses.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE "RELUCTANT" CANDIDATE

Prior to the 1964 elections, a group of enthusiastic citizens optimistically submitted the name of Richard Nixon for contention in their state's presidential primary. While Mr. Nixon might have been primarily interested in becoming president, he apparently wasn't interested primarily in that state's primary. For he requested that his name be scratched from the ballot and the proper officials so scratched it.

Indignant, Mr. Nixon's supporters hustled off to court where they demanded that their mentor's name be ordered placed back on the ballot.

"They can't force a man to run for president if he doesn't want to run," a state official argued generally in opposition. "This is a democracy."

"That's why we've got a right to say who we want for president," retorted the supporters in effect. "If our man wins in the primary and doesn't want to do anything about it, that's his business. But, as citizens, we've got a right to run him."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you place the "reluctant" candidate's name back on the primary ballot?

This is how the Judge ruled: No! The Judge held that a person cannot be injected into a political arena in which he chooses not to be; that it's his right to say where and when he wants to become engaged in politics and to what extent. His hand cannot be forced by outsiders, concluded the Judge, by their entering his name into a contest which he may deem contrary to his political strategy.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God. (Isaiah 59:2, RSV)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, please forgive our sins and cleanse our hearts that we may pray to Thee wholeheartedly. Give us the penitence and faith in Thy forgiving love to confess our sin to Thee. In Jesus' name we ask. Amen.

The tin house put up on the corner of Front and Kingshighway beats the unsightly wooden shacks that were on the site before, but it looks like the Board of Aldermen ought to have demanded a fireproof or substantial building on such a prominent corner. Tin houses should be turned down in the business section of Sikeston.

School notes: Track and baseball were discussed at a meeting held by the grammar school boys Monday morning. Bill Shain was elected captain of the track team and Ned Tanner captain of the baseball team. The first baseball game will be with the Boy Scouts.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I sent for your booklet "Teen - Age Sex And Ten Ways To Cool It" and I tried all ten ways but not one of them worked.

Now I am in very serious trouble (you can guess the type) and my boy friend has suggested four alternates (marriage was not among them.).

Please do not suggest that I go to my parents because I am an orphan. And don't tell me to try religion because I am an atheist. I hope you will not ask me to speak to my counselor because she has gained a lot of weight lately and I think she is the same spot I'm in. Can you help me? -- MISGUIDED ANGEL

Dear Angel: Darn it! I knew I should have added an 11th way to cool it. I should have suggested that you kids use your excess energy on homework so there would be no strength left for anything -- including writing phony letters.

The New Haven postmark is always a tipoff. I receive more clinkers from you birds at Yale than any other group. Knock it off, will you please?

Dear Ann Landers: I am 24. My husband is 26. We've been married for three years. The first two years were fine, but now we have run into serious trouble. The problem is our friends, if you can call them that.

One couple fights constantly and threatens divorce. The second couple is separated but they like to go out on "dates" and are sleeping together. The third couple is divorced but they are sleeping together. It sounds crummy and believe me it is.

Whenever we get together, which is every weekend, everyone sits in front of the TV and gets knee - walking drunk. The conversation is so vulgar I can't stand it. My husband doesn't say much but he seems to enjoy every minute of it.

I came from a divorced family and making my marriage work is the most important thing in the world to me. Please give me some advice before I crack up. -- LONESOME

Dear Lonesome: Make a date with a decent couple next weekend. Your husband spends his weekends with these drunken bums out of habit and the poor boob probably thinks it's the only game in town.

Dear Ann Landers: I can hardly see straight. What do you mean by telling that girl she didn't have to share her soldier husband's letter from Vietnam with his mother. It's obvious that you don't have a son or you'd be singing a different tune.

You should have told that bride to stop the kid stuff -- "This is mine and you can't have it." A bride should be happy to share her letters with her husband's mother -- and I mean every word. No decent son would write a letter to his wife that he would not want his mother to see. -- ENRAGED

Dear En: Sorry, but the advice stands. A wife should let her mother - in - law know when she receives a letter, and she should relate some of the points of mutual interest, but she should not be expected to share her husband's letters with anyone else.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Dear Charlie:

The company had called me several days ago on an emergency condition in that the Chief's (Engineer's) father had suffered a serious heart condition and he was needed home. The boat was at New Albany, Indiana, just across and down the river from Louisville, Ky. It was also to depart early the next morning, and since the call was in the afternoon, I hopped a plane to Louisville and then on to New Albany.

I really drew "spades". For some normal reason I had in mind that we would be going south only to find that this time it was Pittsburgh.

The Ohio was already high from the snow etc. from the East Coast, and the first few days were dry and cold - then it warmed up and started raining, continuously, then cold again and snow.

We made it as far as Point Pleasant, W. Va. last Tuesday morning, where we were informed that the waters had reached flood stage and the next lock and dam had to shut down, halting all traffic east. We weren't by ourselves. There were soon about 10 other boats with their respective tows (barges) all lined up in the general area. In comparison, it looked like Barkett's supermarket parking lot on Friday afternoon.

At Point Pleasant, the Kanawha River junctions here with the Ohio, going south to Charleston, W. Va. - By Thursday morning these tributaries were beginning to fall some and since we had some cargo to drop at Charleston at Dupont's huge plant complex there, thought we would try to run it. Just before entering this river there's a long overspan railroad bridge - The water was still so high our radar antenna must have cleared it by only a foot and a half. We went on to Charleston, dropped our cargo and by that time the Ohio etc. had begun to drop - so back to Point Pleasant where we made up our tow again.

Yesterday afternoon we proceeded east to Pittsburg again, under a warm sun and mid-50 temperature; a far cry from several days ago -

Sincerely,
Bill
(William C. Colwick)

'TIS AN IRISH BLESSING

WE WISH YE...

To the O'Browns.....
To the O'Jones

To the McSmiths ..... and to McFriends Everywhere.....

May the blessed light be on you, light without and light within. May the blessed sunlight shine on you and your heart until it glows like a great fire, so that the Stranger may come and warm himself at it, and also a Friend.

And may the light shine out of the two eyes of you like a candle set in two windows of a house, bidding the wanderer to come in from out of the storm.

And may the blessing of the rain be on you -- the soft, sweet rain. May it fall upon your spirit so that all the little flowers may spring up, and shed their sweetness on the air.

And may the blessing of the great rains be on you; may they beat upon your spirit and wash it fair and clean, and leave there a shining pool where the blue of heaven shines reflected, and sometimes a star. . . .

And may the blessing of the earth be on you - the great and round earth. May you ever have a kindly greeting for them you pass as you're going along the roads. May the earth be soft under you when you lie upon it, tired at the end of the day, and may it rest easy over you, when, at the last, you lie under it; may it rest so lightly over that your soul may be quickly through it, and up, and off, and on its way to God.

May God always bless you, love you and keep you.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, March 17, the 76th day of 1967. There are 289 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1779, the first St. Patrick's Day parade on record in New York City was staged.

On this date:

In 1836, the republic of Texas adopted a Constitution.

In 1861, King Victor Emanuel II was proclaimed ruler of Italy.

In 1891, telephone communications were established between Paris and London.

In 1939, the United States announced it refused to recognize Nazi Germany's annexation of Czechoslovakia.

In 1942, Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived in Australia to become supreme commander for the Southwest Pacific.

Ten years ago — Philippine President Ramon Magsaysay and 25 other persons died when his presidential plane crashed in flames on a mountain on Cebu Island.

Five years ago — The Soviet Union announced the launching of the first of a new series of unmanned earth satellites—the Cosmos I. The satellite was designed to obtain additional data for future manned space flights.

One year ago — An American midget submarine located a missing U.S. H-bomb in the Mediterranean off the coast of Spain. The bomb was lost in the crash of a B52 in the area at the beginning of the month.

Before the American Revolution coffee and tea were used only by the more well to do people.

"Sweater"

The word sweater was used in England as early as 1850 to describe an employer who exacted monotonous work at very low wages. The sweating system was also a term used to describe oppressive industrial conditions in certain trades.

Feedlot Tour Of Four Farms

They observed advancements made in livestock production.

Hunter said all of his starting cattle were on 50 per cent ration for the first five days, up to 70 per cent after the fifth day, and 85 per cent to full ration after 10 days. He continued the ration up to 90 days or the finishing stage and sold direct to the packer.

The group observed a 100 per cent fat heifer operation on the Hunter farm that turns out approximately 1,800 head annually for packers. Hunter tries to have a 200-250 pound gain on each animal in approximately 90-100 days. He uses a maximum 85 per cent ration feed for his feedlot. He uses urea and limestone in his silage before storage.

The Killion feeding operation is in it's first year and has a capacity of 400 fat cattle annually. The lot has fed up to 600 head at peak times. It is fully push-buttom automatic feeding using corn silage and the feedlot is concrete with overhead shelter protecting the cattle from rain and hot weather. One man looks after this operation.

The Dorroh operation uses silage and a ration that is hauled to the feed bunks by automatic unloading trailers. Dorroh uses a silage with urea and limestone added.

The last stop made on the tour was the Cooke farm that has a cow-calf operation in addition to the feedlot. Cooke breeds for high performance and supplies a good percentage of his own feeders for his 150 head feed lot. He also has an operation with an automatic silage feeding system.

Churchill, Manitoba, has a large Eskimo population.

Cuba Davis of Charleston, Dies

CHARLESTON - Cuba Davis, 66, farmer on route three, died Thursday at his home at 7:30 a.m., after an illness.

He was born Nov. 1, 1900 near Charleston and lived here all of his life.

Surviving are one son, Russell Davis, Dorset, Ohio; one stepson, Charles Jordan, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Ethel Gray, both of Chicago; one brother, Bobby Davis, Ullin, Ill.; and five grandchildren.

The body is at the Sparks Funeral Home.

He added that in his opinion: The proposal to cut the required majority for passage of bond issues from two-thirds to 60 per cent has a good chance of approval in the House. It already has passed the Senate.

Annual sessions of the legislature should be continued.

And a constitutional convention should be called to bring Missouri's state government up to date.

Commenting on the work of the reapportioned legislature, Godfrey said:

"Much to the chagrin of the crepe hangers, there has been no urban-rural factionalism in the House and there has been no urban combination."

Godfrey said, however, many other legislative reforms are needed, such as cutting the number of House committees- a project on which Godfrey has made a start. He pointed out the Illinois House has only 20 committees.

Godfrey said the fact that three Democratic factions are vying for power in Jackson County means that "the Jackson County delegation will write probably one of the poorest legislative records that any Jackson County delegation has written for a long, long time."

He said he was not singling out Jackson County for criticism, but merely explaining the difficulties of getting legislation passed under the present system.

Administration sources have said businessmen appear generally to favor the idea. And one top official has said business backing appears to increase as more agencies are considered for inclusion. Among such agencies have been the customs service, the Export-Import Bank, labor mediation services and the oil import functions of the Interior Department.

Labor leaders, on the other hand, have taken the postion they want their own department to represent the workingman in the top echelon of government, in the fashion of the Agriculture Department as spokesman for farmers. They have expressed fear the business interests represented in a consolidated department would ominate.

For one thing, he urged Congress to approve funds requested in the budgets of various federal agencies for establishing what he described as a modern system of planning, programming and budgeting throughout the federal government.

To broaden and strengthen the government's drive for economy and efficiency in all of its operations, Johnson announced, he will establish through executive order an advisory council on cost reduction. The chairman will be the director of the Budget. The secretary of Defense will be among the members.

Johnson recommended two legislative proposals "to improve the quality of government in the years ahead" — a public service education act and an intergovernmental manpower act. The public service education act, Johnson said, would have as its purpose increasing the number of qualified students who choose careers in government. The intergovernmental manpower act, he said, is designed specifically to deal with the varied manpower needs of state and local governments.

RULING FROM THE BENCH

A little old lady being examined for jury duty in a small country town was asked if she knew the defense lawyer.

"Yes," she snapped, "he's a crook."

"And the plaintiff's lawyer?"

"Yes -- he's a crook too."

With that the judge called both lawyers over for a conference. He whispered, "If you ask her if she knows me, I'll fine you for contempt of court."

Hearnes Berates Federalism

ATLANTA, GA. (AP) - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says "creative federalism" is unfair when it makes state expenditures mandatory.

The Missouri governor spoke at a Founders' Day dinner of the West Point Alumi Association Thursday night.

He said the unfairness of "creative federalism" is apparent in two basic areas:

"First, we did not enter the programs with knowledge that we could incur penalties later through new legislation.

"Second, we enter some of these programs and find federal funds later reduced or withdrawn unless we accept later provisions."

He cited the highway beautification and the Medicaid programs as examples of the way the federal governments attempts to penalize states for not funding federal programs.

"I have taken a cautious attitude on implementation of Title 19 (Medicaid)," the governor said. "I do not believe I should commit my state to accepting mandatory requirements which may be changed even in this session of Congress.

Manslaughter Charged in West Plains Death

WEST PLAINS (AP) -- A manslaughter charged was filed today against William D. Wilson, West Plains, whose car smashed into a truck, killing a man Thursday, after he was arrested for investigation in a slaying case.

Wilson, reported absent without leave from the Navy at Key West, Fla., was injured in the accident and was reported in critical condition at the Army Hospital at Ft. Leonard Wood.

John Henson, Springfield, a passenger in the truck, was killed. Jerry Leon Mooneyham, 26, Springfield, the driver, was reported in critical condition.

The chain of events began Wednesday night when Henry E. Gastineau, 57, a Frisco Railroad employe, was shot and killed at his home, 10 miles southeast of here. His wife was beaten and is reported in serious condition.

Sheriff Brack Pace said Wilson was stopped by the Highway Patrol on U.S. 63, north of here. During the questioning, Wilson was asked to show how to start the car, which had an intricate starting system. He started the car and sped away, the sheriff said.

Officers said they were awaiting tests on a .22 caliber rifle found in the trunk of Wilson's car, and blood on his trousers.

Mustang Speeds Off Curve, Driver Injured

He was driving a 1966 Mustang, when he speeded around a curve on highway 60, three miles east of Charleston. The vehicle ran off the road, went down an embankment and overturned.

He suffered face and head cuts, and other injuries. He is in a serious condition.

Two trucks collided yesterday at 1:35 a.m. on a highway nine miles west of Hayti. Both drivers escaped injury.

A 1965 Mack truck was driven by Sanford Wedgeworth, 50, Augusta, Ark. The driver told the highway patrol that a pillow had fallen from the sleeping compartment to the floor. When he picked it up from the floorboard, the vehicle veered into the wrong lane, and struck a 1964 White semi-trailer, driven by Charles O'Rear, 38, Van Buren, the highway patrol reported.

Thursday at 1 a.m. on highway J in Perry county, a 1956 Chevrolet, driven by Guy McClearn, 45, St. Louis, went out of control and down an embankment. He was not injured.

Dodd Pleads Case

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd testified today he had "kind of an aversion" to testimonial dinners and had hoped he could get out of the hole financially some other way.

The Connecticut Democrat, testifying in his own defense at a Senate ethics committee investigation, said he had been unable to get out of debt since his first unsuccessful Senate race in 1956.

He said he didn't think he had "ever solicited anybody" or asked anybody "to buy a ticket to a testimonial dinner," but he testified he had talked to friends "about my financial situation."

"They all knew about it," he said.

"Did you tell them you had personal debts you needed to pay off from these testimonials?" asked chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., referring to a series of fund-raising events for Dodd between 1961 and 1965.

"If so, you ought to say so," Stennis said.

"I'm sure I did," Dodd replied.

Dodd, charged with using campaign contributions for personal expenses, said that every facet of his life and virtually every cent he has spent for the last 11 years have been "intertwined with politics."

"I got into the hole in 1956 and I was never able to get out," Dodd told Stennis. "It was a cumulative thing."

The senator said he often used one loan to repay another. "All of these were what I would call a revolving thing," he said.

"I wish you could have a better recollection," Stennis said.

Dodd: "I had no help from the state Democratic organization in any of my campaigns. The organization was unfriendly to me then and is now. I had to row my own boat. I think that's where my difficulty lies. I had to go it along as best I could."

Dodd first ran for the Senate in 1956 and was defeated, but he was elected two years later and re-electedin 1964.

The committee's investigation centers principally on charges that Dodd used campaign funds for personal expenses, including the payment of loans.

Dodd took the witness chair and offered to answer any questions members of the committee had, without any preliminary statement or any questioning by his own counsel, John F. Sonnett.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., opened the questioning. He turned immediately to $83,788.31 that Dodd had already acknowledged, in a stipulation with the committee, that he had used from a testimonial account to make repayment on loans.

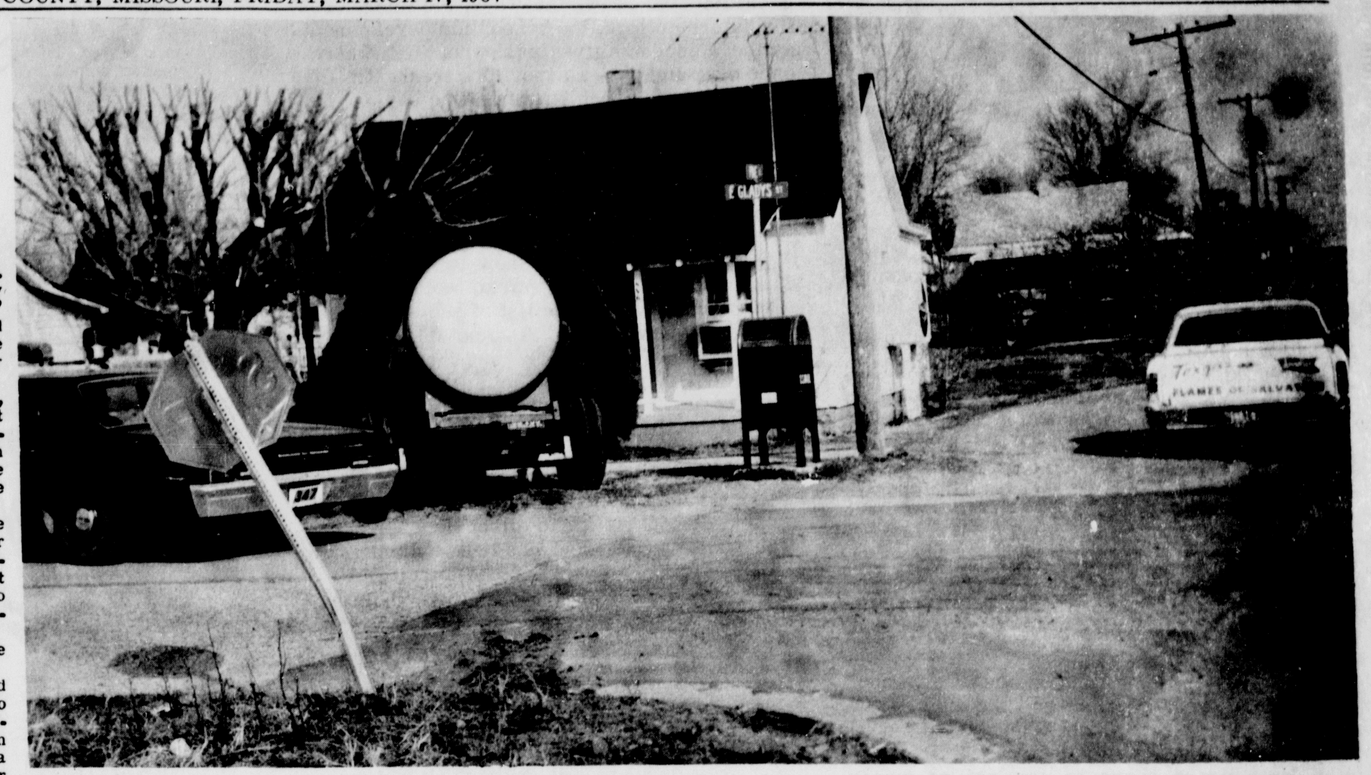
After a huddle Thursday, the bipartisan committee decided to bring in another witness, Edward F. Sullivan, manager of Dodd's Hartford, Conn., office. Sullivan has been described as the man in charge of paying the bills in Dodd's 1964 re-election campaign.

Sonnett said Sullivan is aged, arthritic, and -- as of Thursday -- snow-bound. He added he didn't know when Sullivan could get here.

Also still up in the air was a committee decision on whether to accept in evidence a stack of affidavits swearing that ticket-buyers to testimonials for Dodd intended that Dodd use the money as he saw fit.

T. A. WILSON, executive vice president of the Boeing Company and former Sikeston resident, was one of five receiving the Missouri honor award for distinguished service in engineering from the University of Missouri at a banquet in Columbia today. A bronze medal and citation was presented by Dr. Joseph C. Hogan, dean of the college of engineering.



THE PIN connecting a 1,000-gallon liquid fertilizer tank to the National Gas Co. station wagon, at right, came loose this morning. The 2,000-pound rig bent the stop sign in the foreground and came to rest in the front of the Morris Simmons residence, 846 East Gladys. Tom Hefner, driver of the station wagon, said the tank was empty.

Johnson Delays Cabinet Merger

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson, confronted by labor opposition, told Congress today he is delaying his proposal to merge the departments of Commerce and Labor.

In a special message to Congress, Johnson said he remains convinced the departments should be merged but "further active development of my proposal is necessary before it can be submitted to Congress."

Labor leaders have reacted coolly to the merger proposal since Johnson made it in his State of the Union message Jan. 10. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz confirmed March 15 that top union leaders had registered opposition in a White House session last week.

Johnson said he is asking the President's Advisory Committee on Labor - Management Policy "to consider the proposal in all of its aspects, and particularly to develop means to assure that a free flow of communications will be maintained between the government and the business and labor communities, both through the new department and other governmental channels."

That language in effect served notice that while the proposal is delayed it is not dead. Wirtz had taken the same general line.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 39 states will go on Daylight Saving Time this year, an Associated Press survey showed today.

Among others the score stands this way as of now:

One state, Hawaii, has decided to stay on standard time. Michigan appears certain to follow suit. Five others still are uncertain. Four more have not made up their minds definitely, but probably will switch to Daylight Saving Time.

A law enacted by Congress directs all states except those which exempt themselves — to observe Daylight Saving Time from 2 a.m. the last Sunday in April until 2 a.m. the last Sunday in October.

Any state may exempt itself by adopting a state law to that effect.

So, in the big majority of states, clocks will be put ahead one hour April 30 and remain that way until Oct. 29.

Hawaii's Legislature approved a bill this week to keep the state on standard time.

Alabama — Legislation now is before lawmakers, but the state probably will go on daylight time this summer, at least.

Missouri — Bills pending to keep the state on standard time, but they have little chance of passage.

Arkansas -- There's a remote chance that a bill to bar daylight time may get through after the Legislature returns March 27 from a recess. But chances are slim.

Idaho — the Legislature defeated a measure to keep the state on standard time. But a similar bill was introduced this week. It is being held in a committee with no indication of any effort to bring it to a vote.

Tennessee — A bill to keep the state on standard time has been introduced. But there has been no action thus far.

Georgia — House voted to remain on standard time. Senate disagreed. A conference committee has recommended that Georgia remain on standard time this year and switch to daylight time next year only if three of the five states contiguous to Georgia decide to accept daylight time.

Florida — Legislature may consider time legislation when sessions open April 4.

Indiana — Only the western half of the state has been changing to daylight time. Officials are trying for federal approval of the same arrangement this year, although the federal law required a whole state to use daylight time if it doesn't elect to stay on standard time.

Texas — A bill to exempt the state from daylight time has been cleared for debate by the Senate. The House has sent legislation to a subcommittee.

Michigan — the House and Senate approved a bill exempting Michigan from daylight time. The governor said he would sign it.

Clark Arraigned For Murder

JACKSON (AP) - Phillip O. Clark, 22, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., was bound over to circuit court Thursday on murder charges in connection with the slaying last October of his wife's grandmother.

Clark is accused of the murder of 71-year-old Mrs. Zola Clifton, who was killed in her basement apartment in Cape Girardeau Oct. 1, 1966.

Eagles to Organize Lodge

An Eagles lodge will be formed when State Secretary S. P. Krokovich, Kansas City of the order comes to the Rustic Rock April 2 to take applications for new members. Refreshments will be served.

The Eagles have a ladies auxiliary.

The Eagles are an international organization of one million members with 1,700 units in the United States and the Philippine islands. They have contributed more than $1 million to hospitals and universities and to the cancer fund as well as for research to the Max Baer fund for coronary diseases.

The Eagles sponsor a home for the aged in Bradenton, Fla., and the Bar H ranch for boys in Nevada, Mo.

Name 7 To Rank Of Eagle

Seven area Boy Scouts were reviewed and approved for the highest rank of Eagle Scout at a meeting Thursday in Sikeston, Earl Jarvis, chairman of the Southeast Missouri Council Eagle Board of Review, announced today.

The scouts chosen for the honor are, Trevis Noles and Jim Christie, troop 59, Sikeston; Roger Call, troop 3, and Malcolm Montgomery, troop 4, Cape Girardeau; Michael Anderson and Brad Welker, troop 250, Perryville, and Mike Nowlin, troop 54, Gideon.

Students to Seek Mile of Pennies

The high school student council will sponsor a Mile of Pennies drive tomorrow for the Easter Seal campaign.

Council members will have stations set up from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. downtown. They will be front of J. C. Penney's, Woolworth's, and Harris Pharmacy and in front of the Ben Franklin store in Mid-towner Village.

Every penny will help the council reach its goal.

Easter lillies will be given to those who contribute.

Mrs. Buford Baber, chairman of the Scott County drive, reports total contributions in Scott County in the Seal campaign are $1,100. The goal is $3,000 and the campaign ends March 26.

Stations will be set up March 24, in the same locations.

Member of the executive committee of the council who planned the drive are Sally Faulkner, Sharon Harber, Danny Lopp, Robert Matthews, Judy Murchison, and Darla Scoles. Mrs. Baber and Mrs. H. H. Coats, sponsor of the council, assisted them.

Money collected in the campaign will provide treatment and rehabilitation services for crippled children and adults.

Seventy per cent of the money collected in the County will be used in the County. It will provide crippled children with an opportunity to attend summer camps, and it also will help students who intend to study the treatment or teaching of the handicapped, obtain scholarships.

St. Patrick's Day Fun Brings out Irish in All

By EDWARD J. DENNEHY

— An Irish toast

Thousands of Irish, near-Irish and non-Irish march along to the skirl of bagpipes today in communities across the land to honor St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland.

Aside from the celebrations, it is a day of good humor, a day when jokes and wit have the flavor of green corn. In Ireland, the day has a quiet religious tone. In America, it's a time of jollity.

Chicago's Mayor Richard J. Daley had city fountains spiked with green dye. Watching the water in the civic center pool turn to an emerald hue, he said, "That's the way it ought to be all year long."

Patrick J. Dillon, city councilman in Niagara Falls, N.Y., tried unsuccessfully last year to have the Niagara River above the falls tinted with green dye. Dillon did better this year. The American and Horseshoe Falls will be bathed in green light St. Patrick's night. Green plastic covers will be placed over spotlights that illuminate the falls from the Canadian side.

Baltimore held the annual parade Sunday. Don Davern, a member of Dail Eireann, the Irish Parliament, was one of the onlookers. Asked why he thought so many Americans wore green on "the day," Davern smiled and said, "everyone wants to be Irish."

Memphis State Chorale Coming

The Memphis State university chorale, directed by Dr. Walter Wade, associate professor of music will tour Arkansas, Missouri and Kentucky Monday through Thursday.

The group will appear at Sikeston high school at 2:30 p.m. Monday.

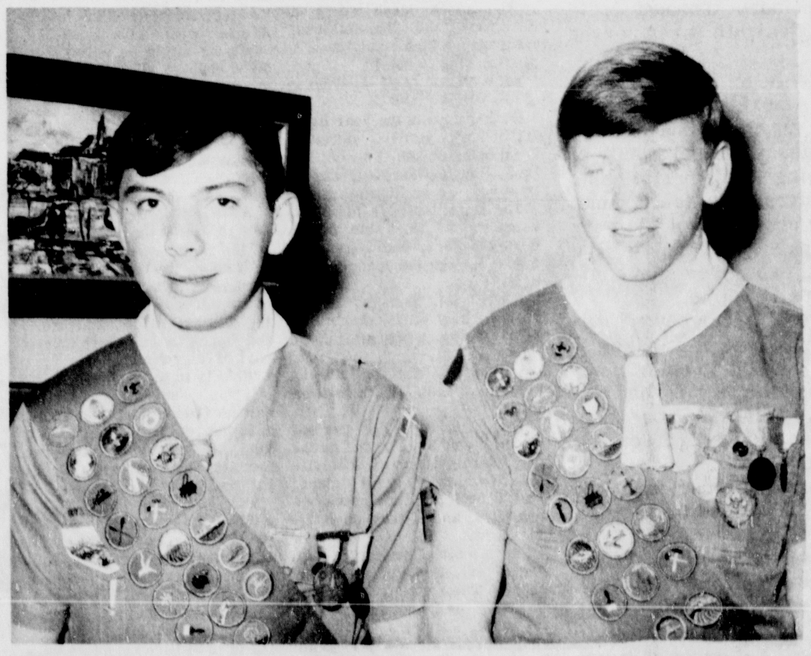
Karen Middleton, mezzo-soprano from Columbia, Miss., will be soloist with the 42-member chorale.

The Easter portion of Handel's "Messiah" and selections from the Broadway hit, Camelot, will be sung.

The singers will make a television appearance in St. Louis and will sing at Kennett high school, at 11:15 a.m. Monday.

Head Hurt in Fall from Bed

Mark A. McTheeney was the only patient treated in the emergency room Thursday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital. He fell from bed striking his head.



TREVIS NOLES, left, and Jim Christie, members of troop 59, Sikeston, were approved Thursday evening for scouting highest rank of Eagle Scout.

Dodd Pleads Case

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd testified today he had "kind of an aversion" to testimonial dinners and had hoped he could get out of the hole financially some other way.

The Connecticut Democrat, testifying in his own defense at a Senate ethics committee investigation, said he had been unable to get out of debt since his first unsuccessful Senate race in 1956.

He said he didn't think he had "ever solicited anybody" or asked anybody "to buy a ticket to a testimonial dinner," but he testified he had talked to friends "about my financial situation."

"They all knew about it," he said.

"Did you tell them you had personal debts you needed to pay off from these testimonials?" asked chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., referring to a series of fund-raising events for Dodd between 1961 and 1965.

"If so, you ought to say so," Stennis said.

"I'm sure I did," Dodd replied.

Dodd, charged with using campaign contributions for personal expenses, said that every facet of his life and virtually every cent he has spent for the last 11 years have been "intertwined with politics."

"I got into the hole in 1956 and I was never able to get out," Dodd told Stennis. "It was a cumulative thing."

The senator said he often used one loan to repay another. "All of these were what I would call a revolving thing," he said.

"I wish you could have a better recollection," Stennis said.

Dodd: "I had no help from the state Democratic organization in any of my campaigns. The organization was unfriendly to me then and is now. I had to row my own boat. I think that's where my difficulty lies. I had to go it along as best I could."

Dodd first ran for the Senate in 1956 and was defeated, but he was elected two years later and re-elected in 1964.

The committee's investigation centers principally on charges that Dodd used campaign funds for personal expenses, including the payment of loans.

Dodd took the witness chair and offered to answer any questions members of the committee had, without any preliminary statement or any questioning by his own counsel, John F. Sonnett.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., opened the questioning. He turned immediately to $83,788.31 that Dodd had already acknowledged, in a stipulation with the committee, that he had used from a testimonial account to make repayment on loans.

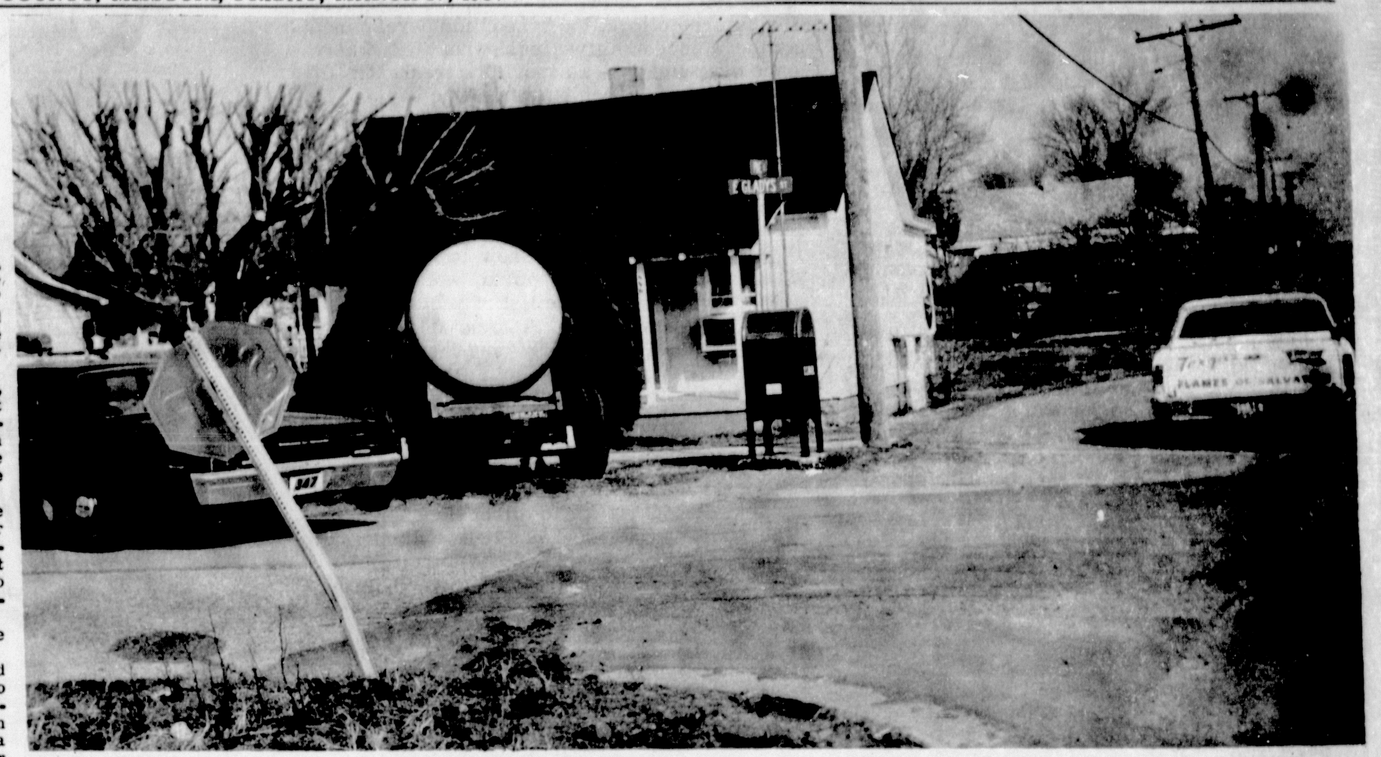
After a huddle Thursday, the bipartisan committee decided to bring in another witness, Edward F. Sullivan, manager of Dodd's Hartford, Conn., office. Sullivan has been described as the man in charge of paying the bills in Dodd's 1964 re-election campaign.

Sonnett said Sullivan is aged, arthritic, and — as of Thursday — snow-bound. He added he didn't know when Sullivan could get here.

Also still up in the air was a committee decision on whether to accept in evidence a stack of affidavits swearing that ticket-buyers to testimonials for Dodd intended that Dodd use the money as he saw fit.



THE PIN connecting a 1,000-gallon liquid fertilizer tank to the National Gas Co. station wagon, at right, came loose this morning. Tom Hefner, driver of the station wagon, said the tank was empty.

Johnson Delays Cabinet Merger

WASHINGTON AP — President Johnson, confronted by labor opposition, told Congress today he is delaying his proposal to merge the departments of Commerce and Labor.

In a special message to Congress, Johnson said he remains convinced the departments should be merged but "further active development of my proposal is necessary before it can be submitted to Congress."

Labor leaders have reacted coolly to the merger proposal since Johnson made it in his State of the Union message Jan. 10. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz confirmed March 15 that top union leaders had registered opposition in a White House session last week.

Johnson said he is asking the President's Advisory Committee on Labor - Management Policy "to consider the proposal in all of its aspects, and particularly to develop means to assure that a free flow of communications will be maintained between the government and the business and labor communities, both through the new department and other governmental channels."

That language in effect served notice that while the proposal is delayed it is not dead. Wirtz had taken the same general line.

Johnson has planned through the consolidation to create a general department of economic affairs, taking in a variety of Preliminary pine wood and space derbies will be held at 3 p.m.

Life saving, swimming and canoeing demonstrations will be presented at 3:30 p.m. Skits and stunts will be staged at 4 p.m.

The final runoff of the pine wood racers and the space derby will be presented between 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

About 40 units will have booths.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 39 states will go on Daylight Saving Time this year, an Associated Press survey showed today.

Among others the score stands this way as of now:

One state, Hawaii, has decided to stay on standard time. Michigan appears certain to follow suit. Five others still are uncertain. Four more have not made up their minds definitely, but probably will switch to Daylight Saving Time.

A law enacted by Congress directs all states except those which exempt themselves — to observe Daylight Saving Time from 2 a.m. the last Sunday in April until 2 a.m. the last Sunday in October.

Any state may exempt itself by adopting a state law to that effect.

So, in the big majority of states, clocks will be put ahead one hour April 30 and remain that way until Oct. 29.

Hawaii's Legislature approved a bill this week to keep the state on standard time.

Alabama — Legislation now is before lawmakers, but the state probably will go on daylight time this summer, at least.

Missouri — Bills pending to keep the state on standard time, but they have little chance of passage.

Arkansas — There's a remote chance that a bill to bar daylight time may get through after the Legislature returns March 27 from a recess. But chances are slim.

Idaho — the Legislature defeated a measure to keep the state on standard time. But a similar bill was introduced this week. It is being held in a committee with no indication of any effort to bring it to a vote.

Tennessee — A bill to keep the state on standard time has been introduced. But there has been no action thus far.

Georgia — House voted to remain on standard time. Senate disagreed. A conference committee has recommended that Georgia remain on standard time this year and switch to daylight time next year only if three of the five states contiguous to Georgia decide to accept daylight time.

Florida — Legislature may consider time legislation when sessions open April 4.

Indiana — Only the western half of the state has been changing to daylight time. Officials are trying for federal approval of the same arrangement this year, although the federal law required a whole state to use daylight time if it doesn't elect to stay on standard time.

Texas — A bill to exempt the state from daylight time has been cleared for debate by the Senate. The House has sent legislation to a subcommittee.

Michigan — the House and Senate approved a bill exempting Michigan from daylight time. The governor said he would sign it.

Hearnes Berates Federalism

ATLANTA, GA. (AP) - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says "creative federalism" is unfair when it makes state expenditures mandatory.

The Missouri governor spoke at a Founders' Day dinner of the West Point Alumi Association Thursday night.

He said the unfairness of "creative federalism" is apparent in two basic areas:

"First, we did not enter the programs with knowledge that we could incur penalties later through new legislation.

"Second, we enter some of these programs and find federal funds later reduced or withdrawn unless we accept later provisions."

He cited the highway beautification and the Medicaid programs as examples of the way the federal governments attempts to penalize states for not funding federal programs.

"I have taken a cautious attitude on implementation of Title 19 (Medicaid)," the governor said. "I do not believe I should commit my state to accepting mandatory requirements which may be changed even in this session of Congress.

Manslaughter Charged in West Plains Death

WEST PLAINS (AP) -- A manslaughter charged was filed today against William D. Wilson, West Plains, whose car smashed into a truck, killing a man Thursday, after he was arrested for investigation in a slaying case.

Wilson, reported absent without leave from the Navy at Key West, Fla., was injured in the accident and was reported in critical condition at the Army Hospital at Ft. Leonard Wood.

John Henson, Springfield, a passenger in the truck, was killed. Jerry Leon Mooneyham, 26, Springfield, the driver, was reported in critical condition.

The chain of events began Wednesday night when Henry E. Gastineau, 57, a Frisco Railroad employe, was shot and killed at his home, 10 miles southeast of here. His wife was beaten and is reported in serious condition.

Sheriff Brack Pace said Wilson was stopped by the Highway Patrol on U.S. 63, north of here. During the questioning, Wilson was asked to show how to start the car, which had an intricate starting system. He started the car and sped away, the sheriff said.

Officers said they were awaiting tests on a .22 caliber rifle found in the trunk of Wilson's car, and blood on his trousers.

Mustang Speeds Off Curve, Driver Injured

He was driving a 1966 Mustang, when he speeded around a curve on highway 60, three miles east of Charleston. The vehicle ran off the road, went down an embankment and overturned.

He suffered face and head cuts, and other injuries. He is in a serious condition.

Two trucks collided yesterday at 1:35 a.m. on a highway nine miles west of Hayti. Both drivers escaped injury.

A 1965 Mack truck was driven by Sanford Wedgeworth, 50, Augusta, Ark. The driver told the highway patrol that a pillow had fallen from the sleeping compartment to the floor. When he picked it up from the floorboard, the vehicle veered into the wrong lane, and struck a 1964 White semi-trailer, driven by Charles O'Rear, 38, Van Buren, the highway patrol reported.

Thursday at 1 a.m. on highway J in Perry county, a 1956 Chevrolet, driven by Guy McClearn, 45, St. Louis, went out of control and down an embankment.

He was not injured.

T. A. WILSON, executive vice president of the Boeing Company and former Sikeston resident, was one of five receiving the Missouri honor award for distinguished service in engineering from the University of Missouri at a banquet in Columbia today. POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Despite the current interest in shopping centers with abundant parking and modern facilities, downtown stores in small cities have much to offer.

Shopping is convenient and easy most of the time in downtown Sikeston. It is a place where many stop to and from work and to buy their immediate needs.

Normally parking isn't too difficult thanks to foresight in providing numerous and convenient parking spaces. These parking areas have been provided both by business establishments and the city.

The trend of stores to move out to shopping centers does invite the serious attention of those who remain in downtown business section as well as their customers. They should make certain that the area remains attractive. There is no reason to panic or throw in the sponge.

Downtown Sikeston is not a blighted area now and with planning it never need be. Stores have modernized. Many wear attractive new fronts. Many interiors are functional, inviting and modern.

It isn't a shopping Utopia. More could be done but that is not the major point.

The important thing for everyone to remember is that with sound planning now the district can be more attractive in the next quarter of a century than it otherwise would be.

To keep the downtown region inviting money spent now on engineering studies to determine how to make the area attractive and functional will become an excellent investment in the future.

With cooperation of the merchants and their customers plans made for the future can be realized and downtown will continue to be thriving and lively.

Many of the nation's largest cities and some of the smaller ones are now trying to provide malls in their downtown shopping districts. These give shoppers eye relief from brick and mortar by providing spots of green where trees and shrubs abound. They also provide regions where shoppers can rest and relax.

Sikeston has no reason to be concerned about provision of malls.

It has American Legion park and Malone park, two grassy, leafy areas, which, while often taken for granted, are much used and as much appreciated by residents.

With care, foresight and cash downtown Sikeston can be as attractive in 2000 as it was in 1925 or in 1967. The potential is there.

Development is too good an opportunity to pass up.

As a genius of journalism, Henry R. Luce was the most influential man in the field of communication of this century.

His wealth, impressive as it is from an investment of $86,000 does not fully measure the dimension of his accomplishments.

From its inception every article in "Time" has been a not too thinly disguised editorial.

This lack of objectivity in a news magazine has raised many eyebrows and caused some criticism.

This has been true despite the fact that magazines usually make no pretense of objectivity.

Every article is written from a point of view and intended to produce the same viewpoint or the opposite, causing debate and creating controversy. Why not? This builds readership and circulation and creates interest in public problems.

Something more can be said for lack of objectivity. If an article causes the reader to think, to investigate more thoroughly, to read more in search of the truth it has served a constructive purpose.

It is much more difficult to justify a well established trait of the American people upon which "Time" and other magazines have prospered. This is the tendency of a majority of Americans to prefer being told what to think than to think for themselves. The fault cannot properly be placed on the shoulders of "Time", other magazines, newspaper columnists and editorial writers and radio and television commentators. The people are to blame.

The influence of Luce extends far beyond the printed pages of "Time" and other magazines. It exists in the modern broad treatment of news in all media and the exploitation of the full possibilities of pictures. Perhaps more than any man, Luce can be credited with producing revolution in this country.

Newspapers as well as every other form of communication have been influenced by the Luce touch.

There was a time when it wasn't news in Washington unless the story came from the White House or a cabinet member temporarily caught in the news spotlight; in a state capitol unless it came from the governor or the attorney general; in a court house unless the sheriff or circuit clerk was the source and in a city hall unless the mayor or chief of police had spoken.

Due to the influence of "Time" the broader dimensions of news are no longer neglected. Metropolitan newsrooms, once occupied by generalists, are now populated by specialists.

The whole emphasis of news has been changed. There is as much or more effort put on backgrounding the news, the whys, the wherefores, the future outlook, the reason for developments as there once was given to the who, what, where - once over lightly - a superficial treatment of the hot, spot news developments of the day.

News no longer is here today and gone tomorrow. It has a continuing connotation. It is living history.

Consider the index of "Time" - art, books, cinema, education, law, letters, listings, medicine, milestones, modern living, music, nation, people, press, religion, show business, sport, theater, U.S. business, world, world business.

This is not a complete list of subjects closely covered by news media. Two notable omissions are "politics" and "labor" and there are many others. But the mere recitation of the list is a far cry from the news grist of another day with its heavy emphasis on fires, natural disasters, murder and crime.

There is no man more responsible than Luce for encouraging the earnest probing of the depths for news in today's broad dimensions.

The public's response has been fantastic. No old time reporter would ever believe it.

Luce was a man of vision who saw the possibilities. He not only made a fortune from it but changed America and the communications field in the process.

It was my privilege to sit in on a newspaper district meet while on the west coast and I heard many interesting talks. One retailer who is a leading west coast advertiser said "The sale takes place in the home, only the transaction takes place in the store."

He used this statement to point out the need for more and complete newspaper advertising. He contended that if a store's newspaper advertising was to have selling effectiveness it had to be strong in selling points.

Newspaper advertising presents the greatest opportunity to do a selling job in the home, he said, for the paper arrives and actually awaits the customer's convenience. It stays around until every member of the family has had a chance to get the advertising message.

He emphasized the fact that every newspaper advertisement should contain the full story about the merchandise. It should be told in believable manner and with facts to back up the claims.

Then he added with a challenge "Newspaper advertising is not on trial, it is a proven tool of merchandising. Only the advertising writers are on trial."

NOTHING FUNNY ABOUT MONEY

Rep. Durward G. Hall (R-Mo.) says he gets an occasional chuckle out of comic strips, but he's not laughing at a federal grant of $8,789 for a study of the comics.

"The biggest belly laugh will not be found in the comic books, but rather in the sheer stupidity of throwing tax dollars away on projects like this," Hall said.

Announced by the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities, the grant was awarded to the University of California at Santa Barbara.

EDITOR's NOTE — Arm in arm with a leprechaun, Hal Boyle headed for the St. Patrick's Day parade early this morning, leaving behind in his typewriter a fresh sprig of shamrock and the following message, which may have a similar ring to some:

NEW YORK (AP) — What is it to be Irish?

On 364 days of the year being Irish isn't visibly different from being Scotch, French, Italian, Jewish, Serbian, Dutch, or -- yes -- even English.

But on this one day of the year — holy St. Patrick's Day — the Irishman becomes an Irishman.

And on this day you have to be Irish to know what it is to be Irish.

The outer signs, of course, can be seen by all. The Irishman overnight grows a foot taller and stalks the earth a giant. All traffic lights turn green before him, and if they don't he sees red.

But this air of majesty is only token evidence of interior change. The men of other races who envy the Irishman his bearing of St. Patrick's Day would envy him far more if they could look inside the Irishman's soul.

What is it to be Irish?

How can you put the wonder of it into words? If a psychiatrist stretched himself out on his own warm couch after his last customer had gone home, and he dreamed of the man he himself would most like to be — well, he might be perfect, but he'd still be only half an Irishman on St. Patrick's Day.

What is it to be Irish?

Oh, on this day it is music. Not just the cornet in the parading high school band, but the deep, deep music of living, the low, sad rhythms of eternity.

What is it to be Irish?

It is to live the whole history of his race between a dawn and a dawn — the long wrongs, the bird-swift joys, the endless hurt of his ancestors since the morning of time in a forgotten forest, the knock at his heart that is part of his religion.

What is to to be Irish?

It isn't only the realization that he is descended from kings. It is the realization that he is a king himself, an empire on two feet striding in power, a strolling continent of awe.

What is to to be Irish?

Why, on St. Patrick's Day, to be Irish is to know more glory, adventure, magic, victory, exultation, gratitude and gladness than any ordinary man can experience in a lifetime.

What is to be Irish?

It is to walk in complete mystic understanding with God for 24 wonderful hours.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol is searching for qualified men desiring a career in law enforcement.

Colonel E. L. (Mike) Hockaday, the Patrol Superintendent, today announced that examinations will be given to prospective troopers on March 28, 29 and 30 at the Patrol's Training Academy at Rolla, Missouri. There are 42 existing vacancies on the Patrol, and successful applicants will begin training on June 1, 1967.

Application forms can be obtained at any of the nine Highway Patrol Troop Headquarters. They are located at Lee's Summit, Macon, Kirkwood, Springfield, Poplar Bluff, Jefferson City, Willow Springs, St. Joseph and Rolla. Interested young men can also receive an application form by writing to the Missouri State Highway Patrol, General Headquarters, Jefferson City, Missouri. All applications must be made before March 28.

All applicants must have the equivalent of a high school education and be a resident of Missouri for the past 3 years. He must be 21 and not have reached his 33rd birthday, and must be between 5 feet 9 inches and 6 feet 3 inches.

DEDICATED TO OUR FUTURE

At Houlton, Maine, this month, in the forestland of his state, Governor John H. Reed will be principal speaker when the Eastern Woodlands of Standard Packaging Corporation is certified as one of Maine's more than 700 Tree Farms.

With the dedication of this substantial area of timberland, Maine's privately-owned tax-paying Tree Farms, operated for the continuous and economic production of timber under a scientific forestry, watershed and wildlife management program, will pass the two million acre mark. As a mark of its significance, Governor Reed is proclaiming Maine Tree Farm Week, and the Eastern Woodlands' dedication will become a major event in this year's observance of the Silver Anniversary of the Tree Farm system in the United States.

Its importance to all Americans, however, lies not in dedications or ceremonies. Rather it is an example of American industry conserving the nation's resources for future generations and, at the same time, providing private forest parks and wilderness recreation at no cost to taxpayers. Eastern Woodlands alone has devoted 100 miles of prime lake frontage for public campsites and for low cost lease to outdoor enthusiasts. With other Maine Tree Farm land, this provides opportunities for true wilderness adventure in areas convenient to the great population centers of the Eastern seaboard.

In the 25 years of the Tree Farm movement, 30,000 landowners have dedicated more than 6 million acres of tax-paying forest lands - an area equal to all the New England states plus Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and West Virginia - to the present and future needs both of the economy and the public. It demonstrates the ability of private industry to serve the best interests of the people while it is producing the timber, pulp, paper and other wood products essential to our society.

It is fitting that Maine, birthplace of the legendary Paul Bunyan and a producer of forest products for 350 years, should play an important role in this anniversary.

Two garment - district executives were consoling each other with news of how bad their respective businesses had been all year, when the subject of their two sons came up. The first executive shook his head sadly from side to side, exclaiming, "What a no-good son I've got. You really wouldn't believe it. I don't believe it myself. A twenty-thousand-dollar-a-year salary I give him, but you think he pays any attention to the business? He does not. He stays out all night, doesn't come to work until its time for lunch, and then fools around with the models in their dressing room the rest of the day."

"You think that's bad?" the second executive asked. "You should have my son. He's so much worse, you couldn't believe it. He also gets a twenty-thousand-dollar-a-year salary, stays out all night, comes to work at noon, and spends the rest of the day fooling around with the models in their dressing room."

"So what makes him worse?" asked the first executive.

JUDICIAL REFORM

"Of all people in our society, the judge must remain the most incorruptible, because he is the final protector of our rights to life, liberty and property under the law," declared California Supreme Court Justice Louis H. Burke. But, says a report from the American Assembly of Columbia University, "The administration of justice in the United States is in trouble."

Casting light on that trouble, the July, 1966, issue of The Reader's Digest states that ". . .in state after state there is growing alarm over judges who are sick or senile, corrupt, guilty of unconscionable gold-bricking, habitually intoxicated or otherwise unfit to serve on the bench." By far, an overwhelming majority of judges do not fit this category. The fact that a small number do, however, is disturbing.

Two states have pioneered judicial reform. The most recent is California where a Commission on Judicial Qualifications is empowered to investigate complaints from anyone about courts and recommend action to the Supreme Court which can disbar a judge. The system, which has already removed 30 judges from California courts, has been adopted by some Texas courts and is currently being considered by other states. Its application to federal courts is also being studied by Congress, since federal judgeships are lifetime appointments. There is no room for incompetency in our judicial process.

FEDERAL SUBSIDY FOR STUDENT POLITICS

There has been a great deal of agitated public discussion following the disclosure that the National Student Association (NSA) has been receiving large amounts of money from the Central Intelligence Agency over the past decade. This discussion has concentrated on the CIA as the "villain of the piece," with the constant implication that the money was paid to NSA so that its student members would help the CIA in spying.

All this talk has distracted attention from the record of what NSA has actually done on college campuses. Whatever NSA may have done for the CIA, obviously the large subsidy of CIA funds gave NSA an opportunity to do much more on campus than would otherwise have been possible.

For more than fifteen years the National Student Association has been one of the principal organizers of farleft activity on campus. Its national conventions, claiming to speak for millions of students only dimly aware of NSA's existence, have taken positions such as support for Fidel Castro's educational policy in Cuba, sympathy for Japanese students whose rioting forced the President of the United States to cancel a visit to Japan, and a call for abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

NSA leaders have mounted well-organized and well-financed campaigns to keep their place on the campus in the face of challenge by constructive student groups. They have maintained a full-time national office and staff. It is now clear that CIA money helped make this possible. Intelligence work is CIA's proper mission. But it should keep out of student politics. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DODD AND AMBASSADOR TO FRANCE

On March 1, 1966, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., had received a cash contribution from Irving Ferman, Washington representative of International Latex Corporation, and that Dodd in return was pushing A. N. Spanel, board chairman of International Latex, as Ambassador to France.

On March 11, 1967, Sen. Dodd, in stipulations before the Senate Ethics Committee, admitted that he had received a cash contribution of $8,000 from Mr. Ferman.

WASHINGTON -- Behind the President's long trip half-way across the Pacific to Guam and back is his desire to make sure that U.S. military leaders are putting enough emphasis on the civilian and political rebuilding of South Vietnam.

From a military viewpoint the war is going well. There have been Viet Cong desertions sometimes as high as 400 a day. It's only natural, however, that the military should concentrate on military problems. Yet solution of the civilian problems, the President feels, may be the final factor in ending the war.

This means the reconstruction of villages, building of schools, improving the water supply, distribution of food and, most important of all, the formation of a solid civilian government.

In 1966 South Vietnam made amazing strides in electing a constituent assembly and making a start toward nationwide elections for a new President. Working behind the scenes, Johnson has pushed this hard. He has vivid memories of Buddhists burning themselves in the streets last year and knew that without equality of rule there never could be stability in South Vietnam.

It was at the Honolulu conference that Johnson laid down the law to Premier Ky for equality of government. The forthcoming meeting on Guam will make sure that progress toward full civilian government continues.

SHAKE - UP IN VIETNAM

The President will take with him to Guam Lt. Gen. Bruce Palmer who did such a good job in the Dominican Republic. And since the end of the term of Gen. William Westmoreland is long overdue and he needs a rest, it's possible Palmer may later replace him. Westmoreland is given credit for the current victories and will occupy a high place in the Pentagon.

Also accompanying the President will be Rober Komar, the brains behind school construction, food distribution, etc. Komar has been a member of the White House staff but will now transfer to Saigon.

Also accompanying the President to Guam will be Dacid Lilienthal, for a long time head of the Tennessee Valley authority and former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Lilienthal is an old new dealer whom Johnson knew back in the days when he was a young congressman from Texas pushing dams and irrigation in the southwest.

The President has long cherished the idea of developing the Mekong River into another TVA project for an irrigation, power and navigation system which would enrich not merely South Vietnam but Cambodia, Laos, Thailand and North Vietnam. The idea was given him originally by Arthur "Tex" Goldschmidt, who worked with Harold Ickes and David Lilienthal in the old dambuilding days of the new deal. Lilienthal will go to the Far East to push the Mekong River plan personally.

"Guam is a long way to go," the President remarked at a recent staff conference, "and the newspapermen will grumble. But I think it will be worthwhile."

RIVERS'S DRINKING

Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., the statuesque chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, was about to board a subway train between the capital and the house office building when a friend jokingly remarked:

"If he keeps on writing about me," Rivers grumbled, "he is going to drive me into another binge."

Almost everyone on Capitol Hill likes Rivers personally, and there is a sort of protective sympathy on the part of some members of the armed services committee to play down his periodic bouts with alcohol. The fact remains, however, that if the congressman from South Carolina were in the state department or the Pentagon, he would be fired immediately as a security risk. No alcoholic can be kept on the payroll in a sensitive job without risking an investigation by congress.

Entirely aside from Rivers's activities in getting special airplanes for himself to fly to South Carolina for weekends and aside from the favors given him by automobile dealers and his favors for government contractors, Rivers remains an undisputable security risk.

Nevertheless, as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, he has access to the highest secrets of government involving the defense of the United States. He also sits as a member of the CIA watchdog committee where he passes on espionage secrets seen by only a handful of American citizens.

Troop Support in Vietnam

Washington, D.C.: -- The cold logic of hot war logistics appears to have made little impression on some 1,300 strikers who crippled key West Coast shipyards for 129 days.

They're back at work. But their spokesmen say they'll hit the bricks again as soon as the law permits -- about May 1.

They plan to picket again -- and apparently have some sympathetic support inside the U.S. Senate -- though Defense Secretary Robert McNamara has sworn that U.S. forces in Southeast Asia would have had heavier fire power and American troops would have had heavier support if not for the four-month stoppage called by a faction of the Electrical Workers Brotherhood.

Apparently at least one insouciant spokesman for the electricians could not care less. He predicted the men would go right out again, though McNamara also said, referring to ships which were already in the paralyzed yards:

"Without their schedule maintenance, overhaul and repair work, many of these ships may become inoperative, thereby disrupting and damaging the combat operations in Southeast Asia."

Obviously he is saying that the strike hurt our men and strategy right on the firing line. McNamara says this so strongly that he does not even use Defense Dept. Sanskrit-type jargonese. For example:

It can be reported that of the scores of ships affected by the walkout which began Nov. 4 when the electricians walked out, though other metal trades unions members did not, were 26 Destroyer Escorts. They are of the new 1052 Class.

The "lead" fighting ship was caught by the pickets about 40 per cent completed. It's in the Todd Shipyards' Seattle yard. In the construction of the "lead ship," the original design and engineering plans for the entire class are checked out, and any operational and maintenance engineering changes are then incorporated in the construction of the remaining ships in the class.

From now on we're peering under the brass curtain. The U.S. needs that "lead ship" because it needs those 26 D.E.s outfitted with improved anti-submarine capabilities with "advanced" gadgetry to "give us better defense, particularly against nuclear submarines, which make them the backbone of our surface anti-submarine capability."

The U.S. needs them because the Chinese and the Albanians just happen to have submarine fleets -- small flotillas, but We stalk them now with old line destroyers. And just to play "fail safe," the U.S. also keeps an eye on the big Soviet underwater armadas.

To do this the Pentagon has diverted destroyers needed in Vietnamese waters. Therefore, the 26 new D. E. 1052 Class craft were under urgent order in the West Coast shipyards. They were intended to reliever the older destroyers. And what of these?

"These destroyer escort vessels are not scheduled for Southeast Asia," said McNamara, "but for other areas where the need for this specific capability is more urgent. However, their deployment will enable the Navy to send an equivalent number of destroyers equipped with heavy guns to Southeast Asia.

"These destroyers are required for offshore shelling and troop support in Vietnam."

Yet the strikers were adamant until March 10 when the court ordered them back to work for 80 days under the Taft-Hartley law. They rejected a series of offers on pay and negotiating patterns.

They spurned the Federal Mediation Service. They shrugged off the White House.

Yet when the matter was called to the attention of a U.S. Senator, Ralph Yarborough, D-Texas, who might have helped, he wrote on February 27, 1967, to the effect that there was no impact on the war and supply lines; and that the shipyard owners had refused to negotiate (which is untrue); that this was a strike merely for higher wages. Not true.

This was a strike to break the entire bargaining pattern which has kept peace in the vital industry. Furthermore, Sen. Yarborough says that his own investigation shows there has been undue alarm over the entire matter.

The Texas Senator is important here because he is chairman of the vital Labor Subcommittee of the Senate's Committee on Labor and Public Welfare. All labor legislation must pass through his hands sooner or later.

And it is later than he thinks. At the end of the 80-day cooling off period the electricians may go out again. If so, the President will go up the Hill for an emergency law.

He may get it in the form of compulsory arbitration, as was done on the railroads not so long ago.

Then there will be an uproar over the president. This, after all, is the home front. The fighting is so far away.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Despite the current interest in shopping centers with abundant parking and modern facilities, downtown stores in small cities have much to offer.

Shopping is convenient and easy most of the time in downtown Sikeston. It is a place where many stop to and from work and to buy their immediate needs.

Normally parking isn't too difficult thanks to foresight in providing numerous and convenient parking spaces. These parking areas have been provided both by business establishments and the city.

The trend of stores to move out to shopping centers does invite the serious attention of those who remain in downtown business section as well as their customers. They should make certain that the area remains attractive. There is no reason to panic or throw in the sponge.

Downtown Sikeston is not a blighted area now and with planning it never need be. Stores have modernized. Many wear attractive new fronts. Many interiors are functional, inviting and modern.

It isn't a shopping Utopia. More could be done but that is not the major point.

The important thing for everyone to remember is that with sound planning now the district can be more attractive in the next quarter of a century than it otherwise would be.

To keep the downtown region inviting money spent now on engineering studies to determine how to make the area attractive and functional will become an excellent investment in the future.

With cooperation of the merchants and their customers plans made for the future can be realized and downtown will continue to be thriving and lively.

Many of the nation's largest cities and some of the smaller ones are now trying to provide malls in their downtown shopping districts. These give shoppers eye relief from brick and mortar by providing spots of green where trees and shrubs abound. They also provide regions where shoppers can rest and relax.

Sikeston has no reason to be concerned about provision of malls.

It has American Legion park and Malone park, two grassy, leafy areas, which, while often taken for granted, are much used and as much appreciated by residents.

With care, foresight and cash downtown Sikeston can be as attractive in 2000 as it was in 1925 or in 1967. The potential is there.

Development is too good an opportunity to pass up.

As a genius of journalism, Henry R. Luce was the most influential man in the field of communication of this century.

His wealth, impressive as it is from an investment of $86,000 does not fully measure the dimension of his accomplishments.

From its inception every article in "Time" has been a not too thinly disguised editorial.

This lack of objectivity in a news magazine has raised many eyebrows and caused some criticism.

This has been true despite the fact that magazines usually make no pretense of objectivity.

Every article is written from a point of view and intended to produce the same viewpoint or the opposite, causing debate and creating controversy. Why not? This builds readership and circulation and creates interest in public problems.

Something more can be said for lack of objectivity. If an article causes the reader to think, to investigate more thoroughly, to read more in search of the truth it has served a constructive purpose.

It is much more difficult to justify a well established trait of the American people upon which "Time" and other magazines have prospered. This is the tendency of a majority of Americans to prefer being told what to think than to think for themselves. The fault cannot properly be placed on the shoulders of "Time", other magazines, newspaper columnists and editorial writers and radio and television commentators. The people are to blame.

The influence of Luce extends far beyond the printed pages of "Time" and other magazines. It exists in the modern broad treatment of news in all media and the exploitation of the full possibilities of pictures. Perhaps more than any man, Luce can be credited with producing revolution in this country.

Newspapers as well as every other form of communication have been influenced by the Luce touch.

There was a time when it wasn't news in Washington unless the story came from the White House or a cabinet member temporarily caught in the news spotlight; in a state capitol unless it came from the governor or the attorney general; in a court house unless the sheriff or circuit clerk was the source and in a city hall unless the mayor or chief of police had spoken.

Due to the influence of "Time" the broader dimensions of news are no longer neglected. Metropolitan newsrooms, once occupied by generalists, are now populated by specialists.

The whole emphasis of news has been changed. There is as much or more effort put on backgrounding the news, the whys, the wherefores, the future outlook, the reason for developments as there once was given to the who, what, where - once over lightly - a superficial treatment of the hot, spot news developments of the day.

News no longer is here today and gone tomorrow. It has a continuing connotation. It is living history.

Consider the index of "Time" - art, books, cinema, education, law, letters, listings, medicine, milestones, modern living, music, nation, people, press, religion, show business, sport, theater, U.S. business, world, world business.

This is not a complete list of subjects closely covered by news media. Two notable omissions are "politics" and "labor" and there are many others. But the mere recitation of the list is a far cry from the news grist of another day with its heavy emphasis on fires, natural disasters, murder and crime.

There is no man more responsible than Luce for encouraging the earnest probing of the depths for news in today's broad dimensions.

The public's response has been fantastic. No old time reporter would ever believe it.

Luce was a man of vision who saw the possibilities. He not only made a fortune from it but changed America and the communications field in the process.

It was my privilege to sit in on a newspaper district meet while on the west coast and I heard many interesting talks. One retailer who is a leading west coast advertiser said "The sale takes place in the home, only the transaction takes place in the store."

He used this statement to point out the need for more and complete newspaper advertising. He contended that if a store's newspaper advertising was to have selling effectiveness it had to be strong in selling points.

Newspaper advertising presents the greatest opportunity to do a selling job in the home, he said, for the paper arrives and actually awaits the customer's convenience. It stays around until every member of the family has had a chance to get the advertising message.

He emphasized the fact that every newspaper advertisement should contain the full story about the merchandise. It should be told in believable manner and with facts to back up the claims.

Then he added with a challenge "Newspaper advertising is not on trial, it is a proven tool of merchandising. Only the advertising writers are on trial."

With other Maine Tree Farm land, this provides opportunities for true wilderness adventure in areas convenient to the great population centers of the Eastern seaboard.

In the 25 years of the Tree Farm movement, 30,000 landowners have dedicated more than 6 million acres of tax-paying forest lands - an area equal to all the New England states plus Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and West Virginia - to the present and future needs both of the economy and the public. It demonstrates the ability of private industry to serve the best interests of the people while it is producing the timber, pulp, paper and other wood products essential to our society.

It is fitting that Maine, birthplace of the legendary Paul Bunyan and a producer of forest products for 350 years, should play an important role in this anniversary.

Two garment - district executives were consoling each other with news of how bad their respective businesses had been all year, when the subject of their two sons came up. The first executive shook his head sadly from side to side, exclaiming, "What a no-good son I've got. You really wouldn't believe it. I don't believe it myself. A twenty-thousand-dollar-a-year salary I give him, but you think he pays any attention to the business? He does not. He stays out all night, doesn't come to work until its time for lunch, and then fools around with the models in their dressing room the rest of the day."

"You think that's bad?" the second executive asked. "You should have my son. He's so much worse, you couldn't believe it. He also gets a twenty-thousand-dollar-a-year salary, stays out all night, comes to work at noon, and spends the rest of the day fooling around with the models in their dressing room."

"So what makes him worse?" asked the first executive.

JUDICIAL REFORM

"Of all people in our society, the judge must remain the most incorruptible, because he is the final protector of our rights to life, liberty and property under the law," declared California Supreme Court Justice Louis H. Burke. But, says a report from the American Assembly of Columbia University, "The administration of justice in the United States is in trouble."

Casting light on that trouble, the July, 1966, issue of The Reader's Digest states that ". . .in state after state there is growing alarm over judges who are sick or senile, corrupt, guilty of unconscionable gold-bricking, habitually intoxicated or otherwise unfit to serve on the bench." By far, an overwhelming majority of judges do not fit this category. The fact that a small number do, however, is disturbing.

Two states have pioneered judicial reform. The most recent is California where a Commission on Judicial Qualifications is empowered to investigate complaints from anyone about courts and recommend action to the Supreme Court which can disbar a judge. The system, which has already removed 30 judges from California courts, has been adopted by some Texas courts and is currently being considered by other states. Its application to federal courts is also being studied by Congress, since federal judgeships are lifetime appointments. There is no room for incompetency in our judicial process.

FEDERAL SUBSIDY FOR STUDENT POLITICS

There has been a great deal of agitated public discussion following the disclosure that the National Student Association (NSA) has been receiving large amounts of money from the Central Intelligence Agency over the past decade. This discussion has concentrated on the CIA as the "villain of the piece," with the constant implication that the money was paid to NSA so that its student members would help the CIA in spying.

All this talk has distracted attention from the record of what NSA has actually done on college campuses. Whatever NSA may have done for the CIA, obviously the large subsidy of CIA funds gave NSA an opportunity to do much more on campus than would otherwise have been possible.

For more than fifteen years the National Student Association has been one of the principal organizers of farleft activity on campus. Its national conventions, claiming to speak for millions of students only dimly aware of NSA's existence, have taken positions such as support for Fidel Castro's educational policy in Cuba, sympathy for Japanese students whose rioting forced the President of the United States to cancel a visit to Japan, and a call for abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

NSA leaders have mounted well-organized and well-financed campaigns to keep their place on the campus in the face of challenge by constructive student groups. They have maintained a full-time national office and staff. It is now clear that CIA money helped make this possible. Intelligence work is CIA's proper mission. But it should keep out of student politics. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DODD AND AMBASSADOR TO FRANCE

On March 1, 1966, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., had received a cash contribution from Irving Ferman, Washington representative of International Latex Corporation, and that Dodd in return was pushing A. N. Spanel, board chairman of International Latex, as Ambassador to France.

On March 11, 1967, Sen. Dodd, in stipulations before the Senate Ethics Committee, admitted that he had received a cash contribution of $8,000 from Mr. Ferman.

WASHINGTON -- Behind the President's long trip halfway across the Pacific to Guam and back is his desire to make sure that U.S. military leaders are putting enough emphasis on the civilian and political rebuilding of South Vietnam.

From a military viewpoint the war is going well. There have been Viet Cong desertions sometimes as high as 400 a day. It's only natural, however, that the military should concentrate on military problems. Yet solution of the civilian problems, the President feels, may be the final factor in ending the war.

This means the reconstruction of villages, building of schools, improving the water supply, distribution of food and, most important of all, the formation of a solid civilian government.

In 1966 South Vietnam made amazing strides in electing a constituent assembly and making a start toward nationwide elections for a new President. Working behind the scenes, Johnson has pushed this hard. He has vivid memories of Buddhists burning themselves in the streets last year and knew that without equality of rule there never could be stability in South Vietnam.

It was at the Honolulu conference that Johnson laid down the law to Premier Ky for equality of government. The forthcoming meeting on Guam will make sure that progress toward full civilian government continues.

SHAKE - UP IN VIETNAM

The President will take with him to Guam Lt. Gen. Bruce Palmer who did such a good job in the Dominican Republic. And since the end of the term of Gen. William Westmoreland is long overdue and he needs a rest, it's possible Palmer may later replace him. Westmoreland is given credit for the current victories and will occupy a high place in the Pentagon.

Also accompanying the President will be Rober Komar, the brains behind school construction, food distribution, etc. Komar has been a member of the White House staff but will now transfer to Saigon.

Also accompanying the President to Guam will be Dacid Lilienthal, for a long time head of the Tennessee Valley authority and former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Lilienthal is an old new dealer whom Johnson knew back in the days when he was a young congressman from Texas pushing dams and irrigation in the southwest.

The President has long cherished the idea of developing the Mekong River into another TVA project for an irrigation, power and navigation system which would enrich not merely South Vietnam but Cambodia, Laos, Thailand and North Vietnam. The idea was given him originally by Arthur "Tex" Goldschmidt, who worked with Harold Ickes and David Lilienthal in the old dam-building days of the new deal. Lilienthal will go to the Far East to push the Mekong River plan personally.

"Guam is a long way to go," the President remarked at a recent staff conference, "and the newspapermen will grumble. But I think it will be worthwhile."

RIVERS'S DRINKING

Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., the statuesque chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, was about to board a subway train between the capital and the house office building when a friend jokingly remarked:

"If he keeps on writing about me," Rivers grumbled, "he is going to drive me into another binge."

Almost everyone on Capitol Hill likes Rivers personally, and there is a sort of protective sympathy on the part of some members of the armed services committee to play down his periodic bouts with alcohol. The fact remains, however, that if the congressman from South Carolina were in the state department or the Pentagon, he would be fired immediately as a security risk. No alcoholic can be kept on the payroll in a sensitive job -- without risking an investigation by congress.

Entirely aside from Rivers's activities in getting special airplanes for himself to fly to South Carolina for weekends and aside from the favors given him by automobile dealers and his favors for government contractors, Rivers remains an undisputable security risk.

Nevertheless, as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, he has access to the highest secrets of government involving the defense of the United States. He also sits as a member of the CIA watchdog committee where he passes on espionage secrets seen by only a handful of American citizens.

Inside Labor

Strike Cut U.S. Fire Power, still, Flotillas. Troop Support in Vietnam

Washington, D.C.: -- The cold logic of hot war logistics appears to have made little impression on some 1,300 strikers who crippled key West Coast shipyards for 129 days.

They're back at work. But their spokesmen say they'll hit the bricks again as soon as the law permits -- about May 1.

They plan to picket again -- and apparently have some sympathetic support inside the U.S. Senate -- though Defense Secretary Robert McNamara has sworn that U.S. forces in Southeast Asia would have had heavier fire power and American troops would have had heavier support if not for the four-month stoppage called by a faction of the Electrical Workers Brotherhood.

Apparently at least one insouciant spokesman for the electricians could not care less. He predicted the men would go right out again, though McNamara also said, referring to ships which were already in the paralyzed yards:

"Without their schedule maintenance, overhaul and repair work, many of these ships may become inoperative, thereby disrupting and damaging the combat operations in Southeast Asia."

Obviously he is saying that the strike hurt our men and strategy right on the firing line. McNamara says this so strongly that he does not even use Defense Dept. Sanskrit-type jargonese. For example:

It can be reported that of the scores of ships affected by the walkout which began Nov. 4 when the electricians walked out, though other metal trades unions members did not, were 26 Destroyer Escorts. They are of the new 1052 Class.

The "lead" fighting ship was caught by the pickets about 40 per cent completed. It's in the Todd Shipyards' Seattle yard. In the construction of the "lead ship," the original design and engineering plans for the entire class are checked out, and any operational and maintenance engineering changes are then incorporated in the construction of the remaining ships in the class.

From now on we're peering under the brass curtain. The U.S. needs that "lead ship" because it needs those 26 D.E.s outfitted with improved anti-submarine capabilities with "advanced" gadgetry to "give us better defense, particularly against nuclear submarines, which make them the backbone of our surface anti-submarine capability."

The U.S. needs them because the Chinese and the Albanians just happen to have submarine fleets -- small flotillas, but

We stalk them now with old line destroyers. And just to play "fail safe," the U.S. also keeps an eye on the big Soviet underwater armadas.

To do this the Pentagon has diverted destroyers needed in Vietnamese waters. Therefore, the 26 new D. E. 1052 Class craft were under urgent order in the West Coast shipyards. They were intended to reliever the older destroyers. And what of these?

"These destroyer escort vessels are not scheduled for Southeast Asia," said McNamara, "but for other areas where the need for this specific capability is more urgent. However, their deployment will enable the Navy to send an equivalent number of destroyers equipped with heavy guns to Southeast Asia.

"These destroyers are required for offshore shelling and troop support in Vietnam."

Yet the strikers were adamant until March 10 when the court ordered them back to work for 80 days under the Taft-Hartley law. They rejected a series of offers on pay and negotiating patterns.

They spurned the Federal Mediation Service. They shrugged off the White House.

Yet when the matter was called to the attention of a U.S. Senator, Ralph Yarborough, D-Texas, who might have helped, he wrote on February 27, 1967, to the effect that there was no impact on the war and supply lines; and that the shipyard owners had refused to negotiate (which is untrue); that this was a strike merely for higher wages. Not true.

This was a strike to break the entire bargaining pattern which has kept peace in the vital industry. Furthermore, Sen. Yarborough says that his own investigation shows there has been undue alarm over the entire matter.

The Texas Senator is important here because he is chairman of the vital Labor Subcommittee of the Senate's Committee on Labor and Public Welfare. All labor legislation must pass through his hands sooner or later.

And it is later than he thinks. At the end of the 80-day cooling off period the electricians may go out again. If so, the President will go up the Hill for an emergency law.

He may get it in the form of compulsory arbitration, as was done on the railroads not so long ago.

Then there will be an uproar over the president. This, after all, is the home front. The fighting is so far away.

Mrs. Jerry Earl Anderson

Miss Susan Lee Rigdon Weds Jerry E. Anderson

CAPE GIRARDEAU- Miss Susan Lee Rigdon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Vincent Rigdon, 1068 Dorothy, became the bride of Jerry Earl Anderson March 4 in ceremonies conducted at Centenary Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. J. Ray Trotter.

The bridegroom is of Minneapolis, Minn., and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Anderson, also of that city.

Altar arrangements were of pink snapdragons and roses with white pompons offset by palms and four brass candelabra holding lighted tapers. The wedding scene was also enhanced by a prieu die, white carpeting along the aisle where the bride entered and lighted hurricane lamps entwined with greenery and white pompons along the aisle. Mrs. Jack Palsgrove was organist for the candlelight service and Mrs. Carroll C. Williams was vocalist.

Entering with her father who presented her in marriage, Miss Rigdon wore an heirloom gown of ivory peau de soie with Alencon lace motifs re-embroidered with pearls. The bodice was fitted and the skirt belled at the back to form a chapel train.

Her full, chapel-length veil was secured to a matching crown and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and one long-stemmed pink rose which she gave to her mother as she passed at her pew.

Attendants to the bride were Miss Jill Helm of Olney, Ill., maid of honor, Mrs. Robert L. Wehrman of St. Louis, matron of honor, Mrs. Norman A. Robert, and Miss Lori Manson of Minneapolis, junior bridesmaid and niece of the bridegroom.

James W. Anderson of Rochester, Minn., attended his brother, the groom, as best man. Other of the groom's attendants were L. C. Monson of Minneapolis, his brother-in-law Karl Guter of St. Louis and David Rigdon, brother of the bride. Ushers were another brother of the bride, John Rigdon, David Monson of Minneapolis, a nephew of the groom, Robert Gulmi of St. Louis and T. Scott Laird of St. Louis.

In the church social hall, the newlyweds, their parents and members of the bridal party received guests at a reception where the bride's table was covered in white satin and draped with green tulle marked by green velvet bows. Fern entwined with pink sweetheart roses encircled the four-tiered wedding cake and extended outward to the punch bowl and coffee service. Guests were served by Miss Nancy Kowa of New York City, Miss Pamela Love of St. Louis, Miss Susan Jacob and Mrs. Kurre Allen.

Small bags of rice were distributed by Sonwa Anderson, niece of the groom, and Gale Netherton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Netherton.

The new Mrs. Anderson was graduated from Central high school in 1963 and from St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in 1966. She is employed at St. Louis Children's Hospital in St. Louis where she and her husband plan to make their home. Anderson is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and is a third year medical student at St. Louis University where his professional fraternity is Phi Chi.

Miss Allison Surprised at Party Monday

BELL CITY - The C. G. Lemmons home was the scene Monday night of a surprise birthday party honoring Miss Edna Allison on her 60th birthday. Women of the Shawan Homemaker's Club and others of the community were present.

The party room was decorated in pink, blue and white. The serving table was overlaid with a lace cloth over pink and centered with a birthday cake decorated with pink roses. A crystal punch bowl appointed one end of the table and crystal candleholders with glowing tapers, were placed on either side of the cake.

Upon the arrival of the honored guest, the women joined in singing, "Happy Birthday". Miss Allison was then presented with a pink carnation corsage by the hostess, Mrs. Lemmons.

Games were played by the group with Mrs. Hesselrode, Mrs. Britton, Mrs. Shumaker and Mrs. Phillips being prize winners. Following the games, Miss Allison opened the gifts.

Cake, ice cream, punch, coffee, nuts, mints and chips were served.

Present were Miss Allison, Mrs. Edd Britton and grandson, Brent Johnson, Mrs. Robert Britton, Michael and Pamela, Mrs. Blair Dalton, Mrs. H. H. Thrasher, Mrs. Mary Scherer and Mrs. B.T. Hesselrode.

Hannibal Mayor Gets Unusual Request

HANNIBAL (AP) - The mayor of Hannibal has received an unusual request from a 14-year-old German girl who says she would like to live in the United States.

In the letter the girl asked Mayor Harry Musgrove to find her mother a "nice" husband. She described her mother as 46 years old, with a good heart, character and health. The girl is Ortrun Glatzel.

Musgrove said he would check around and added "It's the first time I ever got a request like that."

Mosquito Warfare To Cost $50 Million

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. AP-- The pesky mosquito, sometimes a carrier of diseases, but more often just a plain irritant, will cost the American taxpayer at least $50 million this year.

Dr. Harry D. Pratt, of the National Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga., said tha $50 million will be spent on research, eradication and control of the mosquito.

He said that federal, state and local governments soon would be spending a total of $100 million annually for expanded programs.

The wedding scene was also enhanced by a prieu die, white carpeting along the aisle where the bride entered and lighted hurricane lamps entwined with greenery and white pompons along the aisle. Mrs. Jack Palsgrove was organist for the candlelight service and Mrs. Carroll C. Williams was vocalist.

Entering with her father who presented her in marriage, Miss Rigdon wore an heirloom gown of ivory peau de soie with Alencon lace motifs re-embroidered with pearls. The bodice was fitted and the skirt belled at the back to form a chapel train.

Her full, chapel-length veil was secured to a matching crown and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and one long-stemmed pink rose which she gave to her mother as she passed at her pew.

Attendants to the bride were Miss Jill Helm of Olney, Ill., maid of honor, Mrs. Robert L. Wehrman of St. Louis, matron of honor, Mrs. Norman A. Robert, and Miss Lori Manson of Minneapolis, junior bridesmaid and niece of the bridegroom.

James W. Anderson of Rochester, Minn., attended his brother, the groom, as best man. Other of the groom's attendants were L. C. Monson of Minneapolis, his brother-in-law Karl Guter of St. Louis and David Rigdon, brother of the bride. Ushers were another brother of the bride, John Rigdon, David Monson of Minneapolis, a nephew of the groom, Robert Gulmi of St. Louis and T. Scott Laird of St. Louis.

In the church social hall, the newlyweds, their parents and members of the bridal party received guests at a reception where the bride's table was covered in white satin and draped with green tulle marked by green velvet bows. Fern entwined with pink sweetheart roses encircled the four-tiered wedding cake and extended outward to the punch bowl and coffee service. Guests were served by Miss Nancy Kowa of New York City, Miss Pamela Love of St. Louis, Miss Susan Jacob and Mrs. Kurre Allen.

Small bags of rice were distributed by Sonwa Anderson, niece of the groom, and Gale Netherton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Netherton.

The new Mrs. Anderson was graduated from Central high school in 1963 and from St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in 1966. She is employed at St. Louis Children's Hospital in St. Louis where she and her husband plan to make their home. Anderson is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and is a third year medical student at St. Louis University where his professional fraternity is Phi Chi.

Miss Allison Surprised at Party Monday

BELL CITY - The C. G. Lemmons home was the scene Monday night of a surprise birthday party honoring Miss Edna Allison on her 60th birthday. Women of the Shawan Homemaker's Club and others of the community were present.

The party room was decorated in pink, blue and white. The serving table was overlaid with a lace cloth over pink and centered with a birthday cake decorated with pink roses. A crystal punch bowl appointed one end of the table and crystal candleholders with glowing tapers, were placed on either side of the cake.

Upon the arrival of the honored guest, the women joined in singing, "Happy Birthday". Miss Allison was then presented with a pink carnation corsage by the hostess, Mrs. Lemmons.

Games were played by the group with Mrs. Hesselrode, Mrs. Britton, Mrs. Shumaker and Mrs. Phillips being prize winners. Following the games, Miss Allison opened the gifts.

Cake, ice cream, punch, coffee, nuts, mints and chips were served.

Present were Miss Allison, Mrs. Edd Britton and grandson, Brent Johnson, Mrs. Robert Britton, Michael and Pamela, Mrs. Blair Dalton, Mrs. H. H. Thrasher, Mrs. Mary Scherer and Mrs. B.T. Hesselrode.

Mrs. Hassel Lemmons, Mrs. J. C. Phillips, Mrs. Gary Watkins, Mrs. Dale Shumaker, Mrs. Quincy Gilliland and the hostess Mrs. Lemmons.

Hannibal Mayor Gets Unusual Request

HANNIBAL (AP) - The mayor of Hannibal has received an unusual request from a 14-year-old German girl who says she would like to live in the United States.

In the letter the girl asked Mayor Harry Musgrove to find her mother a "nice" husband. She described her mother as 46 years old, with a good heart, character and health. The girl is Ortrun Glatzel.

Musgrove said he would check around and added "It's the first time I ever got a request like that."

Mosquito Warfare To Cost $50 Million

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. AP-- The pesky mosquito, sometimes a carrier of diseases, but more often just a plain irritant, will cost the American taxpayer at least $50 million this year.

Dr. Harry D. Pratt, of the National Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga., said tha $50 million will be spent on research, eradication and control of the mosquito.

He said that federal, state and local governments soon would be spending a total of $100 million annually for expanded programs.

Wyoming Runs Into UCLA; SIU Wins

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hardly anyone expected Wyoming to qualify for the NCAA post season championship tournament when the college basketball season opened last December.

However, the surprising Cowboys from Laramie did and tonight they have the chance to do what no other team has done, beat UCLA and its Player of the Year, Lew Alcindor.

The Cowboys, with the poorest record of any team in the NCAA tourney, 15-12, but with a seven-game winning streak, go against the team with the best, 26-0, in the semifinals of the Far West Regional at Corvallis, Ore.

The NCAA, with eight games at four regional sites, moves into the national spotlight following the triumphs of Southern Illinois and Marquette in the semifinals of the NIT Thursday night.

A capacity turnout of 18,499 at New York's Madison Square Garden saw Southern Illinois come from 11 points back to beat Rutgers 79-70 after Marquette had whipped Marshall 83-78.

Southern Illinois, now 23-2 with an 18-game winning streak, battles Marquette, 21-8, in the nationally televised final game Saturday afternoon.

Winston-Salem State from North Carolina surprised Kentucky Wesleyan 82-73 and Southwest Missouri routed Illinois State 93-76 in the semifinals of the NCAA small college tournament at Evansville, Ind. Winston-Salem, 30-1, and Southwest Missouri, 23-4, play tonight for the championship.

Oklahoma Baptist edged Southwestern Louisiana 66-65, St. Benedict's beat St. Mary's, Tex., 88-73, Morris Harvey downed Tennessee Wesleyan 75-58 and Central Washington squeaked by Eastern New Mexico 60-58.

St. Benedict's, 25-2, meets Morris Harvey, 28-3, and Oklahoma Baptist, 24-6, battles Central Washington, 26-3, in the NAIA semifinals tonight.

Nine of the Top Ten teams in the final Associated Press poll of the season play in the NCAA regionals tonight. Western Kentucky is the only team missing. The sixth-ranked Hilltoppers were upset in overtime by Dayton in the NCAA first round last Saturday.

The unranked Dayton Flyers, 22-5, go against eighth ranked Tennessee, 21-5, in the Mideast regional at Evanston, Ill., where Virginia Tech, 19-6, and Indiana, 17-7, also tangle.

Second-ranked Louisville, 23-3, faces Southern Methodist, 19-5, and third-ranked Kansas, 22-3, battles seventh-ranked Houston, 24-3, in the Midwest regional at Lawrence, Kan.

Fourth-ranked North Carolina, 24-4, and fifth-ranked Princeton, 24-2, meet in the East regional at College Park, Md., after ninth-ranked Boston College, 20-2, encounters St. John's of New York, 23-3.

University of Pacific, 23-3, risks its 20-game winning streak against the 10th ranked and defending national champions, Texas Western, 21-5 at Corvallies, before top-ranked UCLA takes the floor against Wyoming.

Walt Frazier, with 26 points, sparked the comeback of Southern Illinois against Rutgers in the NIT after the Salukis had trailed at 32-21. Bob Lloyd and Jim Valvano, Rutgers' stars, were held to four points each in the second half. Valvano finished with 24, Lloyd 20.

George Thompson threw in 28 points to lead Marquette over Marshall. The Warriors pulled away with a 10-2 burst in the second half after Marshall had rallied to within one point at 57-56. George Stone led the Thundering Herd from West Virginia with 25 points.

Eugene Smiley, with 27, and Earl Monroe, with 24, combined for 51 points to pace the Winston-Salem Rams in their upset of Kentucky Wesleyan. Danny Bolden's 27 led Southwest Missouri over Illinois State.

Allen Yields Holdout Crown

By HAL BOCK

And then there was one.

Allen, who was spending spring training selling cars in Philadelphia while holding out for $100,000, probably reached $75,000. He made $40,000 last year when he hit .317, drove in 110 runs and belted 40 home runs.

"I'm happy with the contract and happy that I'll be with the team in a few days," Allen said. "I like playing ball too well to enjoy sitting out while the rest of the players are working out in Florida."

Two weeks ago, Allen said he was ready to spend the season selling autos if the Phillies did not meet his price. Both sides compromised to reach Thursday's agreement.

Marichal is still at home in the Dominican Republic, thinking in terms of six figures while the Giants are standing by their $90,000 offer.

In other exhibitions, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 3-2, Detroit dropped Cincinnati 6-3, Atlanta topped the New York Yankees 6-4 in 16 innings, Cleveland whipped San Francisco 6-2, the Chicago Cubs downed California 7-1, the Chicago White Sox defeated Houston 11-3 Pittsburgh blanked Baltimore 6-0 and Kansas City beat Minnesota 5-2.

The Mets took a five-run lead into the final inning against the Red Sox and came out of it five runs behind.

"That's the wildest thing I've ever been in," said Wes Westrum, who is only starting his second season of managing the Mets.

Cassius Keeps Quiet On Draft Decision

NEW YORK (AP)—Cassius Clay isn't telling whether he'll go into the Army or jail, but it's become apparent that the heavyweight champion plans to put on a dazzling show in what "could be my last fight."

The undefeated, 25-year-old new Texan risks his title for the seventh time within a year and the ninth time in all Wednesday night when he faces 34-year-old Zora Folley at Madison Square Garden.

After confining most of his boxing activity earlier this week to nimble footwork, Clay opened up in the final two rounds of a four-round boxing drill Thursday with sparmate James Ellis.

The champ had a standing room crowd of more than 300 cheering enthusiastically as he punched away at close quarters with his 6-foot-1, 195-pound buddy and sparmate. Ellis has about the same physical measurements as Folley.

"My main concern now is with Folley," said Clay when he was asked to comment on the word from Louisville that he had been ordered to report for Army induction April 11.

He said that information on any appeals would have to come from his attorneys, chiefly Hayden Covington.

When asked if he would go into the Army or to jail if all of his appeals from the draft are rejected, Clay said: "My decision is made. I won't tell you what it is. I have to answer to the government, not reporters. But I know what I have to do."

A reporter told Clay there were Muslims in the Army.

The champion, who has discarded the name of Cassius Clay for that of Muhammad Ali, is seeking exemption from the draft on the grounds that he is a Black Muslim minister.

The 34-year-old Korean War Army veteran boxed four brisk rounds with Wendell Newton in the Garden's Exposition Hall after Clay finished his workout.

Much slower than the fleet-footed, agile champion, Folley continued to concentrate on solid left hooks to the body and fast right-hand counter-punches to the head. Folley will be giving away age, height, weight and reach. He may decide to gamble on a knockout.

"I'm going to try," he said.

Sikes Bids For Win on Home Links

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Dan Sikes has his hometown rooting for him in the Jacksonville Open, but the 36-year-old lawyer says he thinks it's harder to win in golf at home than it is on the road.

"Even Arnold Palmer says the same thing," Jacksonville's only native son on the pro tour said Thursday after grabbing a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $100,000 tournament here.

"I was really nervous," added Sikes after his five-under-par 67 on the wind-raked Deerwood Club course. "It's hard not to let your mind stray when you see somebody you know all the way around the course.

"And I think you try too hard at home and get all tightened up because you want to win so badly in front of your friends," Sikes said. "I know I'd rather win the Jacksonville Open than any other tournament except the real big ones like the Masters."

Victory in the Jacksonville tournament would end a two-year drought for the Florida Law School graduate who last won the 1965 Cleveland Open.

Colbert, who attended Kansas State on a football scholarship before turning to golf, has had little success since joining the tour a year ago. The 26-year-old father of three girls had a hot putting round to make his biggest surge as a pro, sinking birdie putts of 20, 20, 12 and 10 feet.

Brewer, edged by a stroke by Doug Sanders a year ago for the Jacksonville title, said he was playing well "and putting pretty good." The Dallas, Tex., veteran—who will be 35 on Sunday in the tournament showdown—was helped by a 35-foot approach shot which dropped for a birdie on the 16th hole.

Julius Boros, who won the Citrus Open last Sunday, shot a 77, a stroke back of Don January, who won a new car with a hole-in-one on the 156-yard eighth hole.

Kirksville Favored To Keep Indoor Title

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)-Kirksville State is favored to win its ninth straight Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association indoor track and field title Saturday night.

The Bulldogs won the meet last year with 57 points. This year, Coach Kenneth Gardner has 10 returning lettermen who scored 36 points in 1966.

Pirates Rated Prime Contender

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Take the National League batting champ, Matty Alou, as the leadoff man. Put Maury Wills in the No. 2 spot. Then follow with proven hitters like Robert Clemente, Willie Stargell and Donn Clendennon. Add the whiz short-second combo of Gene Alley and Bill Mazeroski, plus the catcher and pitcher.

No wonder the wise guys are lining up behind the Pittsburgh Pirates as the probable pennant winner in the National League.

The Pirates came close last year when they led through the dog days of August and early September. They still were in the race until the day before the season ended although loss of a final three-game series to San Francisco dropped them into third place.

The thin pitching line has been bolstered by the addition of Juan Pizarro from the Chicago White Sox and Dennis Ribant from the New York Mets.

"I like my chances better than I did last year at this time," said Manager Harry Walker. "The Phillies and Braves will be trouble. In fact, the whole league is tough.

"This has got to be one of the most exciting races in the history of the National League. You have to get the break to win. Each man has to come up to his potential and you can't have injuries to key men.

"My first year here we had to change the thinking of a lot of people. Last year we had to do much less. This year everybody is doing it my way because they know the way I think.

"Wills will help us with his glove at third base. We should have a real fine infield. I expect Maury to come in and talk to the pitcher at times. Maz and Alley never open up too much.

"I had Wills talking to the players about base stealing the other day. We'll do it again later. I don't expect everybody to start stealing bases but he will help get them in the right attitude. That was one of the reasons we got him."

Alley at shortstop and Mazeroski at second base were the key men last year when the Pirates broke the major league double play record with 215.

Clendenon, a 6-foot-3½-inch, 210-pound first baseman, rounds out the infield. He hit 28 homers, inocked in 98 runs and was one of five regulars who hit .299 or better last season. Alley also hit. 299, Maz batted. 262.

Alou platooned with Manny Mota in center field, and the two drove pitchers to drink. Alou led the league at .342 and Mota hit .332, second best, although Manny was not up at bat enough times to be an official contender.

Clemente was the Most Valuable Player in the league with his .317 average, 29 homers and 119 runs batted in. Stargell in left field hammered 33 homers, knocked in 102 runs and hit .315.

Catching was a Pirate problem last year because Jim Pagliaroni faded to .235. Down the stretch Jesse Gonder (.225) was the No. 1 receiver. Pagliaroni came to camp 16 pounds lighter and probably will recapture his starting job.

The pitching let the Pirates down last year. The hitters combined for a club average of .279, the best in the majors, but the pitchers gave up about four runs a game.

Frederick Brothers On All-MCAU Five

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Two brothers, Gail and Virgle Frederick of Drury landed first team berths on the all-Missouri College Athletic Union basketball squad picked by league coaches and announced Thursday.

Others on the team are Tom Sponcil of William Jewell, and Jay Moore and Gary Ulrich, both of Culver-Stockton.

Second team selections also included a set of brothers, Jerry and Gary Wells of Westminster, along with Mike Mattox of Graceland, Lawrence (Skip) Shear of Tarkio and Larry Holley of William Jewell.

Morehouse, Vanduser Gain Tourney Semifinals

VANDUSER--Morehouse and Vanduser advanced into a head-on meeting in tonight's semifinals of the Vanduser men's independent basketball tournament by nailing down triumphs in last night's concluding quarterfinal action.

High-scoring Morehouse breezed in by piling up a stunning 117-54 margin over Hahs Machine Works of Sikeston. The Vanduser five took the opposite route by narrowly escaping Morley's late comeback bid to squeeze out an 86-84 decision.

Following the semifinals opener between Gray Ridge and Matthews at 7 p.m., Morehouse and Vanduser will return to battle it out at 8:30 p.m. for the remaining berth in Saturday night's championship game.

Morehouse raced to a 30-21 lead in the first quarter of last night's opener and went on to increase its lead in each period as Hahs was unable to match the torrid pace. Don Savage bombed in 43 points to pace the victors, who also received 36 points from Dale Sexton and 20 by Ron Ford. Bill Dickens topped the Sikeston squad with 23.

The Vanduser-Morley contest seesawed back and forth until the hosts pulled away to a 63-52 lead at the end of the third quarter and appeared on the way to wrapping up a comfortable victory margin. However, Morley caught fire in the final frame and whittled the deficit to the final two-point difference with seconds to go. Vanduser then was able to hold the ball until the buzzer sounded and foil the Morley comeback bid.

Ken Wages scored 21 points to lead a Vanduser attack which included four other double figure scorers, but yielded game honors to Dennis Holland and Jim Abernathy who cashed in 22 each for Morley.

The totals:

Morehouse	30	29	31	27-117
Hahs Machine	21	15	6	12-54

Morehouse scoring-- Savage 43, Sexton 26, Ford 20, Landers 14, Bryant 10, Crumpecker 4.

Hahs Machine Works -- Dickens 23, Hahs 14, R. Guethle 6, T. Guethle 6, Harlan 5.

Vanduser	14	21	28	23--86
Morley	16	20	16	32--84

Vanduser scoring -- Wages 21, Owens 17, Taylor 17, Carter 15, Bell 12, Graviett 4.

Morley scoring -- Holland 22, Abernathy 22, Morgan 14, Farrare 8, Isaacs 8, Ferrenburg 6, May 4.

St. Benedict's and OBU Favored in NAIA Semis

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Top-seeded St. Benedict's of Kansas and Oklahoma Baptist's pressure-loving defending champions are favored to move into Saturday night's finals in a NAIA basketball tourney which has followed the form chart almost exactly.

St. Benedict's, 25-2 with 17 straight victories squares off at 7 p.m. CST, tonight against Morris Harvey of West Virginia, 28-3, a club it defeated 81-72 in the finals of the Quincy, Ill., tourney in December.

Oklahoma Baptist, 24-6 after a 66-65 cliff-hanger over tough Southwestern Louisiana, goes to the post at 9 against Central Washington, 70-68 upset winner over No. 2 seede Eastern New Mexico Central is 26-3.

Except for [illegible]'s loss, the semifinals w[illegible]ched the top four seeded teams. The Seeding committee w[illegible]ll of its first eight seede[illegible] reach Thursday night's quarter finals. Veteran observers sai[illegible] this was unprecedented for the 30-year-old tourney.

St. Benedict's coach Ralph Nolan almost smiled over his team's excellenth 62 per cent shooting and excellent effort in an impressive 88-73 romp over St. Mary's of Texas. Darryl Jones led the Kansas team with 25 points and 17 rebounds.

"Well, at least we get to stay all week," Nolan said.

Moberly Draws Cameron Again

HUTCHINSON, Kan. AP - It will almost be a repeat of a year ago for Moberly, Mo., and Cameron of Oklahoma when they square off tonight in the semifinals of the National Junior College basketball tournament.

They met in the championship game in 1966, and Moberly won. Moberly came into the tournament this year ranked No. [illegible] and a favorite to repeat [illegible]national champion.

Moberly gained its semifinal berth Thursday night by defeating Boise, Idaho, 70-50. High for Moberly was Bernie Copeland with 21 points. Tops for Boise was Keith Burke with 12.

Two Texas teams, Ranger and San Jacinto, meet in semifinal play also tonight.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grand Premiere, who has moved into the top echelon of the Kentucky Derby prospects, goes after his fifth straight victory of the season Saturday in the $45,000-added Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds.

While better known 3-year-olds, such as Reflected Glory, Ruken and Tumble Wind, were building up reputations in rich races at Santa Anita and Hialeah Park, Mrs. Joe W. Brown kept her son of My Babu at the New Orleans Track, where he romped in all of his four starts. The last was in the LeComte Handicap on Feb. 25.

The 1⅛-mile Louisiana Derby, feature of the final program at the Fairgrounds, should furnish a real test for Grand Premiere. He showed he was sharp by sizzling one-half mile in 46 4-5 seconds Wednesday.

Conditions of the race call for Grand Premiere to carry 120 pounds, six less than Harvey Peltier's Diplomat Way. After showing little since winning the rich Arlington-Washington Futurity early last fall, Diplomat Way looked a little more like himself with a sprint victory last Saturday.

Wyoming Runs Into UCLA; SIU Wins

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hardly anyone expected Wyoming to qualify for the NCAA post season championship tournament when the college basketball season opened last December.

However, the surprising Cowboys from Laramie did and tonight they have the chance to do what no other team has done, beat UCLA and its Player of the Year, Lew Alcindor.

The Cowboys, with the poorest record of any team in the NCAA tourney, 15-12, but with a seven-game winning streak, go against the team with the best, 26-0, in the semifinals of the Far West Regional at Corvallis, Ore.

The NCAA, with eight games at four regional sites, moves into the national spotlight following the triumphs of Southern Illinois and Marquette in the semifinals of the NIT Thursday night.

A capacity turnout of 18,499 at New York's Madison Square Garden saw Southern Illinois come from 11 points back to beat Rutgers 79-70 after Marquette had whipped Marshall 83-78.

Southern Illinois, now 23-2 with an 18-game winning streak, battles Marquette, 21-8, in the nationally televised final game Saturday afternoon.

Winston-Salem State from North Carolina surprised Kentucky Wesleyan 82-73 and Southwest Missouri routed Illinois State 93-76 in the semifinals of the NCAA small college tournament at Evansville, Ind. Winston-Salem, 30-1, and Southwest Missouri, 23-4, play tonight for the championship.

Oklahoma Baptist edged Southwestern Louisiana 66-65, St. Benedict's beat St. Mary's, Tex., 88-73, Morris Harvey downed Tennessee Wesleyan 75-58 and Central Washington squeaked by Eastern New Mexico 60-58.

St. Benedict's, 25-2, meets Morris Harvey, 28-3, and Oklahoma Baptist, 24-6, battles Central Washington, 26-3, in the NAIA semifinals tonight.

Nine of the Top Ten teams in the final Associated Press poll of the season play in the NCAA regionals tonight. Western Kentucky is the only team missing. The sixth-ranked Hilltoppers were upset in overtime by Dayton in the NCAA first round last Saturday.

The unranked Dayton Flyers, 22-5, go against eighth ranked Tennessee, 21-5, in the Mideast regional at Evanston, Ill., where Virginia Tech, 19-6, and Indiana, 17-7, also tangle.

Second-ranked Louisville, 23-3, faces Southern Methodist, 19-5, and third-ranked Kansas, 22-3, battles seventh-ranked Houston, 24-3, in the Midwest regional at Lawrence, Kan.

Fourth-ranked North Carolina, 24-4, and fifth-ranked Princeton, 24-2, meet in the East regional at College Park, Md., after ninth-ranked Boston College, 20-2, encounters St. John's of New York, 23-3.

University of Pacific, 23-3, risks its 20-game winning streak against the 10th ranked and defending national champions, Texas Western, 21-5 at Corvallies, before top-ranked UCLA takes the floor against Wyoming.

Walt Frazier, with 26 points, sparked the comeback of Southern Illinois against Rutgers in the NIT after the Salukis had trailed at 32-21. Bob Lloyd and Jim Valvano, Rutgers' stars, were held to four points each in the second half. Valvano finished with 24, Lloyd 20.

George Thompson threw in 28 points to lead Marquette over Marshall. The Warriors pulled away with a 10-2 burst in the second half after Marshall had rallied to within one point at 57-56. George Stone led the Thundering Herd from West Virginia with 25 points.

Eugene Smiley, with 27, and Earl Monroe, with 24, combined for 51 points to pace the Winston-Salem Rams in their upset of Kentucky Wesleyan. Danny Bolden's 27 led Southwest Missouri over Illinois State.

Allen Yields Holdout Crown

By HAL BOCK

And then there was one.

Allen, who was spending spring training selling cars in Philadelphia while holding out for $100,000, probably reached $75,000. He made $40,000 last year when he hit .317, drove in 110 runs and belted 40 home runs.

"I'm happy with the contract and happy that I'll be with the team in a few days," Allen said. "I like playing ball too well to enjoy sitting out while the rest of the players are working out in Florida."

Two weeks ago, Allen said he was ready to spend the season selling autos if the Phillies did not meet his price. Both sides compromised to reach Thursday's agreement.

Marichal is still at home in the Dominican Republic, thinking in terms of six figures while the Giants are standing by their $90,000 offer.

In other exhibitions, Philadelphia edged St. Louis 3-2, Detroit dropped Cincinnati 6-3, Atlanta topped the New York Yankees 6-4 in 16 innings, Cleveland whipped San Francisco 6-2, the Chicago Cubs downed California 7-1, the Chicago White Sox defeated Houston 11-3 Pittsburgh blanked Baltimore 6-0 and Kansas City beat Minnesota 5-2.

The Mets took a five-run lead into the final inning against the Red Sox and came out of it five runs behind.

"That's the wildest thing I've ever been in," said Wes Westrum, who is only starting his second season of managing the Mets.

Cassius Keeps Quiet On Draft Decision

NEW YORK (AP)—Cassius Clay isn't telling whether he'll go into the Army or jail, but it's become apparent that the heavyweight champion plans to put on a dazzling show in what "could be my last fight."

The undefeated, 25-year-old new Texan risks his title for the seventh time within a year and the ninth time in all Wednesday night when he faces 34-year-old Zora Folley at Madison Square Garden.

After confining most of his boxing activity earlier this week to nimble footwork, Clay opened up in the final two rounds of a four-round boxing drill Thursday with sparmate James Ellis.

The champ had a standing room crowd of more than 300 cheering enthusiastically as he punched away at close quarters with his 6-foot-1, 195-pound buddy and sparmate. Ellis has about the same physical measurements as Folley.

"My main concern now is with Folley," said Clay when he was asked to comment on the word from Louisville that he had been ordered to report for Army induction April 11.

He said that information on any appeals would have to come from his attorneys, chiefly Hayden Covington.

When asked if he would go into the Army or to jail if all of his appeals from the draft are rejected, Clay said: "My decision is made. I won't tell you what it is. I have to answer to the government, not reporters. But I know what I have to do."

A reporter told Clay there were Muslims in the Army.

The champion, who has discarded the name of Cassius Clay for that of Muhammad Ali, is seeking exemption from the draft on the grounds that he is a Black Muslim minister.

The 34-year-old Korean War Army veteran boxed four brisk rounds with Wendell Newton in the Garden's Exposition Hall after Clay finished his workout.

Much slower than the fleet-footed, agile champion, Folley continued to concentrate on solid left hooks to the body and fast right-hand counter-punches to the head. Folley will be giving away age, height, weight and reach. He may decide to gamble on a knockout.

"I'm going to try," he said.

Sikes Bids For Win on Home Links

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Dan Sikes has his hometown rooting for him in the Jacksonville Open, but the 36-year-old lawyer says he thinks it's harder to win in golf at home than it is on the road.

"Even Arnold Palmer says the same thing," Jacksonville's only native son on the pro tour said Thursday after grabbing a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $100,000 tournament here.

"I was really nervous," added Sikes after his five-under-par 67 on the wind-raked Deerwood Club course. "It's hard not to let your mind stray when you see somebody you know all the way around the course.

"And I think you try too hard at home and get all tightened up because you want to win so badly in front of your friends," Sikes said. "I know I'd rather win the Jacksonville Open than any other tournament except the real big ones like the Masters."

Victory in the Jacksonville tournament would end a two-year drought for the Florida Law School graduate who last won the 1965 Cleveland Open.

Colbert, who attended Kansas State on a football scholarship before turning to golf, has had little success since joining the tour a year ago. The 26-year-old father of three girls had a hot putting round to make his biggest surge as a pro, sinking birdie putts of 20, 20, 12 and 10 feet.

Brewer, edged by a stroke by Doug Sanders a year ago for the Jacksonville title, said he was playing well "and putting pretty good." The Dallas, Tex., veteran—who will be 35 on Sunday in the tournament showdown—was helped by a 35-foot approach shot which dropped for a birdie on the 16th hole.

Julius Boros, who won the Citrus Open last Sunday, shot a 77, a stroke back of Don January, who won a new car with a hole-in-one on the 156-yard eighth hole.

Kirksville Favored To Keep Indoor Title

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)-Kirksville State is favored to win its ninth straight Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association indoor track and field title Saturday night.

The Bulldogs won the meet last year with 57 points. This year, Coach Kenneth Gardner has 10 returning lettermen who scored 36 points in 1966.

Pirates Rated Prime Contender

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Take the National League batting champ, Matty Alou, as the leadoff man. Put Maury Wills in the No. 2 spot. Then follow with proven hitters like Robert Clemente, Willie Stargell and Donn Clendennon. Add the whiz short-second combo of Gene Alley and Bill Mazeroski, plus the catcher and pitcher.

No wonder the wise guys are lining up behind the Pittsburgh Pirates as the probable pennant winner in the National League.

The Pirates came close last year when they led through the dog days of August and early September. They still were in the race until the day before the season ended although loss of a final three-game series to San Francisco dropped them into third place.

The thin pitching line has been bolstered by the addition of Juan Pizarro from the Chicago White Sox and Dennis Ribant from the New York Mets.

"I like my chances better than I did last year at this time," said Manager Harry Walker. "The Phillies and Braves will be trouble. In fact, the whole league is tough.

"This has got to be one of the most exciting races in the history of the National League. You have to get the break to win. Each man has to come up to his potential and you can't have injuries to key men.

"My first year here we had to change the thinking of a lot of people. Last year we had to do much less. This year everybody is doing it my way because they know the way I think.

"Wills will help us with his glove at third base. We should have a real fine infield. I expect Maury to come in and talk to the pitcher at times. Maz and Alley never open up too much.

"I had Wills talking to the players about base stealing the other day. We'll do it again later. I don't expect everybody to start stealing bases but he will help get them in the right attitude. That was one of the reasons we got him."

Alley at shortstop and Mazeroski at second base were the key men last year when the Pirates broke the major league double play record with 215.

Clendenon, a 6-foot-3½-inch, 210-pound first baseman, rounds out the infield. He hit 28 homers, inocked in 98 runs and was one of five regulars who hit .299 or better last season. Alley also hit. 299, Maz batted. 262.

Alou platooned with Manny Mota in center field, and the two drove pitchers to drink. Alou led the league at .342 and Mota hit .332, second best, although Manny was not up at bat enough times to be an official contender.

Clemente was the Most Valuable Player in the league with his .317 average, 29 homers and 119 runs batted in. Stargell in left field hammered 33 homers, knocked in 102 runs and hit .315.

Catching was a Pirate problem last year because Jim Pagliaroni faded to .235. Down the stretch Jesse Gonder (.225) was the No. 1 receiver. Pagliaroni came to camp 16 pounds lighter and probably will recapture his starting job.

The pitching let the Pirates down last year. The hitters combined for a club average of .279, the best in the majors, but the pitchers gave up about four runs a game.

Frederick Brothers On All-MCAU Five

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Two brothers, Gail and Virgie Frederick of Drury landed first team berths on the all-Missouri College Athletic Union basketball squad picked by league coaches and announced Thursday.

Second team selections also included a set of brothers, Jerry and Gary Wells of Westminster, along with Mike Mattox of Graceland, Lawrence (Skip) Shear of Tarkio and Larry Holley of William Jewell.

Legislature Calls for Tax Sharing Plan

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Both houses of the legislature asked Congress today to adopt some tax sharing plan with the states.

The proposal, endorsed by the National Governors' Conference and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, has been proposed in all states.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, an officer of the Council of State Governments, said similar proposals already have passed in Texas, Illinois, New York and Montana.

There was little debate in the House although some members suggested it was a futile gesture. The Senate debated the proposal almost two hours.

Sen. William B. Waters, D-Liberty, sponsoring the proposal, agreed the Senate was breaking a precedent in memorializing Congress.

But he said it is time to start telling Congress how the states feel about the government preempting practically all sources of revenue, then telling the states how they should spend federal grants.

Sen. Thomas G. Woolsey, R-Versailles, called it a step in the right direction.

"The trouble is," he said, "we now have professional legislators in Washington who don't come home to talk with their constituents."

He criticized what he called "goofy programs that strip the states of their powers."

Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, said the trouble is the legislature has neglected its responsibilities in too many fields —"we've stuck our heads in the sand and have become a bunch of sacred cow protectors."

The resolution passed the Senate 24-4.

EXPERIENCE teaches us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the government's purposes are beneficient.

Continuation of Food Stamp Program Urged

WASHINGTON AP -- Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., and the National Grange called Thursday for Congress to put the nation's food stamp program on a permanent basis.

Authority to appropriate funds for the program, started in 1964, expires June 30. It has been estimated that about two million persons in 857 areas will be taking part in the program by that date.

Mrs. Sullivan, one of the original backers of the plan, said a permanent program, limited only by the funds Congress appropriates each year, would not constitute a risk of overexpansion or excessive cost.

She told the House Agriculture Committee the program should go forward "not wither and die after so dramatically establishing its value to this nation. . ."

Eligible families exchange the amount of money they normally would spend for food for an allotment of food coupons worth more under the program. They then use the coupons as they would cash -- to buy more and better food at local grocery stores.

Harry L. Graham, legislative representative of the grange, backed the program but said a problem exists for migratory persons who do not live long enough in one locality to qualify for the distribution of either surplus foods or food stamps.

Three Races At Lilbourn

LILBOURN -- Four men have filed for the three aldermanic posts in the city election April 4, City Clerk Jimmy Dumback, reports.

Ward 1: Charles Taylor has filed for the one-year unexpired term. Harold Ponder now holds that position.

Ward 1: Billy Roe has filed for the two-year term. Clyde Collier now holds that position.

Ward 2: Terry Hawkins and Dick Twitty, incumbents, have filed for this two-year term.

TV Stars Shun Short, Short Skirts

AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Short, short skirts on women of all ages, sizes and shapes may be commonplace all over America, but the only place one is likely to run into high style around the hemline on television is in the variety programs.

It isn't that performers like Lucille Ball and Eva Gabor are not fashion - conscious. They are, but they are even more conscious that fashion is fickle and that re- runs of comedy programs are very profitable.

In many current Lucy shows, the actress appears in smart two-piece suits—and invariably the skirt discreetly covers the knees. Miss Gabor who in her present role of an incredibly urban soul in "Green Acres" incredibly bucolic setting, probably has the most chic wardrobe in television, but rarely reveals a knee cap.

But Carol Burnett turned up Sunday night on the Smothers Brothers variety hour in a short sequin dinner dress. Peggy Cass occasionally wears mini-skirts and white stockings on her panel show, "To Tell the Truth."

They are permitted to. There is little rerun value in variety and panel shows.

Comedy shows, particularly Lucille Ball's series, have long lives as reruns. Some of those early "I Love Lucy" shows have been repeated as often as 14 times in 15 years.

Safest shows, from the standpoint of showing age, are the period pieces. After all the cowboys and dance hall hostesses of the 1880s are no different in dress now than they were in Gary Cooper's heyday.

Laureen Bacall will participate in a documentary about her late husband, Humphrey Bogart, now in production by David Wolper for broadcast next season. She nas no connection—nor will have— with ABC's "Bogart" special on April 23, a product of a pair of British documentarians. Because of her attitude toward the upcoming ABC show, Richard Burton, originally set to do the narration, has pulled out.

TOO MUCH IDLENESS, I have observed, fills up a man's time much more completely, and leaves him less his own master, than any sort of employment whatsoever.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer Reports

JEFFERSON CITY -- This week was largely spent in perfecting the Appropriation Bills which amount to $1,108,000,000. This money is for the general operation of the State of Missouri, plus recommended improvements and increases which the Governor and the Legislators feel are necessary for the progress of the State of Missouri in keeping with our sound principal requiring that we spend no more money than we take in in the State of Missouri. These bills will be finally passed by the House next week, in which I shall go into a little more detail concerning some of the appropriations.

House bill 19 was passed which gives the state some authority to issue injunctions to stop fraudulent business people. An example would be professional con - men, who come into an area for a few days to fix furnaces, pave driveways, side houses, etc., cheat the people and then are gone before any action can be taken by local authorities. This bill is recommended by both the Attorney General and the Governor.

House bill 31 was passed which will allow a judge to permit a person to use their chauffeurs license or operators license in lieu of bale, when arrested for a misdemeaner on our streets and highways. Of course, the judge will have the authority to decide if this will be acceptable in a specific case.

House bill 129 was passed which will create the new Department of Committee Affairs in the State of Missouri.

House bill 62 was passed which allows the Board of Education of the district to estimate average daily attendance for the ensuing year instead of the average daily attendance for the preceding year, in receiving their state aid.

House bills 140 and 141 were perfected which abolishes the law concerning marriage between white people, negroes and mongolians in the State of Missouri, which presently makes such marriages felonious in nature.

House bill 258 was perfected which would guarantee all teachers at least 30 minutes uninterupted for their lunch.

Cadillac has an entry in every price range.

High-price. 1967 Sedan de Ville

Low-price. 1964 Sedan de Ville

No matter what price car you are planning to buy, you owe it to yourself to consider Cadillac. First, there is the great new 1967 Cadillac. Noticeably more agile in its handling, smoother and quieter in its operation, more luxurious in its appointments . . . it is by far the finest Cadillac in history. However, if a new Cadillac is presently not feasible, your authorized dealer now has a wide selection of previously owned Cadillacs at just about any price you wish to pay. And that price will buy more luxury, distinction and motoring pleasure than a similarly priced car of lesser stature. For example, both the 1965 and 1964 models shown provide you with a big 340-horsepower V-8 engine . . . Turbo Hydra-Matic transmission . . . power brakes and steering . . . cornering lights . . . and many other conveniences. So when you think of your next car—think of Cadillac. New or previously owned, in whatever price range you choose, Cadillac is sure to reward you with unsurpassed motoring enjoyment.

Legislature Calls for Tax Sharing Plan

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Both houses of the legislature asked Congress today to adopt some tax sharing plan with the states.

The proposal, endorsed by the National Governors' Conference and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, has been proposed in all states.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, an officer of the Council of State Governments, said similar proposals already have passed in Texas, Illinois, New York and Montana.

There was little debate in the House although some members suggested it was a futile gesture. The Senate debated the proposal almost two hours.

P-TA to Buy Equipment With Project Proceeds

The executive committee of the Southwest School Parent-Teacher Association met Monday night.

President Barbara Hitchcock called the meeting to order and Principal Jack Cothern gave the invocation. Both the secretary and the treasurer were absent so the minutes of February were read by Mrs. Shelby Scarbrough and Mrs. Hitchcock gave the financial report and read a thank you letter from the Brownies for a $25 camperships given to them from the P-TA. The membership chairman was asked to be looking for a movie to be seen by Mrs. Watts' fifth grade room. The class won the membership contest.

Cothern reported that the third quarter ends Wednesday and report cards will go home April 5th. Tests will be given to the sixth grade Tuesday through Thursday. He also expressed his appreciation to the women who worked at the school election.

Mrs. Hitchcock was authorized to order the playground equipment for the school with money from proceeds of P-TA's fund raising projects.

The next executive meeting will be at 7 p.m. April 3 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Clayton, 1020 Ruth. There was no further business and the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Evelyn Barnett.

St. Patrick's Day Tradition

Almost as traditional for St. Patrick's Day as "the wearin' of the green" is the servin' of corned beef.

Corned beef and cabbage . . . corned beef hash . . . thick corned beef sandwiches. . . whatever your preference, that flavorful meat is a timely choice. Corned beef is quite likely to be a feature item in food stores this week, too, though of course this needn't be the only time you serve it.

Made from fresh brisket of beef, this meat really has nothing to do with corn. The term "corned" comes form an old Norse world, "korn," meaning grain, as a grain of salt. "Corned" beef, of course, is salt-cured.

The salt-brine preserving takes about a month. During the whole process, in plants using the U.S. Department of Agriculture's meat inspection service, the meat is under controlled sanitary conditions. Your assurance of this wholesome preparation is the round inspection stamp marked on the wrapper or the meat itself by inspectors in USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Long, slow cooking is needed to develop the flavor properly. But it needs no special attention. Just simmer over low heat about an hour for each pound.

The secret to nice, juicy corned beef is to let the meat cool slightly in its cooking juices, advise USDA home economists. They also offer the following glaze to glamorize your corned beef and suggest two tasty recipes for taking care of leftovers.

GLAMORIZING GLAZE

1/2 t dry mustard
1/2 t flour
1/4 t salt
2 egg yolks, beaten
3/4 cup milk, scalded
2T lemon juice

Mix mustard, flour and salt in top of double boiler. Add beaten yolks and beat well. Add milk slowly. Cook until thick, then add lemon juice. Spread glaze generously over meat which is in an open roasting pan. Bake at 400 degrees F. until glaze is set (about 20 minutes.

CORNED BEEF SANDWICH TREAT

2 cups ground cooked corned beef
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
2 T milk
2 T salad dressing
1/4 cup chopped chives
2 t prepared horseradish
2 t prepared mustard
3 large English muffins, split and toasted
12 dill pickle slices

Soften cream cheese. Add milk and salad dressing and blend well. Combine cream cheese mixture, corned beef, chives, horseradish and mustard. Mix well. Spread approximately 1/3 cup sandwich filling on toasted side of each English muffin. Garnish each sandwich with 2 dill pickle slices. Broil slowly until heated through, about 10 minutes. 6 sandwiches.

GARDEN CRISP CORNED BEEF SALAD

2 cups julienne-style cooked corned beef
1 cup chopped fresh spinach
1/2 head lettuce, separated
1 small onion, thinly sliced
Italian or French dressing

Toss together corned beef, spinach, lettuce, onion and enough Italian or French dressing to moisten. 6 servings.

The executive committee of the Southwest School Parent-Teacher Association met Monday night.

President Barbara Hitchcock called the meeting to order and Principal Jack Cothern gave the invocation. Both the secretary and the treasurer were absent so the minutes of February were read by Mrs. Shelby Scarbrough and Mrs. Hitchcock gave the financial report and read a thank you letter from the Brownies for a $25 camperships given to them from the P-TA. The membership chairman was asked to be looking for a movie to be seen by Mrs. Watts' fifth grade room. The class won the membership contest.

Cothern reported that the third quarter ends Wednesday and report cards will go home April 5th. Tests will be given to the sixth grade Tuesday through Thursday. He also expressed his appreciation to the women who worked at the school election.

Mrs. Hitchcock was authorized to order the playground equipment for the school with money from proceeds of P-TA's fund raising projects.

The next executive meeting will be at 7 p.m. April 3 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Clayton, 1020 Ruth. There was no further business and the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Evelyn Barnett.

Bill Bradshaw vs. Margie Bradshaw, divorce, decree awarded to plaintiff and forename of Dent restored to defendent.

St. Patrick's Day Tradition

Corned beef and cabbage . . . corned beef hash . . . thick corned beef sandwiches. . . whatever your preference, that flavorful meat is a timely choice. Corned beef is quite likely to be a feature item in food stores this week, too, though of course this needn't be the only time you serve it.

Made from fresh brisket of beef, this meat really has nothing to do with corn. The term "corned" comes form an old Norse world, "korn," meaning grain, as a grain of salt. "Corned" beef, of course, is salt-cured.

The salt-brine preserving takes about a month. During the whole process, in plants using the U.S. Department of Agriculture's meat inspection service, the meat is under controlled sanitary conditions. Your assurance of this wholesome preparation is the round inspection stamp marked on the wrapper or the meat itself by inspectors in USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service.

Long, slow cooking is needed to develop the flavor properly. But it needs no special attention. Just simmer over low heat about an hour for each pound.

The secret to nice, juicy corned beef is to let the meat cool slightly in its cooking juices, advise USDA home economists. They also offer the following glaze to glamorize your corned beef and suggest two tasty recipes for taking care of leftovers.

GLAMORIZING GLAZE
1/2 t dry mustard
1/2 t flour
1/4 t salt
2 egg yolks, beaten
3/4 cup milk, scalded
2T lemon juice

Mix mustard, flour and salt in top of double boiler. Add beaten yolks and beat well. Add milk slowly. Cook until thick, then add lemon juice. Spread glaze generously over meat which is in an open roasting pan. Bake at 400 degrees F. until glaze is set (about 20 minutes.

CORNED BEEF SANDWICH TREAT
2 cups ground cooked corned beef
1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese
2 T milk
2 T salad dressing
1/4 cup chopped chives
2 t prepared horseradish
2 t prepared mustard
3 large English muffins, split and toasted
12 dill pickle slices

Soften cream cheese. Add milk and salad dressing and blend well. Combine cream cheese mixture, corned beef, chives, horseradish and mustard. Mix well. Spread approximately 1/3 cup sandwich filling on toasted side of each English muffin. Garnish each sandwich with 2 dill pickle slices. Broil slowly until heated through, about 10 minutes. 6 sandwiches.

GARDEN CRISP CORNED BEEF SALAD
2 cups julienne-style cooked corned beef
1 cup chopped fresh spinach
1/2 head lettuce, separated
1 small onion, thinly sliced
Italian or French dressing

Toss together corned beef, spinach, lettuce, onion and enough Italian or French dressing to moisten. 6 servings.

Oh, I'm a double-barrel grandpa,
And I should strut, I think;

The greatest young'uns ever sired,
And Grandma says "It's so!"

Yep, I'm a double- barrel grandpa,
And am I proud? Whoo-e-e-e!
Hey, mister, tell the gospel truth--

Scott City Protests Cape Airport Runway

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A protest filed by the city council of Scott City over the alignment of the new runway at municipal airport is causing a delay in the awarding of a contract for the runway construction.

Scott City Mayor Nevan Fisher said that the protest, filed with both the federal aviation agency and the city of Cape Girardeau, was based on noise and safety factors.

However, he added today that the problem does not appear to be as serious as was first thought.

A meeting was held Tuesday between Cape Girardeau and Scott City officials and the FAA, and the Cape Girardeau City Council plans to meet with the Scott City Council Friday night in an attempt to resolve the problem.

The FAA has informed the city that until the matter is resolved, the formal offer of the federal matching grant will not be made.

This has the effect of holding up the awarding of a construction contract, bids for which were taken on Feb. 21.

Frederick said a bid can usually be held 30 days before action is required. Next Tuesday, when the council next plans to meet, will be the 28th day and Frederick said he would like to be able to award the contract then.

Scott City Mayor Fisher and City Attorney Thomas Arnold, met with three FAA officials from Kansas City and the Cape Girardeau representatives Tuesday morning.

The Scott City officials were told that the present alignment of the runway is the best one which could have been attained.

"We feel that neither the safety nor the noise factor is going to be justified," Frederick told the council today. "Nothing could be accomplished by moving the runway."

City officials said that the FAA concurs in the city's view that the alignment is the best one available.

It is true, they said, that a straight line extension of the runway would pass over the southwest edge of Scott City.

Frederick pointed out, swinging the axis of the runway in either direction would make the situation worse. A northerly swing would bring airplanes over the major part of the city and a southerly adjustment would line the runway with the school.

The approach pattern for the new runway, it was reported today, will not be over Scott City, but will be to the west of that community.

Choice of Right Cotton Variety Important Step

By Joe Scott
Extension Cotton Specialist

PORTAGEVILLE -- Knowing your farm, its soil types and disease problems will aid you in choosing a cotton variety that will permit maximum efficient production of high quality lint. The delta region has vast differences in soils and associated diseases. These differences may vary. Selecting the right variety is the first step toward profitable cotton production.

Until recently, yield has been the major consideration in selecting a cotton variety. Growers are now finding many other considerations, in addition to yield, necessary to securing the best price and efficiency in production. Staple length, earliness of crop, gin turnout, plant type, boll size, storm resistance, and plant height are important. Lint quality characteristics of a variety also affect price. Disease resistance helps insure production and quality potentials. Progress growers are now aware of the need for adapted disease resistant varieties with superior fiber properties necessary to fulfill both producer and industry needs.

Local experimental results can be used as a guide in selecting a variety or varieties that will fit your farm and industry needs. However, remember that the performance of any variety may be influenced annually by environmental conditions. Experimental results of at least three years duration should be considered necessary to estimate lint production and quality capabilities.

In Missouri special consideration should be given to use of early maturing, disease-resistant varieties to avoid production of fiber deteriorated by early frosts and diseases.

Varieties suggested for Missouri in 1967 are essentially the same as those recommended in 1966 with minor changes. Delapine 45A replaces DPL 45 and Auburn 56 will be deleted in 1968 as no seed is being grown in Missouri.

1967 VARIETY RECOMMENDATIONS ARE:

Sandy loam, loam and clay loam (including those infested with verticillium wilt) -- Deltapine 45A, Auburn M, Stoneville 213, Rex SL, Auburn 56, Deltapine Smooth Leaf.

Sandy Soils (especially those infested with fusarium wilt root-knot nematode disease) -- Auburn M and Auburn 56

Clay or "gumbo" Soils -- Rex Smoothleaf, and Deltapine 45 A.

Late plantings (all soils after May 15) -- Auburn M

McClintocks' Long Service PSC Record

JEFFERSON CITY -- E. L. McClintock, public service commissioner, will retire in April from PSC after serving as commissioner longer than any in the history of the agency. Marvin E. Jones, Dexter, attorney, has been appointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to fill the position.

Judge McClintock, called "dean" of the PSC, was born Dec. 13, 1889, at Farmington. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClintock. His father was an educator.

The Judge was appointed to the Commission by the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in 1945. He was reappointed in 1949, 1955 and 1961 and has served under five Missouri governors.

Prior to appointment Judge McClintock, lived at Cape Girardeau 35 years. He was an official court reporter there and has spent more than 50 years in the courts of the State. He was admitted to the Missouri Bar in 1925 and last year was named senior counselor by the Missouri Bar Association.

While living at Cape Girardeau, he served six years as chairman of the county Democratic committee and the tenth congressional Democratic committee. He was also a member of the state Democratic committee. He is a past president of the Cape Girardeau County Bar association and served six years as president of the Cape Girardeau board of education.

A former president of the Midwest Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, Judge McClintock is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

Judge McClintock has two children, a son, E. L. McClintock, Jr., Farmington attorney; and a daughter, Mrs. Harold G. Gallagher, Manhattan, Kan. He has eight grandchildren.

THE CASE OF SANFORD BOMSTEIN

There is an interesting story involving the friendship between Sen. Tom Dodd and Sanford Bomstein who loaned $5,000 to Dodd in 1958 and raised $12,804 for him at a D. C. reception in 1963, part of which was used to pay Bomstein back.

Bomstein is a former cigar-store owner in Bridgeport, Conn., who moved to Washington to conduct four swinging nightclubs and restaurants. He operates the "rocket room" on New York Avenue where the teenage swingers congregate. It is the most popular rock 'n' roll rendezvous in downtown Washington. Alongside it is "The Famous," a hillbilly restaurant. In addition, Bomstein operates the "Shelter Room" in Southeast Washington and once operated the "Crazy Horse" in Georgetown until the Georgetown Citizens Association determined to close up "The Georgetown Strip," at which time Bomstein moved out.

His record with the police is good.

Bomstein has also been president of the Food and Beverage Association of the District of Columbia and as such was active in appearing before Congressional committees on behalf of liquor dealers. He has wanted to keep the drinking age in the District of Columbia at 18 instead of 21, an age which brings teenagers flocking into the District of Columbia from adjacent Maryland and Virginia on weekends.

Bomstein is described by friends as a man who enjoyed basking in the shadow of an important personage, hence his money - loaning and money-raising for Dood. He appears to have done more for Dodd than Dodd did for him.

Shortly before Bomstein helped raise the $12,804 at the 1963 "D. C. Reception for Dodd," the senator from Connecticut was being pressed by internal revenue on a previous income tax payment. He owed the government $13,500 and internal revenue notified him that it had waited for payment as long as it could. If there was further delay, IRS agents threatened to open his books.

This was something Dodd obviously did not want. At this point he borrowed $7,500 from Lazarus Hayman, a Connecticut financier who operates the Gateway Finance Company. Dodd had secured an appointment for Sam Hayman, son of the financier, as assistant U.S. Attorney in Hartford. Since Dodd is a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee he had influence with the justice department and had no trouble getting the appointment.

After borrowing the $7,500 from Hayman, Dodd needed $6,000 more to fulfill the $13,500 debt to internal revenue. So he transferred $6,000 from the D. C. reception funds raised by Bomstein to Dodd's personal account in the Riggs Bank and with it paid internal revenue $6,000.

Six months later, around February, 1964, when Dodd's accountant was preparing his income tax returns, he discovered the $6,000 taken from the "D. C. Reception" fund and warned Dodd that this would have to be treated either as income or a loan. If a loan, he advised Dodd that it would have to be repaid before the 1964 election campaign was over. He advised Dodd that it could be repaid from another campaign fund.

This latter advice is important because it shows that the money raised for Dodd was considered as campaign money, not as personal gifts, as the senator now alleges.

Senator Dodd waited six months, then in October, 1964, secured another loan from his friend Lazarus Hayman, which he paid to the Dodd for senate committee.

McClintocks' Long Service PSC Record

JEFFERSON CITY -- E. L. McClintock, public service commissioner, will retire in April from PSC after serving as commissioner longer than any in the history of the agency. Marvin E. Jones, Dexter, attorney, has been appointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to fill the position.

Judge McClintock, called "dean" of the PSC, was born Dec. 13, 1889, at Farmington. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClintock. His father was an educator.

The Judge was appointed to the Commission by the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in 1945. He was reappointed in 1949, 1955 and 1961 and has served under five Missouri governors.

Prior to appointment Judge McClintock, lived at Cape Girardeau 35 years. He was an official court reporter there and has spent more than 50 years in the courts of the State. He was admitted to the Missouri Bar in 1925 and last year was named senior counselor by the Missouri Bar Association.

While living at Cape Girardeau, he served six years as chairman of the county Democratic committee and the tenth congressional Democratic committee. He was also a member of the state Democratic committee. He is a past president of the Cape Girardeau County Bar association and served six years as president of the Cape Girardeau board of education.

A former president of the Midwest Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, Judge McClintock is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

Judge McClintock has two children, a son, E. L. McClintock, Jr., Farmington attorney; and a daughter, Mrs. Harold G. Gallagher, Manhattan, Kan. He has eight grandchildren.

THE CASE OF SANFORD BOMSTEIN

There is an interesting story involving the friendship between Sen. Tom Dodd and Sanford Bomstein who loaned $5,000 to Dodd in 1958 and raised $12,804 for him at a D. C. reception in 1963, part of which was used to pay Bomstein back.

Bomstein is a former cigar-store owner in Bridgeport, Conn., who moved to Washington to conduct four swinging nightclubs and restaurants. He operates the "rocket room" on New York Avenue where the teenage swingers congregate. It is the most popular rock 'n' roll rendezvous in downtown Washington. Alongside it is "The Famous," a hillbilly restaurant. In addition, Bomstein operates the "Shelter Room" in Southeast Washington and once operated the "Crazy Horse" in Georgetown until the Georgetown Citizens Association determined to close up "The Georgetown Strip," at which time Bomstein moved out.

His record with the police is good.

Bomstein has also been president of the Food and Beverage Association of the District of Columbia and as such was active in appearing before Congressional committees on behalf of liquor dealers. He has wanted to keep the drinking age in the District of Columbia at 18 instead of 21, an age which brings teenagers flocking into the District of Columbia from adjacent Maryland and Virginia on weekends.

Bomstein is described by friends as a man who enjoyed basking in the shadow of an important personage, hence his money-loaning and money-raising for Dood. He appears to have done more for Dodd than Dodd did for him.

Shortly before Bomstein helped raise the $12,804 at the 1963 "D. C. Reception for Dodd," the senator from Connecticut was being pressed by internal revenue on a previous income tax payment. He owed the government $13,500 and internal revenue notified him that it had waited for payment as long as it could. If there was further delay, IRS agents threatened to open his books.

This was something Dodd obviously did not want. At this point he borrowed $7,500 from Lazarus Hayman, a Connecticut financier who operates the Gateway Finance Company. Dodd had secured an appointment for Sam Hayman, son of the financier, as assistant U.S. Attorney in Hartford. Since Dodd is a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee he had influence with the justice department and had no trouble getting the appointment.

After borrowing the $7,500 from Hayman, Dodd needed $6,000 more to fulfill the $13,500 debt to internal revenue. So he transferred $6,000 from the D. C. reception funds raised by Bomstein to Dodd's personal account in the Riggs Bank and with it paid internal revenue $6,000.

Six months later, around February, 1964, when Dodd's accountant was preparing his income tax returns, he discovered the $6,000 taken from the "D. C. Reception" fund and warned Dodd that this would have to be treated either as income or a loan. If a loan, he advised Dodd that it would have to be repaid before the 1964 election campaign was over. He advised Dodd that it could be repaid from another campaign fund.

This latter advice is important because it shows that the money raised for Dodd was considered as campaign money, not as personal gifts, as the senator now alleges.

Senator Dodd waited six months, then in October, 1964, secured another loan from his friend Lazarus Hayman, which he paid to the Dodd for senate committee.

When Redemption Is Complete

By Commissioner Samuel Hepburn

WHEN THE Apostle Paul wrote, "Some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?" he was quite accurate in his prophesying. These questions have long intrigued mankind, Christian and non-Christian alike.

Indeed, many persons who have already accepted by faith the fact of a bodily resurrection cannot at all comprehend the how of the resurrection. At the same time, nonbelievers insist that belief in such an apparently unscientific phenomenon is impractical and foolish.

It is true that natural, scientific law provides indisputable proof of certain facts concerning the disposition of the body after death. The bank of common knowledge reveals, for instance, that the human body completely decays after death, returning to the dust from which it was formed.

Science also has shown that particles of the disintegrated body may even contribute to the formation of other beings. So the question naturally follows, "How can the billions of particles which now constitute the body, which is dissolved at death, be brought together again on the resurrection morning?"

There are facts available in the scientific world of knowledge which, coupled with the assurance that God's power is limitless, ought to convince the most stubborn skeptic of the possibility of a bodily resurrection as ordained by God.

Even the scientific fact often has the ring of incredibility. Science has shown, for example, that every human being loses something like a seventh part of the matter of his body and acquires a seventh of new matter every year as body cells die and are replaced.

Carried to its logical conclusion, this fact shows that every person comes into possession of an entirely different body every seven years. The childhood body is not that of youth; nor the body of young adulthood that of old age. Every particle changes, yet the person to whom the body belongs continues to be the same individual. What a mystery is involved in this proven scientific fact!

There are some unbelievers who claim that, since the human body disintegrates and is scattered at death, God would be extremely unjust to place punishment upon any body that might be resurrected, as it would be impossible to be sure that the resurrected body consisted of the same particles of which the rebellious body had been formed.

The fallacy of this line of reasoning is exposed by an incident recently reported in the press.

A man escaped from prison and succeeded for thirty years in hiding his true identity. During those years he established a home, married, raised a family and achieved a position of esteem in the community to which he had fled as a fugitive.

However, his criminal record still remained on the books; the state in which he had committed his crime still had a claim on him. He was eventually discovered and taken back into custody.

Now one could envision the man making a very scientific claim in court. He might disclaim any responsibility for the original crime and deny his escape from prison, reasoning that, since his body had undergone at least four complete cellular changes since the crime was committed, and since the hand which performed the deed no longer existed, his present hand being composed completely of a new matter, it would be unjust to punish his present body for the wrong done by his former body. Being a "new man," according to his reasoning, he should not have to suffer for the deeds of the "old man".

This plea, of course, would be laughed out of court, for while the man had indeed undergone several body changes, he was nonetheless the same person he had been thirty years before.

Every person living is an illustration of the same principle. Science informs this author that he has had approximately nine different bodies since he was dedicated by his parents under the Salvation Army flag, and he has undergone numerous physical changes; yet, his identity has remained.

Similarly, the body raised from the dead at the time of the resurrection, though differing in composition, will be the same body which lived and died in this earthly sphere.

This is a sure thing; the principle of identity which governs the body in this life will govern it at the resurrection. It is a principle which remains constant in the ever-flowing torrent of life.

It holds true in every area of nature where there is life.

From the acorn there springs the little slender shoot, then the sapling, then the monarch of the forest. But the mighty oak and the germinant shoot are one and the same vegetable existence, the same being.

The butterfly which unfolds its multicolored wings in the summer sun is the same creature that was but lately a chrysalis -- and before that a crawling worm and before that a tiny embryo in a specklike egg.

And yet, does there remain in the man, the oak, the butterfly a single one of the ponderable molecules which existed in the embryo, the germ, the egg? Science says no; yet it is the same man, the same vegetable, the same insect.

Paul discussed this impressive truth at great length and wrote about it in the fifteenth chapter of I Corinthians: "But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

". . . that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die: And that which thou sowest thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain:

"But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body.

"All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beats, another of fishes, and another of birds.

"There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

"So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: It is sown in dishonor: it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power: It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

"The beauty of faith is in its articulation—not in the poetry of words, but in action. There is nothing passive about faith. It is a personal force which demands to be translated into constructive action."

That is the creed of James H. Boren, of The Partners.

Jim Boren was born in a Methodist parsonage in Wheatland, Okla., and his life has been steeped in faith.

In college he thought he might follow his father's footsteps and become a minister, but decided he could do more good in the field of education. After a series of teaching assignments, Jim finally found the niche that gave him the greatest potential for faith in action in the Agency for International Development. It was with the Alliance for Progress program, a partnership of the people of the free American Republics, that Jim conceived and organized The Partners.

The Partners is a person to person program in which organizations, state and city institutions, even individuals, can work with people and groups in Central and South America for social, economic and cultural development through private initiative.

The How of the Resurrection

By Commissioner Samuel Hepburn

WHEN THE Apostle Paul wrote, "Some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?" he was quite accurate in his prophesying. These questions have long intrigued mankind, Christian and non-Christian alike.

Indeed, many persons who have already accepted by faith the fact of a bodily resurrection cannot at all comprehend the how of the resurrection. At the same time, nonbelievers insist that belief in such an apparently unscientific phenomenon is impractical and foolish.

It is true that natural, scientific law provides indisputable proof of certain facts concerning the disposition of the body after death. The bank of common knowledge reveals, for instance, that the human body completely decays after death, returning to the dust from which it was formed.

Science also has shown that particles of the disintegrated body may even contribute to the formation of other beings. So the question naturally follows, "How can the billions of particles which now constitute the body, which is dissolved at death, be brought together again on the resurrection morning?"

There are facts available in the scientific world of knowledge which, coupled with the assurance that God's power is limitless, ought to convince the most stubborn skeptic of the possibility of a bodily resurrection as ordained by God.

Even the scientific fact often has the ring of incredibility. Science has shown, for example, that every human being loses something like a seventh part of the matter of his body and acquires a seventh of new matter every year as body cells die and are replaced.

Carried to its logical conclusion, this fact shows that every person comes into possession of an entirely different body every seven years. The childhood body is not that of youth; nor the body of young adulthood that of old age. Every particle changes, yet the person to whom the body belongs continues to be the same individual. What a mystery is involved in this proven scientific fact!

There are some unbelievers who claim that, since the human body disintegrates and is scattered at death, God would be extremely unjust to place punishment upon any body that might be resurrected, as it would be impossible to be sure that the resurrected body consisted of the same particles of which the rebellious body had been formed.

The fallacy of this line of reasoning is exposed by an incident recently reported in the press.

A man escaped from prison and succeeded for thirty years in hiding his true identity. During those years he established a home, married, raised a family and achieved a position of esteem in the community to which he had fled as a fugitive.

However, his criminal record still remained on the books; the state in which he had committed his crime still had a claim on him. He was eventually discovered and taken back into custody.

Now one could envision the man making a very scientific claim in court. He might disclaim any responsibility for the original crime and deny his escape from prison, reasoning that, since his body had undergone at least four complete cellular changes since the crime was committed, and since the hand which performed the deed no longer existed, his present hand being composed completely of a new matter, it would be unjust to punish his present body for the wrong done by his former body. Being a "new man," according to his reasoning, he should not have to suffer for the deeds of the "old man".

This plea, of course, would be laughed out of court, for while the man had indeed undergone several body changes, he was nonetheless the same person he had been thirty years before.

Every person living is an illustration of the same principle. Science informs this author that he has had approximately nine different bodies since he was dedicated by his parents under the Salvation Army flag, and he has undergone numerous physical changes; yet, his identity has remained.

Similarly, the body raised from the dead at the time of the resurrection, though differing in composition, will be the same body which lived and died in this earthly sphere.

This is a sure thing; the principle of identity which governs the body in this life will govern it at the resurrection. It is a principle which remains constant in the ever-flowing torrent of life.

It holds true in every area of nature where there is life.

From the acorn there springs the little slender shoot, then the sapling, then the monarch of the forest. But the mighty oak and the germinant shoot are one and the same vegetable existence, the same being.

The butterfly which unfolds its multicolored wings in the summer sun is the same creature that was but lately a chrysalis -- and before that a crawling worm and before that a tiny embryo in a specklike egg.

And yet, does there remain in the man, the oak, the butterfly a single one of the ponderable molecules which existed in the embryo, the germ, the egg? Science says no; yet it is the same man, the same vegetable, the same insect.

Paul discussed this impressive truth at great length and wrote about it in the fifteenth chapter of I Corinthians: "But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?

". . . that which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die: And that which thou sowest thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain:

"But God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body.

"All flesh is not the same flesh: but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beats, another of fishes, and another of birds.

"There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial: but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another.

"So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: It is sown in dishonor: it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power: It is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body.

Paper Fashions Shown at Second Ladies Fair

ABOUT 1,250 WOMEN attended the paper doll parade fashion show and dessert, the second in a series of Ladies Fair programs, sponsored by area IGA stores.

MEMBERS OF THE audience at the paper doll parade fashion show get a closer look at the paper dresses.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE "RELUCTANT" CANDIDATE

Prior to the 1964 elections, a group of enthusiastic citizens optimistically submitted the name of Richard Nixon for contention in their state's presidential primary. While Mr. Nixon might have been primarily interested in becoming president, he apparently wasn't interested primarily in that state's primary. For he requested that his name be scratched from the ballot and the proper officials so scratched it.

Indignant, Mr. Nixon's supporters hustled off to court where they demanded that their mentor's name be ordered placed back on the ballot.

"They can't force a man to run for president if he doesn't want to run," a state official argued generally in opposition. "This is a democracy."

"That's why we've got a right to say who we want for president," retorted the supporters in effect. "If our man wins in the primary and doesn't want to do anything about it, that's his business. But, as citizens, we've got a right to run him."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you place the "reluctant" candidate's name back on the primary ballot?

This is how the Judge ruled: No! The Judge held that a person cannot be injected into a political arena in which he chooses not to be; that it's his right to say where and when he wants to become engaged in politics and to what extent. His hand cannot be forced by outsiders, concluded the Judge, by their entering his name into a contest which he may deem contrary to his political strategy.

(Based upon a 1964 Florida Supreme Court Decision)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

As a general rule, when a restaurant serves you food to eat, it must be free of foreign substances that can be injurious. When eating fish chowder, however, watch out for lurking fish bones. The responsibility may be yours to avoid them.

(For personal guidance, see your local attorney.)

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God. (Isaiah 59:2, RSV)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, please forgive our sins and cleanse our hearts that we may pray to Thee wholeheartedly. Give us the penitence and faith in Thy orgiving love to confess our sin to Thee. In Jesus' name we ask. Amen.

Looking Back Over The Years

March 17, 1917

The tin house put up on the corner of Front and Kingshighway beats the unsightly wooden shacks that were on the site before, but it looks like the Board of Aldermen ought to have demanded a fireproof or substantial building on such a prominent corner. Tin houses should be turned down in the business section of Sikeston.

School notes. Track and baseball were discussed at a meeting held by the grammar school boys Monday morning. Bill Shain was elected captain of the track team and Ned Tanner captain of the baseball team. The first baseball game will be with the Boy Scouts.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I sent for your booklet "Teen - Age Sex And Ten Ways To Cool It" and I tried all ten ways but not one of them worked.

Now I am in very serious trouble (you can guess the type) and my boy friend has suggested four alternates (marriage was not among them.).

Please do not suggest that I go to my parents because I am an orphan. And don't tell me to try religion because I am an atheist. I hope you will not ask me to speak to my counselor because she has gained a lot of weight lately and I think she is the same spot I'm in. Can you help me? -- MISGUIDED ANGEL

Dear Angel: Darn it! I knew I should have added an 11th way to cool it. I should have suggested that you kids use your excess energy on homework so there would be no strength left for anything -- including writing phony letters.

The New Haven postmark is always a tipoff. I receive more clinkers from you birds at Yale than any other group. Knock it off, will you please?

Dear Ann Landers: I am 24. My husband is 26. We've been married for three years. The first two years were fine, but now we have run into serious trouble. The problem is our friends, if you can call them that.

One couple fights constantly and threatens divorce. The second couple is separated but they like to go out on "dates" and are sleeping together. The third couple is divorced but they are sleeping together. It sounds crummy and believe me it is.

Whenever we get together, which is every weekend, everyone sits in front of the TV and gets knee - walking drunk. The conversation is so vulgar I can't stand it. My husband doesn't say much but he seems to enjoy every minute of it.

I came from a divorced family and making my marriage work is the most important thing in the world to me. Please give me some advice before I crack up. -- LONESOME

Dear Lonesome: Make a date with a decent couple next weekend. Your husband spends his weekends with these drunken bums out of habit and the poor boob probably thinks it's the only game in town.

Dear Ann Landers: I can hardly see straight. What do you mean by telling that girl she didn't have to share her soldier husband's letter from Vietnam with his mother. It's obvious that you don't have a son or you'd be singing a different tune.

You should have told that bride to stop the kid stuff -- "This is mine and you can't have it." A bride should be happy to share her letters with her husband's mother -- and I mean every word. No decent son would write a letter to his wife that he would not want his mother to see. -- ENRAGED

Dear En: Sorry, but the advice stands. A wife should let her mother - in - law know when she receives a letter, and she should relate some of the points of mutual interest, but she should not be expected to share her husband's letters with anyone else.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Dear Charlie:

The company had called me several days ago on an emergency condition in that the Chief's (Engineer's) father had suffered a serious heart condition and he was needed home. The boat was at New Albany, Indiana, just across and down the river from Louisville, Ky. It was also to depart early the next morning, and since the call was in the afternoon, I hopped a plane to Louisville and then on to New Albany.

I really drew "spades". For some normal reason I had in mind that we would be going south only to find that this time it was Pittsburgh.

The Ohio was already high from the snow etc. from the East Coast, and the first few days were dry and cold - then it warmed up and started raining, continuously, then cold again and snow.

We made it as far as Point Pleasant, W. Va. last Tuesday morning, where we were informed that the waters had reached flood stage and the next lock and dam had to shut down, halting all traffic east. We weren't by ourselves. There were soon about 10 other boats with their respective tows (barges) all lined up in the general area. In comparison, it looked like Barkett's supermarket parking lot on Friday afternoon.

At Point Pleasant, the Kanawha River junctions here with the Ohio, going south to Charleston, W. Va. - By Thursday morning these tributaries were beginning to fall some and since we had some cargo to drop at Charleston at Dupont's huge plant complex there, thought we would try to run it. Just before entering this river there's a long overspan railroad bridge - The water was still so high our radar antenna must have cleared it by only a foot and a half. We went on to Charleston, dropped our cargo and by that time the Ohio etc. had begun to drop - so back to Point Pleasant where we made up our tow again.

Yesterday afternoon we proceeded east to Pittsburg again, under a warm sun and mid-50 temperature; a far cry from several days ago -

Sincerely,
Bill
(William C. Colwick)

May the blessed light be on you, light without and light within. May the blessed sunlight shine on you and your heart until it glows like a great fire, so that the Stranger may come and warm himself at it, and also a Friend.

And may the light shine out of the two eyes of you like a candle set in two windows of a house, bidding the wanderer to come in from out of the storm.

And may the blessing of the rain be on you -- the soft, sweet rain. May it fall upon your spirit so that all the little flowers may spring up, and shed their sweetness on the air.

And may the blessing of the great rains be on you; may they beat upon your spirit and wash it fair and clean, and leave there a shining pool where the blue of heaven shines reflected, and sometimes a star. . . .

And may the blessing of the earth be on you - the great and round earth. May you ever have a kindly greeting for them you pass as you're going along the roads. May the earth be soft under you when you lie upon it, tired at the end of the day, and may it rest easy over you, when, at the last, you lie under it; may it rest so lightly over that your soul may be quickly through it, and up, and off, and on its way to God.

May God always bless you, love you and keep you.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE "RELUCTANT" CANDIDATE

Prior to the 1964 elections, a group of enthusiastic citizens optimistically submitted the name of Richard Nixon for contention in their state's presidential primary. While Mr. Nixon might have been primarily interested in becoming president, he apparently wasn't interested primarily in that state's primary. For he requested that his name be scratched from the ballot and the proper officials so scratched it.

Indignant, Mr. Nixon's supporters hustled off to court where they demanded that their mentor's name be ordered placed back on the ballot.

"They can't force a man to run for president if he doesn't want to run," a state official argued generally in opposition. "This is a democracy."

"That's why we've got a right to say who we want for president," retorted the supporters in effect. "If our man wins in the primary and doesn't want to do anything about it, that's his business. But, as citizens, we've got a right to run him."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you place the "reluctant" candidate's name back on the primary ballot?

This is how the Judge ruled: No! The Judge held that a person cannot be injected into a political arena in which he chooses not to be; that it's his right to say where and when he wants to become engaged in politics and to what extent. His hand cannot be forced by outsiders, concluded the Judge, by their entering his name into a contest which he may deem contrary to his political strategy.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

Your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God. (Isaiah 59:2, RSV)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, please forgive our sins and cleanse our hearts that we may pray to Thee wholeheartedly. Give us the penitence and faith in Thy forgiving love to confess our sin to Thee. In Jesus' name we ask. Amen.

The tin house put up on the corner of Front and Kingshighway beats the unsightly wooden shacks that were on the site before, but it looks like the Board of Aldermen ought to have demanded a fireproof or substantial building on such a prominent corner. Tin houses should be turned down in the business section of Sikeston.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I sent for your booklet "Teen - Age Sex And Ten Ways To Cool It" and I tried all ten ways but not one of them worked.

Now I am in very serious trouble (you can guess the type) and my boy friend has suggested four alternates (marriage was not among them.).

Please do not suggest that I go to my parents because I am an orphan. And don't tell me to try religion because I am an atheist. I hope you will not ask me to speak to my counselor because she has gained a lot of weight lately and I think she is the same spot I'm in. Can you help me? -- MISGUIDED ANGEL

Dear Angel: Darn it! I knew I should have added an 11th way to cool it. I should have suggested that you kids use your excess energy on homework so there would be no strength left for anything -- including writing phony letters.

The New Haven postmark is always a tipoff. I receive more clinkers from you birds at Yale than any other group. Knock it off, will you please?

Dear Ann Landers: I am 24. My husband is 26. We've been married for three years. The first two years were fine, but now we have run into serious trouble. The problem is our friends, if you can call them that.

One couple fights constantly and threatens divorce. The second couple is separated but they like to go out on "dates" and are sleeping together. The third couple is divorced but they are sleeping together. It sounds crummy and believe me it is.

Whenever we get together, which is every weekend, everyone sits in front of the TV and gets knee - walking drunk. The conversation is so vulgar I can't stand it. My husband doesn't say much but he seems to enjoy every minute of it.

I came from a divorced family and making my marriage work is the most important thing in the world to me. Please give me some advice before I crack up. -- LONESOME

Dear Lonesome: Make a date with a decent couple next weekend. Your husband spends his weekends with these drunken bums out of habit and the poor boob probably thinks it's the only game in town.

Dear Ann Landers: I can hardly see straight. What do you mean by telling that girl she didn't have to share her soldier husband's letter from Vietnam with his mother. It's obvious that you don't have a son or you'd be singing a different tune.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1779, the first St. Patrick's Day parade on record in New York City was staged.

On this date:

In 1836, the republic of Texas adopted a Constitution.

In 1861, King Victor Emanuel II was proclaimed ruler of Italy.

In 1891, telephone communications were established between Paris and London.

In 1939, the United States announced it refused to recognize Nazi Germany's annexation of Czechoslovakia.

In 1942, Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived in Australia to become supreme commander for the Southwest Pacific.

Ten years ago — Philippine President Ramon Magsaysay and 25 other persons died when his presidential plane crashed in flames on a mountain on Cebu Island.

Five years ago — The Soviet Union announced the launching of the first of a new series of unmanned earth satellites—the Cosmos I. The satellite was designed to obtain additional data for future manned space flights.

One year ago — An American midget submarine located a missing U.S. H-bomb in the Mediterranean off the coast of Spain. The bomb was lost in the crash of a B52 in the area at the beginning of the month.

Before the American Revolution coffee and tea were used only by the more well to do people.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, March 17, the 76th day of 1967. There are 289 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1779, the first St. Patrick's Day parade on record in New York City was staged.

On this date:

In 1836, the republic of Texas adopted a Constitution.

In 1861, King Victor Emanuel II was proclaimed ruler of Italy.

In 1891, telephone communications were established between Paris and London.

In 1939, the United States announced it refused to recognize Nazi Germany's annexation of Czechoslovakia.

In 1942, Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived in Australia to become supreme commander for the Southwest Pacific.

Ten years ago — Philippine President Ramon Magsaysay and 25 other persons died when his presidential plane crashed in flames on a mountain on Cebu Island.

Five years ago — The Soviet Union announced the launching of the first of a new series of unmanned earth satellites—the Cosmos I. The satellite was designed to obtain additional data for future manned space flights.

One year ago — An American midget submarine located a missing U.S. H-bomb in the Mediterranean off the coast of Spain. The bomb was lost in the crash of a B52 in the area at the beginning of the month.

TIZZY by Kate Osann

"You needn't feel bad about not having self-confidence. It just proves you have good judgment!"

CARNIVAL By Dick Turner

"Why SHOULDN'T I think there was someone else, Janie? Lately your father has been twice as grouchy!"

SIDE GLANCES By Gill Fox

"It's your boss, dear . . . and after all that trouble you went through to unwind!"

"Sweater"

The word sweater was used in England as early as 1850 to describe an employer who exacted monotonous work at very low wages. The sweating system was also a term used to describe oppressive industrial conditions in certain trades.

Feedlot Tour Of Four Farms

They observed advancements made in livestock production.

Hunter said all of his starting cattle were on 50 per cent ration for the first five days, up to 70 per cent after the fifth day, and 85 per cent to full ration after 10 days. He continued the ration up to 90 days or the finishing stage and sold direct to the packer.

The group observed a 100 per cent fat heifer operation on the Hunter farm that turns out approximately 1,800 head annually for packers. Hunter tries to have a 200-250 pound gain on each animal in approximately 90-100 days. He uses a maximum 85 per cent ration feed for his feedlot. He uses urea and limestone in his silage before storage.

The Killion feeding operation is in it's first year and has a capacity of 400 fat cattle annually. The lot has fed up to 600 head at peak times. It is fully push-buttom automatic feeding using corn silage and the feedlot is concrete with overhead shelter protecting the cattle from rain and hot weather. One man looks after this operation.

The Dorroh operation uses silage and a ration that is hauled to the feed bunks by automatic unloading trailers. Dorroh uses a silage with urea and limestone added.

The last stop made on the tour was the Cooke farm that has a cow-calf operation in addition to the feedlot. Cooke breeds for high performance and supplies a good percentage of his own feeders for his 150 head feed lot. He also has an operation with an automatic silage feeding system.

Cuba Davis of Charleston, Dies

CHARLESTON - Cuba Davis, 66, farmer on route three, died Thursday at his home at 7:30 a.m., after an illness.

He was born Nov. 1, 1900 near Charleston and lived here all of his life.

Surviving are one son, Russell Davis, Dorset, Ohio; one stepson, Charles Jordan, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Ethel Gray, both of Chicago; one brother, Bobby Davis, Ullin, Ill.; and five grandchildren.

The body is at the Sparks Funeral Home.

Leading Cause of Death

According to a national automobile club, more children between the ages of one and 14 die each year from automobile accidents than from any other cause.

He added that in his opinion:

The proposal to cut the required majority for passage of bond issues from two-thirds to 60 per cent has a good chance of approval in the House. It already has passed the Senate.

Annual sessions of the legislature should be continued.

And a constitutional convention should be called to bring Missouri's state government up to date.

Commenting on the work of the reapportioned legislature, Godfrey said:

"Much to the chagrin of the crepe hangers, there has been no urban-rural factionalism in the House and there has been no urban combination."

Godfrey said, however, many other legislative reforms are needed, such as cutting the number of House committees-a project on which Godfrey has made a start. He pointed out the Illinois House has only 20 committees.

Godfrey said the fact that three Democratic factions are vying for power in Jackson County means that "the Jackson County delegation will write probably one of the poorest legislative records that any Jackson County delegation has written for a long, long time."

He said he was not singling out Jackson County for criticism, but merely explaining the difficulties of getting legislation passed under the present system.

Administration sources have said businessmen appear generally to favor the idea. And one top official has said business backing appears to increase as more agencies are considered for inclusion. Among such agencies have been the customs service, the Export-Import Bank, labor mediation services and the oil import functions of the Interior Department.

Labor leaders, on the other hand, have taken the postion they want their own department to represent the workingmen in the top echelon of government, in the fashion of the Agriculture Department as spokesmen for farmers. They have expressed fear the business interests represented in a consolidated department would ominate.

For one thing, he urged Congress to approve funds requested in the budgets of various federal agencies for establishing what he described as a modern system of planning, programming and budgeting throughout the federal government.

To broaden and strengthen the government's drive for economy and efficiency in all of its operations, Johnson announced, he will establish through executive order an advisory council on cost reduction. The chairman will be the director of the Budget. The secretary of Defense will be among the members.

Johnson recommended two legislative proposals "to improve the quality of government in the years ahead" — a public service education act and an intergovernmental manpower act. The public service education act, Johnson said, would have as its purpose increasing the number of qualified students who choose careers in government. The intergovernmental manpower act, he said, is designed specifically to deal with the varied manpower needs of state and local governments.

RULING FROM THE BENCH

A little old lady being examined for jury duty in a small country town was asked if she knew the defense lawyer.

"Yes," she snapped, "he's a crook."

"And the plaintiff's lawyer?"

"Yes -- he's a crook too."

With that the judge called both lawyers over for a conference. He whispered, "If you ask her if she knows me, I'll fine you for contempt of court."

Joseph Salak.

"Sweater"

The word sweater was used in England as early as 1850 to describe an employer who exacted monotonous work at very low wages. The sweating system was also a term used to describe oppressive industrial conditions in certain trades.

Feedlot Tour Of Four Farms

They observed advancements made in livestock production.

Hunter said all of his starting cattle were on 50 per cent ration for the first five days, up to 70 per cent after the fifth day, and 85 per cent to full ration after 10 days. He continued the ration up to 90 days or the finishing stage and sold direct to the packer.

The group observed a 100 per cent fat heifer operation on the Hunter farm that turns out approximately 1,800 head annually for packers. Hunter tries to have a 200-250 pound gain on each animal in approximately 90-100 days. He uses a maximum 85 per cent ration feed for his feedlot. He uses urea and limestone in his silage before storage.

The Killion feeding operation is in it's first year and has a capacity of 400 fat cattle annually. The lot has fed up to 600 head at peak times. It is fully push-buttom automatic feeding using corn silage and the feedlot is concrete with overhead shelter protecting the cattle from rain and hot weather. One man looks after this operation.

The Dorroh operation uses silage and a ration that is hauled to the feed bunks by automatic unloading trailers. Dorroh uses a silage with urea and limestone added.

The last stop made on the tour was the Cooke farm that has a cow-calf operation in addition to the feedlot. Cooke breeds for high performance and supplies a good percentage of his own feeders for his 150 head feed lot. He also has an operation with an automatic silage feeding system.

Cuba Davis of Charleston, Dies

CHARLESTON - Cuba Davis, 66, farmer on route three, died Thursday at his home at 7:30 a.m., after an illness.

He was born Nov. 1, 1900 near Charleston and lived here all of his life.

Surviving are one son, Russell Davis, Dorset, Ohio; one stepson, Charles Jordan, and a stepdaughter, Mrs. Ethel Gray, both of Chicago; one brother, Bobby Davis, Ullin, Ill.; and five grandchildren.

The body is at the Sparks Funeral Home.

Leading Cause of Death

According to a national automobile club, more children between the ages of one and 14 die each year from automobile accidents than from any other cause.

He added that in his opinion: The proposal to cut the required majority for passage of bond issues from two-thirds to 60 per cent has a good chance of approval in the House. It already has passed the Senate.

And a constitutional convention should be called to bring Missouri's state government up to date.

Commenting on the work of the reapportioned legislature, Godfrey said:

"Much to the chagrin of the crepe hangers, there has been no urban-rural factionalism in the House and there has been no urban combination."

Godfrey said, however, many other legislative reforms are needed, such as cutting the number of House committees- a project on which Godfrey has made a start. He pointed out the Illinois House has only 20 committees.

Godfrey said the fact that three Democratic factions are vying for power in Jackson County means that "the Jackson County delegation will write probably one of the poorest legislative records that any Jackson County delegation has written for a long, long time."

He said he was not singling out Jackson County for criticism, but merely explaining the difficulties of getting legislation passed under the present system.

Administration sources have said businessmen appear generally to favor the idea. And one top official has said business backing appears to increase as more agencies are considered for inclusion. Among such agencies have been the customs service, the Export-Import Bank, labor mediation services and the oil import functions of the Interior Department.

Labor leaders, on the other hand, have taken the postion they want their own department to represent the workingman in the top echelon of government, in the fashion of the Agriculture Department as spokesman for farmers. They have expressed fear the business interests represented in a consolidated department would ominate.

For one thing, he urged Congress to approve funds requested in the budgets of various federal agencies for establishing what he described as a modern system of planning, programming and budgeting throughout the federal government.

To broaden and strengthen the government's drive for economy and efficiency in all of its operations, Johnson announced, he will establish through executive order an advisory council on cost reduction. The chairman will be the director of the Budget. The secretary of Defense will be among the members.

Johnson recommended two legislative proposals "to improve the quality of government in the years ahead" — a public service education act and an intergovernmental manpower act. The public service education act, Johnson said, would have as its purpose increasing the number of qualified students who choose careers in government. The intergovernmental manpower act, he said, is designed specifically to deal with the varied manpower needs of state and local governments.

RULING FROM THE BENCH

A little old lady being examined for jury duty in a small country town was asked if she knew the defense lawyer.

"Yes," she snapped, "he's a crook."

"And the plaintiff's lawyer?"

With that the judge called both lawyers over for a conference. He whispered, "If you ask her if she knows me, I'll fine you for contempt of court."
